In writing to the Uxbridge Times Mr. E. A. VanBuseck says that he is living a hard winter so far as health is concerned. Mr. VanBuseck is living in Perie, Pa., U.S.A. and says they have had plenty of snow and ice this winter. He is a native of Stouffville, but lived for many years in Sunderland conducting a harness business. Ten years ago he left for the U.S.A. E.A.'s father conducted a thriving harness business in Stouffville in the olden days and Mr. Thos. Williamson was foreman of the shop.

Mrs. Alex Grubin gave her friends and family a very anxious time last Sunday when she lay in a serious condition suffering a slight concussion as a result of falling on the slippery ice in front of her home on Saturday evening. Since then she has rallied, and now appears to be making good recovery, with every hope of no permanent injury.

Principal Duran of the Continuation School informs us that the local school will meet Uxbridge students in the next debate of the interschool series. The oratory group will compete next with Mount Albert. Stouffville recently eliminated Claremont in both groups.

Because so many towns and villages were short of water this winter it may have been what prompted Hon. Geo. S. Henry to revert from his previous temperance platform, and give the people beer by the five cents a glass. Places like Markham village where the supply of water was in peril, now have a way out. Please don't smile.

Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Madill intend to move into their Stouffville home, the former James Hand place, within a few weeks now. They have spent the winter at their place on lot 16, con. 10 Markham, where they will hold an auction sale on April 3rd, to dispose of a quantity of furniture, timber, etc. The exterior of their Stouffville house was remodelled last fall with rugged brick, new foundation and large front veranda.

The Stanley Theatre, which has been showing only on Friday and Saturday of each week, will show a special picture on Monday and Tuesday of next week, to mark the Easter season. "But the Flesh is Weak" is the title of the special feature starring Robert Montgomery.

Farmers are ready to tap their maple bushes the first day that sufficient warm weather comes along. Up to Tuesday this week, none of the larger-makers had started, although several indicated to The Tribune that they are awaiting the first suitable day in order to get the sap buckets to work. A big run is hoped for following the severe winter.

Sunshine weather, liberal advertising, and a well-known vendor, all served to draw the large crowd to the home of Joan Lewis, who occupies the red brick house just north of the railroad track on the 10th concession of Whitechurch, last Saturday afternoon. The place is only a short distance north of Stouffville, and some folk walked over to the sale. It was chiefly furniture that was sold, with some farm traps, and a little live stock. Much interest centred around the auction of some antique furniture, and the grandfather clock was sold to Mrs. Robt. Miller at $46.50. The time-piece is said to be 200 years old, and was made in England, perhaps by the same firm that made the big time-piece for the clock tower in Stouffville. The firm has been in business for 400 years. A peculiar thing about this clock is the fact that back in pioneer days the bees made honey in the cherry case, and a hole below the face was placed there for their entrance. Many pounds of honey were taken from the bees making their hive each summer. A dulcimer, which is now or unknown to the present generation, was taken by Mrs. Patterson of Agincourt for $7. This is a musical instrument made on the principal of a harp, and the wire strings are played with a stick or light hammer. The dulcimer is box-shaped and capable of bringing forth very sweet music. An old fashioned bed with some sort of stem-wind arrangement like hospital beds, sold to Jim Barry for a few dollars. No one seemed to want it. The windless arrangement was said to be useful on the bed, as a means of suspending the mattress and springs to hustle out a lazy morning sleeper. Perhaps that's why it wasn't in demand. $400 worth of goods were sold, and Mr. Lewis still has plenty with which to furnish a small home for himself. He will occupy the house he is in for a short time, but has not decided where he will locate permanently. The place he is about to leave is owned by a Mrs. Hausser in Toronto, who is said to have rented it to a new tenant. Saturday's sale was in charge of Auctioneer Alvin Farmer who made over 300 separate sales during the afternoon.

Capt. Goodale in company with another Salvation Army lassie, canvassed the town on Monday with the Easter War Cry. The Captain is in charge of the work at Uxbridge, and informs us that the army is just entering on its 51st year in our neighboring community.

Wednesday of last week may have been marked by the calendar as the first day of spring, but when the thermometer dropped to 10 below zero next morning with a strong wind, there certainly wasn't anything springlike about it. Again on Friday night it touched zero, but became gradually milder, and more in keeping with the season it is supposed to be.

Next Saturday evening at the Stanley Theatre there will take place the draw for free gas and oil which Mr. Delbert Holden is giving to his customers who have purchased at his store during the first three months of this year. These free gifts are in addition to the car he is giving away to the lucky ticket holder in 1934. Read his announcement in this issue. Theatre manager Schmidt promises a good picture for the night of the draw. Bring your best girl and get in early for the picture—Draw 9 p.m.

With the approach of spring everyone's mind is turned to the thought of painting up or fixing a little (we mean their real estate, and not human faces) and our attention has been called by more than one ratepayer to the shameful looking door which some council allowed to be hung on the front of our municipal building as entrance to the clock tower. A great pair of clumsy looking and unsightly hinges have been used, which add to the bad appearance the door gives as it hangs to the outside of the brick wall, instead of being hung from the inside. A small matter, you say, but why not have it fixed and put in respectable condition? We hope the reeve or council or some member of it, will take interest in this matter and have the door rehung in proper manner, so it will be a credit to the front of the public building instead of an eye-sore as it is at present.

A shower of more than usual interest was tendered Miss Pearl Stiles of the Continuation School staff, at the home of Mrs. Clayton Baker on Wednesday evening. Gifts of beautiful glassware and stemware were greatly in evidence, and very beautiful. Someone had a forethought that friends would like to see how a real wedding should be enacted, and so in due course the thrilling affair was duly demonstrated by members of the school staff with Miss Stiles as a mere on-looker. Miss Houston acted the sober minister, while the roll of the engrossing and budding bride was taken by Miss Ross. The groom was a nervous chap, we hear, and was in care of Miss Loyst. Miss Jean Collard gave the bride away, and so perfect was it all, tis said, that advances will be made for the co., to repeat the performance at some more open function for the benefit of the community. In all a lot of fun was engendered to the merriment of the friends present.

"Seeds were having a hard time of it, and the new covering will help them." Mr. Bruce took special care to measure "six inches on the level."
