

...SMILES...
The real marriage, we read from Dorothy Dix, "is when a man finds a beautiful girl and a good housewife." Sounds more like bigamy.

Bloofus—"I wonder why rich folks so often marry rich folks?"
Obfuscus—"Because they have so much interest in commor."

Try a Cyclone Cellar
Husband (while house-hunting)—"Let's try a bungalow, my dear—then you won't always be hearing burglars moving about down-stairs."

Smoothing Her Plumage
Old Aunt (despondently)—"Well, I shall not be a nuisance to you much longer."
Nephew (reassuringly)—"Don't talk like that, aunt; you know you will."

Kink Lady—"And how would you like a nice chop?"
Weary Tramp—"That all depends, lady—is it lamb, pork, or wood?"

Too Expensive
And then there was the Scottish father of twins, who only had one of them photographed.

Woman—"People sometimes tell me I talk too much, but I always believe in saying what I think."
Husband—"Of course, darling—but er—where do you get all the rest from?"

The reason so many of us do not want to learn is because a lot of the facts we'd pick up in the process would be very unpleasant.

Wife (to husband, upon leaving a good eating place)—"I hope you gave the waiter a big enough tip."
Husband—"I did, but it wasn't."

Suitor—"Well, since you don't want to marry me, perhaps you will return the ring I gave you."
Sweet Young Thing (snapping)—"If you must know, your jeweller has already called for it."

Doctor—"Give up smoking, captain, and you will prolong your life by 20 years."
Captain—"It isn't it too late now?"
Doctor—"It's never too late."
Captain—"Then I'll start in ten years' time."

Trouble really never starts in a family until the time arrives when father and son can wear each other's clothes.

"You have admitted Smith to your club? But he is such a bore."
"Yes—we wanted somebody to grumble about."

Grocer—"Do you want white or brown eggs, ma'am?"
Pretty Bride—"The kind I want are white with a yellow polka dot in the middle."

Country Doctor (calling to see female patient)—"I suppose you consider me an old hump?" (laughing, as he felt the woman's pulse and trying to put over his very best bedside manner).
The Patient (gaspng incredulously)—"Well, I never. I had no idea you could ascertain a woman's thoughts by just feeling her pulse."

Blessed is the husband who is an unhandy fellow. He reads his newspaper while his neighbors are mending carpet sweepers.

Tactful Tot,
Minister (calling)—"And what does your mother do for you when you've been a good girl?"
Margery—"She lets me stay home from church."

He'd Never Get Rich
Victim (sadly)—"I got that watch from a former employer after I'd been with him ten years."
Footpad—"Lumme, Guv-nor, you was slow, wasn't you?"

Homeopathic Recipe
Diner—"What on earth is this broth made from, waiter? Surely it isn't chicken broth?"
Waiter—"Well, sir, it's chicken broth in its infancy. It's made out of the water the higgs were boiled in."

Bans Photographs
In Italian Papers
Rome.—Publicity-seekers who make their presence at public gatherings the occasion to get their names and photographs into public print have been called to order by Achille Starace, secretary of the Fascist party. Starace has issued an order prohibiting the publication of photographs and names of persons attending meetings. The order affects Starace himself and all others except Premier Mussolini and a few other Government officials.

Recent Events From Overseas

Dramatic Race
London, Eng.—A Manchester to London express train raced from Nottingham to Leicester in record time recently so that a woman suffering from acute appendicitis might be rushed to hospital for an operation to save her life.

Mrs. E. Hargreaves, of Longsight, Manchester, was going to London for a holiday, and the express was between Sheffield and Nottingham when word was hurriedly passed along the train to the guard that she had been taken seriously ill.

Operation Ordered
A doctor examined her and said that an immediate operation was imperative.

The engine driver was asked to get up as high a speed as he dared and he managed to top off several minutes.

When the express reached Nottingham officials warned the Leicester station authorities to have an ambulance ready, and a few minutes after the train had drawn in Mrs. Hargreaves was on her way to the Royal Infirmary. The woman had her two children, aged four and two years, with her. The babies went on, in a passenger's care, to London, where their grandparents met them.

At Leicester Infirmary it was stated that night that Mrs. Hargreaves' condition was serious.

Hatless Woman
London, Eng.—A girl entered the witness-box at Westminster Police Court recently without a hat.

The usher asked if she should be allowed to take the oath with her head uncovered.

The magistrate, Mr. Hopkin Morris: "It does not matter. The only thing that concerns me is whether taking the oath affects her conscience."
She was then sworn.

