JUDGEMENT OF COUNTY COUNCILS SEEM SOUND

The judgment of the majority of county councils in Ontario in supporting the Live Stock Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture in its efforts to have every county in Ontario made a T.B. restricted area for cattle has proven sound in view of the recent action taken by the United States Department of Agriculture governing cattle being shipped to that country.

These regulations in substance state all Canadian cattle being exported to the U.S.A. other than those for immediate slaughter, must have a qualified veterinarian's certificate showing they have been tested within 30 days of date of shipment and found free of bovine tuberculosis. This however does not apply to cattle exported directly from an accredited area. It means that a veterinarian's certificate is not required for cattle in the Ontario counties already tested and the owners will be able to export freely.

The reason given by American officials for their new law is that practically all United States cattle are tested and they wish to maintain this status and keep T.B. out of their herds.

This new ruling will probably require the testing of at least 100,000 Canadian cattle annually sent to the U.S.A. for feeding purposes.
