Notes and Comments

From the best opinion we could gather in Calgary Premier Aberhart may be "slipping." We brought up the subject before the professional man down to the man in the barber shop on our visit there. The promise of $25.00 a month seems now to be accepted as an impossibility by many Albertans. However, while the writer was in Calgary announcement that within a little while the government would introduce a form of credit to be used by the people instead of bank money was made by Hon. E. C. Manning, provincial secretary, when he addressed approximately 1,000 people at the third annual "Democracy Day" celebration of the Social election victory on August 22, 1935. The celebration was a picnic at St. George's Island, Calgary.

Mr. Manning said the government was steadily preparing its interim Social Credit program and would "ask the people to take the credit of our own and use it instead of money" He also expressed the hope that when the time came in the near future that the people would show as much faith in the credit of the province as they now do in the pieces of colored paper issued by the banks.

Dollars and Tragedy

Perhaps it's true that the world is rather a mercenary place. In the morning papers it was announced that Daniel George Dodge heir to automobile millions, badly injured by a dynamite explosion, had jumped from the boat which was taking him to a hospital and was drowned in Georgian Bay.

In the afternoon papers of the same day writers were busy supplying information regarding how much of the fortune was likely to go to his widow, a girl from Gore Bay, to whom Dodge was married only two weeks ago. Before the day was over they had it all figured out that Mrs. Dodge would get no part of the original fortune, but she would get her share of anything which had been owned privately by her husband.

Truth is there was much more space taken up telling how she was likely to come out financially than there was in mentioning the tragedy which blasted the married life of a girl. Possibly the news was what the people wanted to read, but it is hard to get away entirely from the idea that there was something rather cold-blooded about it.

Every wife knows that her husband's views on home buying are simple. That he favors the local merchants in preference to the far away "bargain" dealer, she may attribute to the well known masculine characteristic which gave birth to the phrase. "We men must stick together." Perhaps he doesn't say a great deal on the subject of home buying in case he should have this exacting responsibility wished on him as a lesson to teach him to mind his own business—that of earning money to keep the home, but he is pleased, nevertheless, when his wife shares all his trade among the local merchants. And there is reason for him feeling content when she does so. He knows that when times are good he earns more money. He also knows that a tight money situation in his own community can be helped by concentrated buying through local channels, so that the profit is saved for the community instead of wasted in some far away, disinterested market. He knows that when the local merchants are getting the maximum trade from the district, they, in turn, are spending freely in the community, and so easing the "tight money" predicament. If you ask your husband why he likes to trade at the local store he will explain in more or less detail that in doing so we are creating new community wealth.

The Remedy Is Ours

From Europe comes news of a new kind of demolition bomb, which is being dropped on Spanish towns with great success. It has a long spike at its nose; when it hits spike first, and explodes before it gets below the surface of the earth. As a result, instead of making a big hole in the ground it blows down every house, tree fence and human being within a wide radius, and so is far more destructive than the old type of bomb.

Now when you stop to think that every great nation on earth will presently be equipping itself with such bombs in carload lots, that planes to carry them farther and faster than ever before are coming off the production lines in dizzying numbers, and that the will to use the things is steadily mounting, you can see that this race of ours might very well keep its fingers crossed when it does any looking to the future.

A WORD FOR THE YOUNG PEOPLE

We hear plenty of unpleasant things said these days about the young people. Some of them are true but most of them are grossly exaggerated. We saw a report recently of an organization which loudly proclaimed that the young people were going to the dogs, and that something drastic should be done about it.

Now for our part we think the young people are just as good, and probably a whole lot better, than they were years past. Certainly they are frank and sincere, but isn't that a whole lot better than being so hypocritically prim and precise? The young people today have double the temptations to face that any previous generation faced. They have greater problems to solve and they face them with a lot more courage than they are given credit for.

You occasionally hear an old person say that the young people are scatter-brained, and yet glance over the list of university results for this section last week revealed that with the greatly increased studies the young people are still keeping in step with progress. Right in this small section of Ontario we have students passing difficult university courses with honors. We see young men who have left high school only a few years holding responsible positions, and conducting them with credit to themselves and their communities.

No, frankly, we don't think the young folk are going to the dogs. They may cuss a little more, and perhaps even drink a little more, but their hearts and their minds are right and they'll keep the old ship on a far straighter course than some of us imagine.

Be Patient and Look to God

Tribune Hears Alberta Premier Declare Social Credit Not a Dead Issue.

Calgary, August 21—Visitors to Alberta from Ontario naturally wish to hear Premier Wm. Aberhart, and the opportunity came to us on a Sunday afternoon when this man who has stirred all Canada and caused Rt. Hon. W. L. M. King more than one headache, spoke at the Calgary Prophetic Institute, a Baptist church, built wholly through the initiative of the Premier.

A heavy rain storm early in the afternoon is believed to have prevented many from attending the rally for it was estimated there were less than one thousand in the big building with seating accommodation for 1,400 people.

"I trust all our followers will remember that time and conviction are necessary. Be patient and look to the God in Heaven and in due time he will perform," declared the premier.

3-5 Years "To Start"
 Progress for the Welfare of the people could only be accomplished by "time and convictions," said the premier. No great reform was ever accomplished in three years. It usually took from three to five years to start a big reform movement. The great things of life are produced by gradual change. The more the people place their trust in God the faster will be the progress.

