

TORONTO FLASHES

(By Walter Davey, 8 Stanton Ave.)
Well, well, it isn't my old friend George Wallace who is celebrating his birthday on May 19. Yes, three, we knew him fifty years ago, also his sister who is now Mrs. John Higgins. Speaking of 50 years ago, some very special events come to our mind. Do you recall our famous brass band, football teams, and the happy L.O.L. 572? How many remember the "Box" and Necktie socials held in the town hall, and the special feature each spring was the man and the flute with the grizzly brown bear on a string making their annual trip. Perhaps some recall Mr. Fetter, the man with the basket of nuts, also Paddy Connor, and the occasional show which came to our village.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Feaster visited us the other day.
Carson Pollock, nearly killed in a car accident some days ago, was a special friend of ours, and a resident of Island Grove.
After sixteen weeks we have been ordered to again stand on our pins aided with two strong sticks, or canes. Its just like starting all over again, but we suppose we will learn.
Glad to learn that Mrs. LaFraugh of Stouffville is now in Toronto at the home of her brother Alex. Brown.
Joe Carroll and his wife, a daughter of Alfred Pugh of Stouffville are preparing to move to Pape and Queen where they will carry on a live coal and wood business and ice for the summer use.

Andrew Kerr, Whitby, was in our town the other day.
Goodwood calling! It's Jack Rae and he means just what he said in last week's paper. You didn't see it? Well see page 5, col. 5, and watch this week's paper too.
These sunshine days will be welcomed by George Morganson and John McCullough, K.C., both of whom need the added healing rays of Old Saul.
William Davey, Ottawa, was in the city last week.
We read last week of a coming Cemetery decoration day near Stouffville. This reminds us of the Goodwood event not far distant. Now if your back yard is over crowded, just take the surplus to our City of the Dead. They will be appreciated there. Let the correspondent know, and through him arrangements may be made for the pick-up. Besides, we need a few seats. Folks like to rest comfortably after perhaps a walk to the cemetery, and the odd bench would be appreciated.

NOT JEALOUS SAYS K.C.

C. W. Bell, K.C., ex-M.P., a brilliant criminal lawyer who died at his home in Hamilton on Feb. 8, at the age of 61, had a keen sense of humor. After making liberal bequests to his son and two daughters he stated in his will he hoped he had made it so clear that even a judge could understand it, and in providing an annual income of $3,000 out of his estate of $113,925 for his widow, in the event of her remarriage, he added the proviso: "This is not to be construed as indicating any resentment on my part of her remarrying, but because any man she may marry should at least be able to keep himself if he is not prepared to go out and work for her as I always have."

WHAT MEN HAVE DONE

There was a report of a debate in a paper a few days ago, and the topic was: "Resolved that men are not so easily swayed by fashion as women." It was recorded that the side which upheld the conservatism of men won by a small margin. It would have been an interesting thing to have heard, and we have little idea of what points were scored to make it appear that man had charged so little in the matter of selecting raiment.
Truth is the male section of any community has followed a good many ideas. Time was when he parted his hair in the middle and then caused it to rest on his brow in a short of swooping design. Who started that we never heard, but it is a fact that he at once had many disciples.
About that time there arrived the era of the tight trousers. They were a trifle hard on those whose legs were a bit warped at the knees, but few there were who were not seized with the trend toward the tight trousers. And they were very tight. One could hardly pull them on over a pair of socks, but once they were on there was the immediate feeling of assurance that they would remain so.
Hard on the heels of that came the day of the pointed shoe. Then it was that man who had always boasted of freedom with which his pedal extremities were enmeshed worshipped at a new altar. His feet may have been broad and squat and comfortable, but they had to conform to style and make their way, aided by shoehorn and stretcher and much effort into shoes which came to points so definitely marked that they could in emergency be used for a screw driver. And in those shoes man grew corners, bunions and blisters.
Come to think of it there was also the reign of the high collar which continued its circular and enfolding trend under the chin without a sign of relinquishing the splendid height to which it had been born. In them there was no comfort, but men wore them because some person had started the rumor that such should be done.
It may be a little dim by this time, but it is possible to recall the day when men wore button shoes, and when the things were new it was necessary to use so effeminate an article as a buttonhook before one was able to walk forth properly dressed. He also passed through the age of velvet and broadcated vests. It may be the debaters put up a good case for man, and successfully advanced the plea that his powers of resistance were always high when new apparel hove in sight. Truth seems to be that man has turned many a sharp corner in efforts to make himself presentable. The ladies may have gone him one better but certainly not two.