Car Thief Caught
Salisbury, Eng.—Miss Tatham Warner, of Marshash, was complimented by the chief constable at Salisbury Police Court recently on the part she played while driving a sports car in the chase of a motor-car thief.

She used her car to block the Salisbury-Romsey road, but the thief drove through and she went in pursuit with policemen in her car.

Miss Warner passed the stolen car at a high speed and then blocked a narrow Romsey street. William Edward Thomas, who had stolen the car from Salisbury, was thus arrested.

He was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

Parisians Startled
Paris, France.—Life behind the footlights of the Paris music halls has just been described in a striking book—"Une Danseuse Nue" ("A Naked Dancer") by Colette Andris, who knows what she is writing about because she is herself a nude dancer of the Folies Bergere.

Colette is a young woman of excellent family who went to the Sorbonne and took an honors degree.

In order to pay for her studies she decided to go on the stage, and applied for the post of dancer in a cabaret at Montmartre.

She was immediately accepted on account of her perfect figure, and for the rest of her academic career combined study by day with dancing naked by night.

She tells us all about herself in her book. She pictures the glamor and the danger of life in Paris by night, shows us the "other side" of the curtain, tells us of the rivalries and jealousies of the dancers and their lovers standing waiting for them in the wings.

Paris considers it strange that a well-born, well-educated young woman should prefer dancing naked in a night club to following a more honorable profession, such as medicine or teaching, but Colette likes her art, as she calls it, and intends to go her own way.

I talked to her the other day in the library of her home.

"I studied history and geography at the university," she said. "Now I am interested more in writing and dancing. I am writing my next novel in the

DAUGHTER HAD CRYING SPELLS

"Nerves" Brought On by Worrying

AFTER KRUSCHEN
"A DIFFERENT GIRL"

A mother writes:—"Early this spring my eighteen-year-old daughter had a nervous breakdown. She had crying spells and fits of the blues. So I decided to give Kruschen Salts a trial, starting with a large half-teaspoonful in hot water first thing in the morning, and the little daily dose in her tea for lunch and supper. In less than a week the crying spells had stopped and she began to sleep better. That was three months ago. To-day she is full of pep, and sleeps and eats well. She is a different girl. I am still giving her the little daily dose."—(Mrs.) M. L.

The commonest cause of depression is partial constipation—an insidious complaint, because the sufferer is seldom aware of it. It means the gradual accumulation of body poisons which dull the mind, damp the spirits, sap the nervous strength and lower the whole vitality.

Colette is married to a wealthy industrialist with vast concerns in South America—M. Risler, son of a former French senator.

Seamen Fight Fire
Belgrade, Rumania.—An ovation was given to British bluejackets when they returned to Korchula, weary and smoke-grimed, from an all-night fight with a forest fire.

The fire broke out in the magnificent cypress forests of the Peljeshata peninsula in Dalmatia.

Sailors from the British warships of the Mediterranean Fleet, which were anchored in the canal between Korchula and the peninsula, rushed to the scene with fire-fighting apparatus, and after five hours the flames were apparently mastered.

Some moments later, however, the flames broke out afresh.

They eventually succeeded in putting it out, and so saved the most beautiful forest on the Dalmatian coast.

Duke is Victim
London, Eng.—While taking part in military manoeuvres in Herefordshire and parts of Gloucestershire the Duke of Gloucester, as an officer of the Hussars, fell into an ambush and was captured by the opposing force.

Hereford was the centre of operations, the 11th Hussars, with armored cars, forming the defending force against the Scots Greys. At one period armored cars raced into the main square in the centre of the town and almost at once went into action.

Women autograph hunters had recognized the Duke and were trying to reach him when the cars opened fire and the women hurried off. One woman-motorist, however, chased his Royal Highness for 10 miles and was an eye-witness of his capture in a Scots Greys' ambush.

The Duke was in an armored car which was receiving wireless messages from scouting cars over a wide area. He was captured near a hotel, and the woman who had pursued him wanted to invite him to have a drink. She plucked up courage to approach an officer of the ambush party, but when he suggested that she should herself ask the Duke her courage failed.

New Invention
Cardiff, Wales.—A Cardiff commercial traveller has patented a road traffic signal invention which expert opinion acclaims as a great improvement on the present road control system.

A total of over 7,500 skunks have been captured and destroyed since April, 1932, when the bounty was put on in Prince Edward Island, states the Natural Resources Department of the Canadian National Railways.