"You have to get to the place where you say 'to whom else can we go' and then we will get someplace. When you come to the place where the application of social credit principles is the only solution, it will be possible. I can only repeat what I said three years ago, 'if you haven't suffered enough yet, it is your God-given right to suffer some more.'"

Although this was a religious service western methods apparently are not adverse to adding a little bit of political talk into one's address, and so it seemed to be well received when the Premier fired a broadside at E. L. Gray, provincial leader of the Liberal party in Alberta. After discussing and condemning Mr. Gray's program of roads, social services, etc. Mr. Aberhart talked his own platform, but he never forgot Mr. Gray.

Need Purchasing Power
 He knew that the people needed more purchasing power so that they could enjoy the things they needed and the government was trying to give the people the necessary purchasing power, Mr. Aberhart said. Three years ago the people of Alberta had decided that Christian principles must be applied to everyday life. Today the people are still of the same opinion that the old "dog-eat-dog" debt creating system must be abolished.

The question was "would it destroy itself or would it destroy civilization? Will it be an orderly change or will it be chaos? The application of the principles of Jesus Christ is the only hope for the people," he said.

"If you persist in supporting the present system, everything you love will be in danger," he declared.

He said he wanted to see the will of the people prevail and did not want to see a few get all the pleasures of life while the big majority were suffering in misery and want. Referring to the Great War which had been called a fight for democracy, he said it would never be paid for. "Surely we have learned the lesson that we cannot get true democracy by force of arms for 'they that take the sword shall perish by the sword.'"

"Democracy is an attitude of mind and not an accomplishment of action," he said and added that if "you don't care a snap of the fingers for the other fellow you cannot have true democracy." There could be no true democracy without the "live and let-live policy for Christianity."

"I'll either go all the way with Russia or put Christianity where it belongs in everyday life" declared the premier.

clared the premier. "Democracy our great objective" was a good slogan for the anniversary day.

New Industries
 Rev. E.L.J. Hughes, Institute pastor, who assisted the premier in the service read a letter from High River in which the writer said he "wanted to take the laugh from the faces of those who think that Social Credit is at a dead end." He did not agree with those who said the premier and the government had done nothing. He said there was small attendance at the recent meeting addressed by Mr. Gray, Liberal leader and ridiculed Mr. Gray's statement that it was due to harvest operations as the harvest had not commenced at that time, the writer said.

Heise Gathering Considers Past

L. B. Heise Host to Seventy Claiming His Father as Ancestor

Descendants of the late Christopher Heise spent an enjoyable evening last week on the lawn of Mr. L. B. Heise, the only surviving son of the Heise family. The event was in honor of their guests, Mr. Wendell Byer, of Hamlin, Kansas, who is a great-grandson of Christopher Heise and a grandson of the late Annie Heise Byer, who was a sister of L. B. Heise. The Byer family moved to Kansas about fifty years ago, and has been extensively engaged in farming.

Mr. Clarence Heise was toastmaster for the seventy guests. Speakers related early history of the Heises, and Mr. C. E. Heise, Corresponding Secretary for the Heise's in Canada, reminded that three Heise brothers came to Canada from Pennsylvania with their families. First came Christian Heise and family in 1804, settling at Heise Hill on Lot 33, Concession 3, Markham Township. Mr. Joseph Heise now occupies that homestead. Mr. Jacob Heise came in 1805, settling at Victoria Square on Lot 26, Concession 3, Markham Township. Mr. O. L. Heise occupies a part of his original farm, and Mr. Joseph Heise came in 1806 and settled on Lot 25, Concession 3, Markham Township. This Heise family later changed its name to Heisey.

The Heise records show that the first Heise came to Pennsylvania about 1728, and a Heise family coat-of-arms dating back to the fifteenth century has been located; a facsimile is in the possession of the American Secretary of the Heise Clan.

POLICE TO CLAMP DOWN ON "SUCKER" GAMES AT FALL FAIRS

Provincial Police will use their own judgment in closing down games at Ontario fall fairs, Hon. P. M. Dewar, Ontario Agriculture Minister, said in an interview.

Betting, crooked wheels or any booth that tried "to clean out a sucker" would be promptly closed.

Provincial Police have co-operated in the past, but they have hesitated to close down a booth without consulting the fair management," said Mr. Dewar. "Now they are being told to close down immediately without reference to the management any place they think is not operating properly."

Mr. Dewar said bingo games would not be affected.

EVERY TOWN ITS MOTOR CAR!

(From the Kincardine News)
 Thirty years ago the editor of the Walkerton Telescope sharpened his quill and gave his readers this hotshot: "In Kincardine one day last week an automobile frightened a horse, the horse ran away, the driver was thrown out of the rig and his leg was broken. It is becoming apparent from incidents like this that something will have to be done about these automobiles. For several years past the farmers in the vicinity of Toronto have been agitating for a law to restrain automobiles from using the public highways, but so far have not been able to accomplish anything." And then the editor gets real mad. "Gradually," according to this 1908 issue of the Telescope, "the nuisance is becoming more general. Every town in the province has its automobile now and some of them have more than one. The machines go scooting through the country and no road is sacred to them. Horses that are easily enough controlled in the presence of a railway go crazy at the sight of an automobile and incidents such as the above are happening all over the country."
