Democracy and Daylight Saving

To the Editor: I beg you to allow me space to voice my opinion in the affirmative in regard to Daylight Saving for the village of Stouffville. In your last issue the negative side was presented.

On Monday, April 24, the business men discussed different topics. The revee of the village officiated. The only headway made was in the discussion of Daylight Saving Time for Stouffville. All who were there voiced their opinion for and against. The majority were in favor. The Reeve said he was opposed, but if the majority of the business men were in favour he was in favour of passing a by-law. He appointed a committee of four to canvas the business men, and have them sign a petition in favour or against. The petition was thoroughly presented to the business men which secured a large majority in favour of Daylight Saving Time.

The petition was ably presented to the Council by Mr. F. L. Button, and left for their decision. The Council, after discussing the petition, refused to grant the wishes of the majority, and so the minority rules so far. I was unfortunate enough to be one of the committee to be appointed by the Reeve to circulate the petition, but emphatically refused to act in the first place, then after much persuasion reluctantly consented. We certainly exceeded our expectations.

I am, and I think I speak for the majority of those who signed in favour, quite satisfied to abide by a majority even if it does not meet with my way of thinking. But as it stands now I am very far from satisfied with the Council's action.

The only solution that I can see now to settle the question amicably when the minority of business men and Council rules is to circulate a petition to all ratepayers and business tax payers to secure enough tax payers to sign and force an election where every taxpayer will have an opportunity to cast his ballot for or against. Then this council will be forced to abide by the majority, as our laws are still democratic and cannot be treated in a dictatorial way by anyone.

It would consist of a straw vote, which would mean that the clerk of the village would prepare a ballot for each taxpayer, mail him one and have him sign and return by a given date. It would only mean a little work for our clerks. I don't think they would mind as the council is quite strong on the clerk end. The cost would only be printing the ballots and mailing.

In the preceding issue of this paper the negative side was discussed. One objection was the picture show would suffer. I do not agree with that argument. I think the picture show would benefit from the surrounding towns who would patronize it more. The way it is now the farmer usually arrives in town too late for the first show, and too early for the second show, which means they see the last half of the main picture then wait to see the first half. As to it being inconvenient for the farmer to do his shopping I don't agree. The farmers with very few exceptions can have their shopping done by the new time as well as by the old, and it is not necessary for the farmer to go on Daylight Saving Time because the Village does. One propaganda statement the objectors resort to is we are living in a farming community and must cater to the farmer. We are not anymore in a farming community than other towns around us, that have Daylight Saving. I think the inconvenience is imaginary. The old slogan one hour in bed before midnight is worth two hours' after, and we would all have better health.

I am in favour of making things as pleasant for the farmer as anyone. I think there is no one more deserving than the farmer, who needs every consideration that can come his way, but who usually gets the least returns for his efforts. The farmer is the business man in the majority of cases that I have received my bread and butter from directly, and which I appreciate. Any of us who do it directly, get it indirectly.

If the farmer could be more prosperous, we would all benefit from it. Until farming conditions and prices are improved we will all suffer accordingly.

The business man in the village who says he is not in favour of Daylight Saving Time because it will inconvenience the farmer does not consider that closing the stores every night in the week but one part of the year and every Wednesday afternoon closed is much more of an inconvenience to the farmer. I am not opposed to this system, and the farmer has got used to it, and doesn't find it any great inconvenience. They will find the same thing will apply to Daylight Saving and find it is not necessary for them to change their time.

We are practically encircled with other towns on Daylight Saving Time. There is not one of them that would want to go back to old time, and they are in the same circumstances that we are. The majority of business men canvassed that were opposed to Daylight Saving Time made the statement that if the Council would pass a by-law closing the stores at a certain hour they would certainly be in favour of Daylight Saving Time. So why not try it for one year at least.

Yours sincerely, Delbert Holden
