Tree Gives Wine

CHICAGO .- A tale of trees that yield "luscious red wine" was brought back from the tropical jungles of Lower Mexico by Llewelyn Williams, curator of botany at the Field Museum.

He spent six months exploring the wild region and returned with the largest collection of wood specimens ever gathered there as a reward for treks through forest lands infested by snakes, jaquars and mosquitoes, which "worked" day and night

The "whoopee" tree is a species of palm. The natives chop it down, cut a small trough in the trunk, cover it with leaves and let it stand for two days. When they return, the trough is filled with a red wine, formed from fermentation of the

Williams called it "delicious".

Republic of Monrovia Fears White Ambition

MONROVIA, Liberia-West Africa negro republic, which originated in the efforts of philanthropists to provide a home for freed American slaves, has just celebrated its 90th anniversary. One cloud darkened Liberia's horizon-fears that Germany and Poland may seek to expand, economically if not territorily, in the only remaining unfettered State in Africa. German traders have increased their domination of Liberia's largely undeveloped inclustry, and Polish interests have spread counter-campa gns for infin nce. Liberia is rich in soils, foreste, rubber and minerals.

Fieces Huge Quilt With 19,200 Parts

SAN DIEGO, Calif. - Fourteen months of work in "piecing" a quilt of 19,200 separate parts is "no job at all" for Mrs. Lillian Elwards Stead, 83.

Mrs. Stead in 1908 went alone to the bleak Montana plains and homesteaded 160 acres of land.

"It's a sin and a shame the way so many people refuse to work," said Mrs. Stead, who during the World War worked in a garment factory on a power machine, despite her then advanced age. Born in Ohio, a school teacher at the age of 13, Mrs. Stead has crossed the continent "times without number" she says, and has been in Japan, Persia, India and other out-of-theway places.

Mrs. Stead is proud of the fact she is of "real pioneer stock."

Takes Fingerprints From Perished Skin

LONDON-The man who, through fingerprints, has brought more murderers to the gallows than any other police officer at Scotland Yard, has been appointed chief inspector and second in command of the fingerprint department.

He is Detective-Inspector Fred Cherrill, a red-faced, bowler-hatted little man who looks more like a farmer than a fingerprint expert. He has figured in most of the great murder cases of the past 20 years.

Cherrill once obtained fingerprints of a man who had burned the tips off his fingers before committing suicide. The inspector took the perished skin, removed the flesh from the inside and obtained perfect prints-the wrong way round. These were copied and reversed and identified in the United States.

Canadian Actor Is Laid Up

HOLLYWOOD-Raymond Massey, outstanding Toronto actor of stage and screen was in good Samaritan Hospital here with a leg blood clot. His physician said Massey's condition was not serious. He ordered him to stay off his feet for three weeks. Meantime work in the motion picture "Hurricane," in which the Canadian has the leading role, was held up. This fact troubled Massey more than did the enforced stay in bed. He explained he wished to wind up work here as soon as possible in order to return to London where his actresswife, Adrienne Allen, is expecting her third child.

Blood Test Required

CONCORD, N.H. - Sounding the death knell to hasty marriages at various "Gretna Greens" throughout the state, New Hampshire this week was the second state in the union requiring pre-marital medical examinations and blood tests.

. New Hampshire modelled its . law after that of the pioneer state, Connecticut. The bill requires every man and woman applying for a marriage license to present at the license bureau a medical certificate signed by a physician practising under the medical laws of the state of New Hampshire. This certificate must set forth that within 30 days of the date of application for a license, both parties had undergone a blood test.

Dive For Treasure In Hamilton Bay

HAMILTON - Three lifeguards, using home-made diving equipment, unsuccessfully attempted to raise $150 worth of tin ingots dropped into the bay here by longshoremen. Discover Cause Of Tulip Disease

WASHINGTON - Department of Agriculture scientists, after 10 years' research, have shown that the "breaking" of tulips, an age-old puzzle to tulip growers, is caused by two virus infections, working against each other. Dr. McWhorter suggests that gardeners will find it safe to avoid planting lilies that are perpetuated by bulb division among choice seedling lilies that are more likely to be free from infection.

