The Markham Council Farmer Queen Makes Good on Turkeys

A meeting of Markham Township Council was held in Council Chambers on Tuesday with all members present. Reeve Gohn in chair. Communications were read:—

North York plowmen association wrote asking for donation for their annual ploughing match, to be held in October.

Deputation headed by Mr. Hills from north of township between con. 3 and 4 asking that their road be given a little more gravel. They claimed that about half of this beat is still mud, and had never been graveled and that it was impossible to travel it after a rain. Council felt that they had gone about the limit this year for gravel.

Mr. J. Lunau and Reeve of Richmond Hill, and Mr. Mills head of Fire department interviewed council in regards to water, and fire protection. Agreement was finally passed that Markham pay Richmond Hill $100 for water which had been used several years back, and that in future, all water accounts be settled for yearly. Also accounts from Richmond Hill Fire Brigade will be paid at end of each year.

A Bylaw was passed appointing W. F. Nichols for west side of township and Abner Summerfeldt for east side of township as tax collectors for 1931 at a salary of $250 each.

A grant of $100 was made to Markham agricultural society and $10 to the school fair.

Sheep claim sent in by W. A. Dean of Thornhill, was left to W. Brooks for adjustment.

The following general accounts were ordered paid:

Richmond Hill Liberal	$379.28
J. H. Gowland, weed inspector	$10
Robt. Stiver	$44.25
Stewart McQuay, cutting weeds	$2.70
On Cook property	$2.70
Jas. McPherson, cutting weeds	$15.00
On mill race property	$15.00
Geo. Palmer	$13.50
Geo. Cummings	$4.20
S. J. Knuff	$3.00
G. A. M. Davison stamps	$7.50
Jas. Walker, constable fees	$115.25
Charity	$31.31
W. Brooks, sheep	$10.00
Sheep claim from W. A. Dean	$44.44

Road Foreman's accounts were passed on as follows:

Philip Forsyth, North Mark	$593.10
David Shaddock, Milliken	29.65
Alex. Duncan	907.40
R. J. Duffield	90.85
Robt. Agar, Gormley	137.48
J. G. Wideman	122.60
G. H. Bennett	176.45
R. J. Cunningham	703.65
Lorne Grove	16.30
Wm. Allchurch, Locust Hill	9.43

General road and bridges accounts were passed amounting to $1597.05

Council adjourned to meet, on Monday Oct 5th, at 1 p.m.

South Africa and Sweden. She has received an order for breeders from the Jamaica Agricultural Society. A moving picture outfit has taken pictures of the flock for the world's news reel. All these demands are met with a generosity and great good nature.

"And do you ever get a holiday?" I asked as I left.

"Well, now," she hesitated, "come to think of it, I really don't in the same sense as other people. I get up with the turkeys at a quarter to four in the morning, spring and summer, and, of course, I go to bed at their roosting time—glad to call it a day. Every Sunday I see my neighbors drive gaily away to the beautiful lakes that are a part of this province. But that is not for me. I suppose my work is my pleasure. It must be because I only wish my flock numbered five thousand. That is what I hope to accomplish during the coming season."

RINGWOOD

Miss Ada Barkey is visiting in Toronto.

Most of our citizens are enjoying a day at the fair.

Mrs. J. M. Grove recently spent a few days at Cobocook.

Miss Florence Farrow is spending a couple of weeks at Bethany.

The many friends of Mrs. Will. Conner will be glad to know that she is regaining her health again.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Watson and daughter Dorothy of Green Bay, Wisconsin were recent visitors with Miss Ada Barkey.

Five car loads of people from this vicinity motored to Orillia on Monday to spend the day at Couchiching Park. All report a perfect holiday.

W. J. Jacobs reports a 16 inch speckled trout being caught in the small stream on his farm on Monday. Some fish for so small a stream.

A. STOVER

"When I won the first three turkeys I did not wish to kill them all at the same time, so it was necessary to learn what to feed them. I enquired of the neighbors and mixed up feed according to their directions. The turkeys seemed to thrive upon it. I liked working with them, so I got the idea I might make a little extra money by going in for turkeys and help pull up the ranch. I wrote to the Department of Agriculture for information regarding their care."

