Farmers' Information

Taking Stock

The farmer who takes stock now and plans for his farming operations during the coming crop season will be able to order his fertilizers, spraying material, insecticides, etc., in good time. He will also be able to eliminate unprofitable hens, cows, and other animals, and otherwise cut the cost of production.

The Spring Seed Supply

Now is the time for farmers to take stock of their spring seed requirements. Those who do not have sufficient seed of their own should secure what they require as soon as possible, making sure that they are getting the varieties recommended for their part of the country. Farmers who have their own seed should have it properly cleaned and graded before the spring rush.

Grains for the Breeding Ewe

In early winter, with hay supplying the bulky part of the ration breeding ewes in good condition have very little need for grain. However, with mixed or grass hays, some protein-rich concentrate should be added. One-quarter to one-half a pound per day of a mixture of two parts oats and one part bran gives very good results. Oats are relished by sheep. They strengthen the ewe, while bran furnishes the protein needed to balance the ration in addition to assisting the digestive organs by its laxative qualities. Other grains, such as barley, corn, wheat and peas are fattening feeds and should not be used except in small quantities and for ewes that are in very poor condition. They should always be fed in combination with bran and oats to lighten the mixture.

Pedigree School Held

Members of the Haldimand County Holstein Calf Club have now a better idea of the value of a pedigree and the manner in which an extended pedigree is prepared, as a result of a "Pedigree School" held recently at Hagersville. This is the first school of its kind to have been held in the Province of Ontario and was organized by Mr. Byron G. Jenvey of the Extension Department of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada in co-operation with A. Gordon Skinner Agricultural Representative for the county.

HORSES STARTLED BY TRAIN BOLT ACROSS RAILWAY BRIDGE AT UNIONVILLE

A span of horses belonging to John Grant, 6th Concession of Markham, made local history recently.

Hitched to a sleigh, they were left by the driver, a farm hand, standing by the station platform while he entered the station on business. In the meantime the morning train came rolling in from Toronto with its usual commotion, roaring, rattling, bell ringing, and whistle screeching.

The team took fright and made a sudden dash for home. On reaching the crossing they found the road obstructed by the panting engine.

Stop in Snowbank

Nothing daunted, they took to the left, up the railway tracks, over the Gormley bridge 40 feet high, safely negotiating the ties, and farther on to where the right-of-way becomes level again, then they took to the side and were marooned in snowbanks.

In the meantime the train crew took on the driver of the spirited team to the spot where drifts had done what a railway bridge had failed to do. The driver nonchalantly turned them round and proceeded back over the tracks the way they had come, and arrived safely without further mishap.

Now the sagest old residents are wondering just how that team got over the ties on the bridge, separated as they are, without breaking their legs in the trying, careening flight.

A few years ago two horses running at large were overtaken by a train on this bridge and just tossed into the creek.

Acrobatic Cleric

Still longer ago, and the story old enough to be called ancient history, yet true, an absent-minded minister small of stature, was walking along this same bridge, which, then, as now, lacked side standards, when suddenly a train appeared bearing down on him from behind.

Sizing up the situation and his own size, he sat down, put feet, legs, and body through between the ties, mean-while securing a firm grip with his hands on the ties. He let his diminutive body down, the ties now above his head, and hung suspended thus while the train thundered past, then drew himself up and retraced his steps in safety and without further interruption. It is recorded that he never again ventured afoot on the railway right-of-way.

BALLANTRAE

Milt Forefar has again secured the contract for supplying fuel wood to Bloomington school. The price this year is the same as in 1925, being $8.75 per cord of 4 feet wood. The school uses 27 single cords of 16 inch wood.

A number of our roads have been snowed up so badly that traffic was only made on foot, but the boys soon opened the side roads when once the storm stopped on Friday. The ninth concession was blocked for three days, being opened on Saturday.

Last week we forgot to call the attention of our municipal council to what many consider not a fair deal against the assessor for the east side. A raise in salary was granted the west side man on the plea that he had more work to do. Well, granting he has a couple of hundred thousand more dollars to assess, it doesn't mean anything. One farm assessed for ten thousand is as easily done as a $5 assessment. The fact is the east side man has just as much to do for he has two and a half miles extra territory to cover on the two extra concessions which he assesses, which means he has the most acres. We wonder if the council took this into consideration when setting a premium for the west side assessor? The boys will have to jack up our new east side assessor to square matters, perhaps.

"And He opened His mouth And taught them saying." Matt. 5:1, 12. How blest are they, in spirit poor, Who pride and self efface.

For them Christ's promises assure The riches of His grace. How blest are they who truly mourn Who feel mankind's deep sore.

They solace give, and in return 'Are comforted the more. How blest are they in spirit meek, Who flee the world's rude strength;

They who, through love, the kingdom seek Shall own the earth at length. How blest are they who, yearning, pray That they may do God's will.

The Lord, for these, will guide the way 'And He their hearts will fill. How blest are they who mercy love, Who ease life's stress and strain.

They who bend low, ill to remove, 'Are lifted up again. How blest are they whose purity Is that of saint or seer

The truths of God and destiny For such are visioned clear. How blest are they who, make for peace, In causes great and small.

Those who toil on that wars may cease Men shall God's children call. How blest are they who for the right, Their persecutions bear;

They who, through pain, strive toward the light Shall in the Kingdom share. How blest are they who can rejoice, In fruits they cannot see.

Inspired by faith they lift their voice To claim the victory. Ringwood, Jan. 1936 Uncle Nathan