Plane "Bombs" Steamer But With Love Letter

GANANOQUE, Ont. - A United States plane "bombed" the steamer "Champion" and made a direct hit on the foredeck, but the "bomb" turned out to be a love-letter addressed from the flyer to a Toronto girl passenger enroute home aboard the steamer.

Passengers who had been somewhat frightened for a few minutes. turned the "bomb" over to Captain Ross Carnegie, Kingston, who delivered it to the girl, a member of Commissioner J./J. Weldon's party, Clayton, Ont. Friends and strangers all showed immediate interest in the letter, delivered while the Gananoque-Clayton Ferry Company's boat was three miles out of Clayton on its way to Gananoque.

"Calamity City" Got Its Name Easily

Fifty years ago St. Thomas experienced the worst single disaster in its history—the cellision of a Grand Trunk excursion train and a Michigan Central freight train at the M.C.R.-L. and P.S.R. diamond crossing. The trains caught on fire, oil tanks exploded, buildings nearby were in figmes, the result being the loss of 13 lives, the injury and scalding by oil of many more persons and the loss of much property. That disaster, coupled with the tragic death of Barnum and Bailey's elephant, Jumbo, nearly two years previously, and the frequency of fatalities of railwaymen of the city in those days of more hazardous railroading gave St. Thomas the name of "Calamity City," notes the St Thomas Times-Journal. Fifty years and less ago the death by accident of one man was deeply deplored; if two or more were involved it was something to be talked about for months and if, like the wreck-fire-explosion of 1887, was remembered for years.

What a difference today! Fatalities occur so frequently they are forgotten before the victims are buried. A month ago yesterday four people met death in a motor car accident west of St. Thomas, yet we doubt if many people now recollect the circumstances, let alone the names of the victims or how many there were. Almost every Summer week-end in Ontario the number of people killed by motor car accidents exceed the total of those who met death in the St. Thomas disaster of 50 years ago, and we read these figures as calmly as if it was something that was bound to happen.

In the United States on the July 4th week-end more people were killed in traffic accidents than lost their lives in the battle of Bunker Hill, one of the major engagements of the Civil War. Each year sees traffic deaths in the American republic exceeding the number of United States soldiers who died in the Great War.

We could go on and on comparing the steady loss by death through traffic accidents with the single outstanding disasters and battles of a few decades ago and refer to the callousness and disregard shown today with the horror and grief exhibited in those earlier fatalities and calamities. We refrain from doing so, because we realize it would do no good; our words might be forgotten, almost as soon as they were read. We cannot help but marvel, however, at the changed attitude. We are, truly, becoming hardened to the cruelties of the world and indifferent to the sacredness of life.

Growing New Eye In Adult Animal

Scientist Uses Half a Newt's Tail And Lens of Eye

WOODS HOLE, Mass .- The first step in growing a new eye in an adult animal is reported here by Dr. E. O. Schotte of Amherst College in the Collecting Net.

He changed a bit of newt's tail into a crystalline lens. Newts are a species of salamander. These newts were adult, a fact which adds to the impressiveness of the achievement. Newts have the ability to grow new tails when the old ones are cut off. But they never grow new eyes.

Dr. Schotte removed the crystalline lens of a newt's eye and planted in its place a bit of tissue from a newly growing tail. In the eye this tissue continued to grow, but it was no longer new tail. It developed into a "well formed crystalline lens." Two of the changes which took place are known. The eyes of these animals contain an unidentified chemical which has the power to form eyes from sufficiently young embryonic tissue. New tails furnish that kind of tissue.

Newts are not the only animals capable of this. Dr. Schotte did the same thing with eyes of adult tadpoles. The chemical which can fashion an eye is known to exist in many animals.

It appears from Dr. Schotte's report that at least a wide variety of embryonic tissue has the ability to be changed into an eye if put in the right place. This same tissue may develop into a different organ if placed where the chemical that directs the fashioning of the other organ, such as a leg or car, can work on it .--Human beings, it is assumed, develop with aid of these same chemicals before birth.
