NOT LIKELY TO RETAIN OFFICE

A spirited campaign is being carried on to have the new government continue Hon. Vincent Massey in office as Canada's representative at London, or falling that, to have him return as Minister to Washington.

The argument is that the Diplomatic service should be out of politics and those in it unaffected by administration changes.

Mr. Massey was named to London by the King Government after the election was announced. He was to succeed Hon. P. C. Larkin. Mr. Massey accepted the appointment but has not presented his credentials at the capital of Empire.

In a well-informed Conservative circles it is definitely stated that Mr. Massey will not go to London, or to Washington. The argument that the service should be outside of politics has not been debated, but Mr. Massey like the late Mr. Larkin and Mr. Marler at Tokio, was actually a member of the King Government.

Hon. Philippe Roy at Paris has not been an active political partisan and will likely retain his post if he so desires. But Messrs. Marler and Massey are slated as victims of the fortunes of war and politics.

Major-General A.D. Melrose, if he will accept, will go to London and if Sir Robert Borden will consider re-entering public life, the Washington Post is his, it is reported. Who will succeed Mr. Marler at Tokio continues problematical. It may be his ancient political foe, Hon. C. C. Ballantyne.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The R-100, the big airship which occupied the front pages of the daily press all last week, was plainly visible to many Stouffville people as she cruised over Toronto on Monday morning.

One man who has enjoyed relaxation since July 28 is Premier King. Nearly nine years of premiership carry with them more than the honor of office. Probably no Prime Minister was a more indefatigable worker than Mr. King. A corps of half a dozen secretaries were among the hardest laborers of the capital during his regime. His energy seemed inexhaustible.

When the campaign ended he journeyed to his estate at Kingsmore and there, except for clearing up his desk, has been enjoying a respite from the responsibilities of office.

Mr. King and the Liberals came into power at a time of business depression. They rode upward with the country on the cycle of prosperity and took a great deal of credit to themselves for having created that prosperity. But when the cycle moved on remorselessly again to something like depression the Conservatives blamed the Liberals for hard times.

Mr. Bennett and the Conservatives are going into power at a time of business depression. But, in the words of the popular song now current: "good times are coming" and Mr. Bennett and his colleagues will no doubt not fail to point the moral. But hard times will come again (recent events having demonstrated that business cycles are still with us) and then no doubt Mr. Bennett and the Conservatives will blame world conditions and the Liberals will blame the Conservatives.

Canada has its ups and downs (though mostly ups) whether Conservatives or Liberals are in power. No government at Ottawa has ever shown any ability to control the business cycle and the degree to which any of them has modified the effect of the business cycle on Canada has not varied much between governments of different political affiliations.

Nevertheless, the party in power will always continue to take credit for good times and the opposition will retaliate by waiting for bad times and then blaming them on the government. It is a little game of political make believe, most people know that it is, but it goes on just the same and will continue until human nature and politicians change.

The "professor" and his family were highly respected citizens of Stouffville for a number of years and lived at one time in part of George Urquhart's double house. Perhaps no more handsome children ever attended Stouffville school than the Davenport children. The "professor" died a couple of years ago on Davenport Road, Toronto.

MORE PENSIONS FOR OLD AGE

There were 31,258 persons in receipt of old age pensions in Ontario at the end of July, and the amount of money paid out in such pensions in the province in the nine months ending with July totalled $4,617,939.

The number of pensioners, 70 years of age and over, has steadily increased since the Old Age Pension Law became operative in Ontario. In November last, the number was 15,000; in December, 19,000; in January, 22,000; in March 26,000; in April, 29,000; June 30,000; and now the total is over 31,000. On the other hand, deaths of pensioners have averaged about 300 a month.

Of the sum paid out in pensions during the last nine months the Dominion Government contributed $2,300,146, the Ontario Government $1,379,579 from provincial funds, and the municipalities, which meet 20 per cent of the cost of pensions, contributed $918,385. There was some adjustment of payments as between the provinces; for example, Ontario paid more than $17,000 to the four western provinces in which Old Age Pension Acts are in operation and received about $2,000 from these provinces.

The adoption of the plan for a national old age pension system, such as Hon. R. B. Bennett proposed in his campaign speeches, thus would relieve the Ontario Government of an outlay of some $1,800,000 per year. Furthermore under a national pension system, the province would not collect any contribution from the municipalities towards the cost of pensions. The latter thus would be relieved of a direct expenditure of more than $1,200,000 a year.

With some direct obligation on a municipality it was felt a closer check would be made on all applications, but with the county handling the matter such is not proving the case.

ALTONA INSTITUTE HONOR FORMER MEMBERS

Eighty Attend the August Meeting at Atha

One of the most interesting meetings of the year held by the Altona Women's Institute took place at the home of Mrs. Murray Dunkeld at Atha, when the August gathering was convened there. The Whitevale branch were the guests of the afternoon, while the visitors, according to arrangement, furnished the program, which proved very interesting and instructive. It is interesting to note that the attendance numbered 80, a very fine gathering for a busy farming community.

One of the features of the afternoon was the presentation made to Mrs. T. Dunkeld and her daughter Mrs. James Melton, who came up from Whitevale with the visitors. Both these ladies had been former members of the Altona branch prior to moving to Whitevale, and this opportunity was seized on to do them honor. The following address was read, and the presentation made: Dear Mrs. Dunkeld and Mrs. Melton. It affords the officers and members of the Altona Woman's Institute a great deal of pleasure to have you present with us today, but I am sure we also feel we owe an apology to you for being so slow in remembering you as is our custom to present a very small token of remembrance to those members who leave our community. If not to late we ask you Mrs. Dunkeld, to accept this brush and comb set and Mrs. Melton, this sandwich plate, hoping you will be able to be with us as often as possible in the future.

Signed on behalf of Altona, Woman's Institute Mrs. D. Crosier, president. Mrs. E. Lehman, sec.

According to Mr. George Leary of Gormley who was present at the time this woman came into the poll she was wrongfully threatened with arrest before she took the resident oath, which is intimidation.