Ontario Cattle Win At Vancouver Show
Vancouver.—Alberta and Ontario exhibitors scored heavily in the cattle and sheep classes at the Canada Pacific Exhibition here. All but three of the total classes judged were won by Prairie and Eastern entries. The E.P. Ranch, High River, Alta., won seven first places and three seconds, besides the champion and reserve champion in the junior bull and junior cow classes. Duncan Campbell, of Moffat, Ont., was high scorer in the cattle division with ten firsts, six seconds and four champions. Campbell won the senior bull champion, grand champion bull, and both grand champion and reserve in the cows.

Pioneer Houses Subject of Article

Whites of Eggs Used in Original Stucco Dwellings

In an interesting article in "Bride and Golfer," Professor Arthur writes on his quest of the pioneer period in Ontario. A few paragraphs are given below:

The first houses were of log and a good many still remain. They are difficult to discover, owing to their coat of stucco, unless in ruins, when the structure is revealed. The walls were constructed of blocks of mud, bonded with pea straw and dried in the Egyptian fashion in the sun. So long as the roof is kept water-tight these houses appear to last indefinitely, and their insulating qualities make them ideal dwellings in winter and summer. The original stucco, as used here in the first century, contained the whites of eggs, hundreds of which went into the covering of a wall. Sir Christopher Wren used eggs in the mortar of St. Paul's; in fact, they were used in good work in Ontario within living memory. Shanty Bay church on Lake Simcoe, is the most ambitious and one of the best preserved mud buildings in Ontario.

Anyone in the neighborhood of Toronto interested in mud building should see a fine little house near Halton, in Peel County. The stucco has peeled sufficiently to show the sun dried bricks beneath; these were shaped and carefully laid in position. In the Peel house the interior trim is as finely detailed as in any expensive modern Georgian house, and has chairrails and cupboards that would satisfy the most fastidious taste.

Perhaps the finest colonial house left in Ontario, the writer says, is the Barnum house near Grafton. The "Planter's" house, so common in the southern states, is found all over Ontario. It consists of a high central portion with a columnar porch two storeys high, and low wings. Good examples are the Chrysler farm near Cornwall, the Peck house at Prescott, and the Sydenham house in Kingston.

At Port Hope a family or school of bricklayers made this little Ontario town as interesting for its brick work as Kingston is for its stone work. The cornice and trim, city-like appearance of a typical dwelling is worth noting, for about the year 1800 Port Hope thought it saw a great future for itself, and started to build itself like a smaller London, with basement kitchens, flat roofs and cast-iron fences.

Blow From a Barrister
London, Eng.—Patrick Davison, aged 30, a barrister-at-law, of Radnor-place, W., was fined £10 with £5 5s costs at Marlborough Street Police Court recently for assaulting a policeman.

It was stated that Davison struck the policeman when he refused to allow him to park his car by some trestles in Jermy Street. He denied emphatically that he struck the policeman.

New Rules Regulate Foreign Ship Lines

London.—A dispatch from Berlin says: The Ministry of Economic Affairs has issued new instructions for the treatment of foreign shipping companies represented in Germany. The order compelling German travellers, even foreign travellers, who wish to pay marks to apply to the foreign exchange control offices for authorization before booking passages "above the low exemption list" for export money by foreign vessels, is withdrawn.

The new regulations are regarded as satisfactory by the representatives of foreign shipping lines and leave them as much freedom as possible to conduct business in Germany while the foreign exchange control continues in force. The exchange control official is instructed to grant foreign companies a general authorization to book passages in marks without limit. They are thus able to deal freely with intending passengers, which was their main demand; anything short of its fulfilment would have seriously crippled their activities in Germany. Germans or foreigners may now book freely on foreign vessels. Bookings must be confined to costs incurred on the ship, and the amount of passages unused or fully unused may be refunded in marks within Germany.

The foreign exchange control will in future be applied to the total receipts of each foreign company as was the case before the order giving rise to controversy and not to the cost of individual passage.

The Optimist's Creed

Promise yourself:
To be so strong that nothing can disturb your peace of mind. To talk health, happiness and prosperity to every person you meet;
To make all your friends feel that there is something in them;
To look at the sunny side of everything and make your optimism come true;
To think only of the best, to work for the best, and expect only the best;
To be as enthusiastic about the success of others as you are about your own;
To forget the mistakes of the past and press on to the greater achievements of the future;
To wear a cheerful countenance at all times and give every living creature you meet a smile;
To give so much time to the improvement of yourself that you have no time to criticize others;
To be too large for worry, too noble for anger, too strong for fear, and too happy to permit the presence of trouble.

Baked apples, filled with nuts, cinnamon and sugar are delicious and afford a variety in serving this popular fruit.