"When the replies and pamphlets came, I grew more enthusiastic, for I realized that our ranch was particularly favored for this phase of agriculture. Our buildings were in a valley with protecting banks; we had a constant supply of fresh water; the land was well drained and consequently dry; and we were in the irrigation belt, which assured the growing of a grain crop that was necessary for their feed."

"In the spring the turkeys began to lay, and I started that first year with twenty-five turks."

"Many times I am asked for my methods, which are very simple. In the beginning I cannot overestimate the necessity of cleanliness—clean nests, clean coops, clean dry shelters and food served in clean troughs. All this eliminates lice and mites, which are the greatest enemies turkeys have. Speaking of vermin, never put strong insect powder on setting hens or poults. It is apt to get into their eyes and result in blindness."

"My equipment has never been elaborate, as you see, even when the flock is as large as it is today. From the beginning I provided big roosty nests built in such a way that the turkey hen at setting is closed in and let off every second day for feed and water, then carefully closed in again."

The turks are allowed to become strong and well-hatched before they are removed from the nest. They are then moved to a large, clean coop. When forty-eight hours old, they are given their small feed of thick sour milk—a saucerful to twenty, with the addition of a thimbleful each of rolled oats slightly dampened with raw eggs. In the course of a few days, if the weather is fine, they are allowed their freedom in the yards near the brooding houses with their mothers, their food being gradually increased.

This is the time they need incessant watching, Alberta May snowstorms are events to be feared. Sudden rain, hail or thunderstorms can be the worst catastrophes—even to wiping out the whole hatch.

"As the weather becomes warmer and the crops begin to grow, the turkeys are turned out every fine morning into special pastures, or grain fields to scratch for themselves. I try to persuade my husband that they earn the price of their grain feed by their work in ridding the land of weeds and insect pests. We never had a grasshopper in the bad grasshopper years, and as for dandelions—well, that is one of their favorite foods. They are fed at noon and night from the troughs and soon learn to answer the 'chop' call. In this province of cool nights, they are rounded up in the shelters every night."

"In September forceful feeding begins—all the chop they can eat three times a day. This is made up of one-quarter barley, a little less than half number one wheat, and the remainder oats, alfalfa and corn if I can afford it. To every hundred pounds, I add an ordinary corn tin full of cod liver oil."

Guarding Against Coyotes.

As we were leaving, dusk was settling quietly on the land, the turkeys were being driven to their shelter, and a man was going about lighting lanterns at intervals on the surrounding fence posts. On enquiry regarding this, Mrs. Freeman explained that it was done to frighten away coyotes.

The turkeys, too, drew the attention of the hawks, but the presence of these birds of prey was always heralded by a peculiar cry among the turkeys known as the hawk call. The signal is answered by the nearest helper running to the scene of disturbance with a shotgun. However, if this first aid does not materialize the turkeys gang together and advance upon the enemy in a body, pecking and scratching at him until he drops his victim.

The marketing begins in July with the hens that were kept over for laying and hatching purposes and which now are a little over a year old. It reaches its height from Thanksgiving to March. All birds are killed scientifically by the helpers, who pierce their brains with knives. They are dry-picked. Mrs. Freeman prides herself that everything shipped from the ranch is in the finest condition. She has never had any sickness in her flocks, and diseases like roup are entirely unknown to them. She attributes her success to the out-of-door life of her turkeys, their well-balanced food, the cleanliness that attends their care, and she doesn't discount the cod liver oil.

Mrs. Freeman's amazing success in this venture is the wonder and talk of the surrounding country. Her fame, too, has gone abroad. Each year she receives hundreds of letters; in the spring from ten to by turkey breeders in England,

Fall plowing with a Fordson

DRY ground, hot weather, weeds . . . all are drawbacks to fall plowing. All these drawbacks disappear when a Fordson Agricultural Tractor is hitched to the plow.

The improved Fordson engine develops 30 horse-power at 1100 r. p. m. It has ample power to turn dry ground. It also has plenty of power to plow the weeds under no matter how heavy the growth.

Put a Fordson Agricultural Tractor to your fall plowing this year. Put a Fordson to all the farm jobs of seeding, tending, and harvesting. It will pay you in time saved and labor costs saved. Let us demonstrate the new features of the improved Fordson.
