

CONTRADICTORY EVIDENCE ALTONA ROBBERY

that Bennett told her mother not to move and asked where her father was. She said she told him her father was out at the rear of the premises and he then fastened the two doors at the back of the room. Miss Madill testified. She alleged that Bennett held a gun in his left hand, down at his side, and that at this point he said he needed twenty-five dollars for a summons and that if he didn't get it, "It was going through here," (pointing his finger at his temple) Miss Madill stated that she saw Ough's back as he went out the door after Bennett, "When Bennett started for the till Ough started for the door," she related. She said that she had not seen her cousin for some three years previous.

Mrs. Madill had not seen Ough as she was lying down in the room at the back, but corroborated the rest of her daughter's testimony. She stated that after Bennett had left, Olive came out to her and said "Jack's been in and emptied the till again."

Oliver Madill said that he had been working at the rear of the premises and heard voices but thought it was just some customers in the store.

Bennett was called to the stand by Duncan B. McIntyre, Whitby, counsel for Ough, and told court that on the two occasions that Ough had driven him out to Altona he had told his friend that he was going to borrow money from his relatives. He said that he and Ough had attended school together, and that during several years when he was in the States he had not seen Ough. "I lied to Dick and said that if he would drive me up I'd get some money from my uncle," said Bennett, who stated that he had never told Ough about any of the thefts. "I had a gun—if you call it a gun—there was no barrel on it and the bore was absolutely useless," he said, maintaining that he brought the gun back from the States and put it in one of the side pockets of Ough's car. He was carrying it on the day of the last Altona robbery without Ough's knowledge, he alleged. He also stated that on the night of the Palais Royale hold-up Ough dropped him off at the corner of Roncesvalles and Queen streets in Toronto, and knew nothing of his doings for the balance of the evening. He admitted owing Ough money and said he had paid this back, and had paid Ough six dollars on the occasion of the first trip to Altona when he stole the ten dollars. He had paid most of the balance since, he said, but persisted that Ough knew nothing of the crimes. He stated that he had been intoxicated on June 2nd, when he went out for the last time but that Ough had not known what was going on. He, Ough, and Ough's girlfriend were in the car, he alleged, and after Ough followed him to the store, he told his friend to go back and wait in the car as he wanted to talk to his uncle he said.

Ough admitted driving Bennett out to Altona on May 29th, and June 2nd, but said he knew nothing of the proceedings, and did not know that the money subsequently paid back to him by Bennett had been stolen, though he admitted receiving $55, from his friend.

Sergeant A. Lee of the Toronto police force told the court that he had arrested the two men in Toronto and found Bennett with tape over his eyes and wearing a pair of dark glasses. Ough had also had a pair on his person.

"The only particle of evidence that in any way suggests that the accused knew anything of this offence is that of the first witness," observed defense counsel McIntyre, who stated that the evidence was as much consistent as it was with guilt.

"The most important evidence before the court is that of Olive Madill," stated His Worship, "her evidence is quite clear-cut and to the point and was not broken down in any way by counsel for the defense. The only contradictory evidence is that of Bennett and Ough and I cannot place much credence in their stories.

Mrs. Anna Schell, who is at present staying with her daughter Mrs. Lloyd Moyer of Stouffville wishes to thank all those who so kindly helped to build the new barn on her premises at Gormley, owing to the old one being destroyed by fire. The carpenters were Clarence Steckley and Jesse Steckley. An old-time bee was arranged by Henry Heise, a nephew of Mrs. Schell, when neighbors and friends came to help with the building. Fourteen men were on hand June 29 and eight the next day. The barn was completed except for making two doors. Meals for the men were served at the home of Mrs. Clara Wideman. Work was somewhat delayed in the afternoon of the first day when a phone call came to Henry Heise that one of his horses was sinking in a bog-hole. Three carloads of neighbors hurried to his farm and rescued the animal with the aid of ropes.
