NOTES AND COMMENTS

A lady was arrested at the Wilcox Lake Poll on election day, but was freed after several hours detention. She is alleged to have taken a false oath.

Magistrate Jeffs heard an unusual case at a recent session of Tottenham police court. The Tottenham creamery charged the Schomburg creamery with using creamery cans for purposes other than transporting cream, alleging that the cans were filled with buttermilk. The court heard the evidence pro and con and reserved judgment. Another charge against a farmer of using a cream can to contain gasoline was heard by Magistrate Jeffs at this court and judgment reserved.

By the new regulation of the Motor Vehicles Branch of the Department of Public Highways, it is now possible for a tourist or traveller convicted for a minor offence under the Highway Traffic Act to pay his fine to the traffic officer, be presented with a receipt and continue on his trip without having to bother with a court. The traffic officer has power to impose the minimum fine and costs which he accepts as security to appearance in court. This is voluntary on the driver's part and if he fails to appear, the amount is forfeited. Such a law as this might easily be abused by traffic officers, indeed it is likely to be.

The party that selects Hon. E. C. Drury as a political candidate are almost doomed to failure before the contest starts. Wherever he runs he is defeated, and his last trimming in the federal contest marks the fourth defeat at the polls in Ontario. That ought to be enough!

The defeat of Drury in North Simcoe, Biggs in Wentworth, Crerar in Brandon and the great reduction in Miss McPhail's majority in South-East Grey show that the Progressive movement which reached its peak in the general election of 1921 is fast disappearing as a political factor in Canada. Party government has a strong hold on the electors of Canada.

The election bills have begun to come in to the candidates and the winners are in luck for they can look forward to $4,000 per session till another contest is on. The senators, who are beyond the power of the voters, get their sessional allowance regardless of the result.

DO YOU REMEMBER WAY BACK

WHEN ?

It required four or five busy blacksmith shops to take care of the requirements of Stouffville and the surrounding community?

Not only were these places kept busy, but there were two shops at Ringwood, one at Mongolla, one on the ninth one and one quarter miles north of Stouffville, two at Bloomington, two at Altona, one at Glasgow, and one at Dixon's Hill.

Those in Stouffville who made the anvils ring were Daniel O'Brien, opposite 10th street north; Daniel Morrison, near Montreal St., Henry Dixon, on Main st. near where his son Walter lives; John Jerman, where Todd's garage building stands; David Latchford, where Todd's Block stands and later at corner of Clark St. These were previous to Byron Beebe opening his shop at the creek. What an anvil chorus!

"OLD TIMER"

TEST WEED CASES

The Chesley Enterprise indicates that weed inspectors are not lax in their duties up in Bruce county. It reports: "Anthony McCurdy and his son, John, of the townline Elderslie and Brant, were the defendants in a test weed case before Magistrate Walker in this town recently. They had not cut the weeds when ordered and an information was laid against them by A. L. McKinnon, one of the Elderslie weed inspectors. The defendants said they had cut the weeds before the case came to trial and were let off with paying court costs. A north Elderslie farmer who had also been summoned to attend court for neglecting to cut weeds on his property did not put in an appearance but sent word that he had cut the weeds since receiving his summons and would pay the costs of the court and fine, if any. These were test cases and there are not likely to be any more. Weed inspectors are appointed under township bylaws and they have wide powers so far as the cutting of noxious weeds is concerned."

AGRICULTURE IS WORK FOR WOMEN

Pickering Branch of Women's Institutes Hold Annual Picnic.

With 86,207 women enrolled in the Women's Institutes they could do much to boost agriculture and could profitably engage in co-operative marketing said Mrs. Henry Johnson of Claremont Institute, in her address Tuesday at the annual picnic of the Pickering Branch of the South Ontario Women's Institutes, held on the grounds of Lakeview Lodge at Fairport beach, with Mrs. Harry Newman as hostess.

Mrs. Johnson extolled agriculture as an industry in which women could find the greatest variety of work combined with fresh air and sunlight and the delight of watching nature co-operate with their labors. Woman-to-day were thinking for themselves, she added, and politically they were making great strides. A few years ago they voted as some man told them, but at present they were taking an active interest in political matters. In South Africa, they had senate rights, a woman from Palestine was a member of a delegation to Washington; Eskimo women were enfranchised; Canada had a woman M. P. and a woman senator. Greater opportunities and responsibilities were meeting women every day.

Mrs. David Gregg, of Claremont Institute spoke on the rights of the child, urging parents to give their children the benefit of their own experience. Good home control is half the battle in furthering the nutrition of the child," she urged. "Often a mother was heard to say that she could not keep up with the ideals of her child. But was it necessary, she asked to follow every custom in the matter of dress and pleasure? Rather safeguard the physical, mental and moral welfare of the child. Character was the essential thing. Many times a child appreciated the possessions gained without effort. The family altar should not be neglected, nor regular attendance at the House of God. The child could be introduced to a world of imagination and beauty by being taught the power of close observation.

The entire program was contributed by the Claremont Institute and both speakers and musicians were introduced by Mrs. Richard Winters, president of the Pickering branch, hostesses of Claremont institute. Mrs. R. H. Cronk moved the vote of thanks to the entertainers.

The musical program was given by Miss Mary Forsythe, Miss Aldine Ward, Miss Merle Linton, Miss Grace Loyst and Miss Margaret Pugh. Races were run off on the lawn, with Mrs. J. H. Evans, a charter member of Claremont branch, carrying off the honors in the great-grandmother's event.

SOUTH ONTARIO VOTE

W. H. Moore Got Majority of 481 in Ontario Riding

The interest taken in the riding of Ontario in the federal election was amply illustrated by the fact that the size of the vote was the largest in any federal election campaign in the history of the riding. A total of 10,979 votes were polled, according to unofficial tabulation, this being a gain of 3,508 as compared with the vote of the election in 1926. This was a vote of approximately 80 per cent of the total qualified vote, which was estimated by Sheriff Paxton, returning officer, as 25,000.

A striking thing about the comparison of the poll, is that Dr. T. E. Kaiser, who was defeated, actually polled 1,114 votes more than he did in the last election. Mr. Moore gained 2,394 in votes polled. Gains in the number of votes polled.

LATE MRS. McCORMACK

The community of Newmarket and north Whitechurch were shocked last week when word reached them of the passing of Mrs. Geo. McCormack. Although she had been very ill for several weeks in Nicholl's hospital, Peterboro, still the doctors had every hope for her recovery until a few hours before her death. In spite of all that medical skill and loving care could do, she gradually became weaker until she passed peacefully away at ten o'clock Thursday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harvie Staunton, Peterboro.

Surviving to mourn her loss are: her husband, Mr. Geo. McCormack; one son, Stanley; three daughters, Mrs. Harvie Staunton, Peterboro; Mary McCormack, R.N. of Peterboro; Mrs. Sylvester Pollard, Ballantrae; and three brothers, Mr. Wm. Flewell Stouffville, Richard of Uxbridge, and Wesley of Ballantrae. The floral offerings were beautiful and profuse.

The funeral was held on Sunday from the family residence at Vivian and was conducted by Rev. H. O. Hutcheson of Mount Albert. The remains were laid to rest in Hartman Cemetery, and were followed to their last resting-place by a large concourse of friends.
