Poets, Editors And Fallibility

"The Canadian Authors' Association is starting a new magazine, to be devoted entirely to Canadian poetry. Those who can really write poetry will thus have a chance to have it published and they will also be paid for it, instead of having to send it to the newspapers whose editors frankly do not know good poetry when they see it." - Fergus News-Record.

Commenting upon the last state. ment-that editors don't know good poetry when they see it - the Toronto Star says it can prove it. One of its editorial writers sent a few lines of verse to the editor of the "A Little of Everything" column on the Star's own editorial page, and in order that there should be no chance of favoritism on account of his iden. tity he had the lines typewritten and a strange name signed to them. They were never published.

Well, joking aside, why should ed. Hors always know good poetry, anyway, or what the world might regard as good poetry? Or, for that matter. why should they always know what is good prose?

Often they have shown that they didn't know Only recently the editor of the Atlantic Monthly confessed he had rejected the manuscript which made Hemingway famous. London editors, or a good many of them, rejected things which Barrie wrote, and which turned out to be classics. Why I Visited Denmark: "THE McDONALD MOVEMENT" (By Prof. S. B. McCready)

In order to explain my interest in Denmark and the-purpose of my visit to that wonderful little country in the Summer of 1934, it will be necessary for me to disclose a little of my personal history.

Thirty years ago I was a teacher of Science in London Collegiate Institute when I received an invitation to apply for the position of Professor of Nature Study at the Macdonald Institute at Guelph. My appointment to the work brought me into the service of the Ontario Agricultural College to help in bringing into effect the ideals of one of the greatest men that this country, in my opinion, ever had, namely the late James W. Robertson. Though born and reared in Scotland he was a great Canadian and second only to Ryerson in his ambitions for the best sort of schools and the best sort of education for the country folk of Ontario and the other Canadian Provinces.

There will be many old-timers in Harriston and Minto Township who will remember him as the manager of the Cotswold and other neighboring cheese factories in the early 80's. He made Harriston his headquarters and was intimate with the Mc-Killops and Coplands. At that time he represented a firm of British Public health, more humane meth- Cheese Importers. - Afterwards he ods of distributing relief and an ef- became the first Dominion Dairy to blame his parents, his community Commissioner and in that capacity or his family. put 'Canadian Cheese "on the map.'

as he did, and sensing the inade- ing to call the police. quacy of our school system to meet those needs, he conceived the idea of establishing a new sort of Country Teachers' Training School at Guelph in association with the Agricultural College where he had been at one time an instructor in the Dairy Department.

Sir William Macdonald, the mil lionaire tobacco, manufacturer Montreal furnished Prof. Robertson with the necessary funds and School was named the Macdonald Institute. But I have never ceased to believe in Robertson's ideas and ideals - and some day they will be accepted by Ontario country folk. So I prophesy.

Those of us who had a hand in that "Macdonald Movement" thirty years ago heard a great deal of Denmark. That land of the Vikings was held before us as an ideal for Canadian schoolmasters to emulate. The wonderful accomplishments in cooperation amongst Danish farmers were, we were told, due largely to their system of rural schools. The "Macdonald Movement" and Denmark were parts of the same idea.

What Denmark had done, we could do, we foolishly thought. In 1914, just at the time of the outbreak of the Great War, we had all the Ontario School Inspectors at Guelph for a week to be instructed by Dr. Foght about the Danish system. But nothing came of it. I sup-
