About 1 p.m. on Friday, the barn of W. T. Wallace of this village caught fire and was completely destroyed. The fire truck which was apparently not in running condition had to be towed to the scene, but was unable to cope with the blaze. Fortunately the wind was in the right direction and kept the fire away from other nearby buildings. The loss was partly covered by insurance. Cause of the fire is unknown.

Thieves attempted to break into Alf Mole's establishment on the four corners on Saturday night, but as far as can be ascertained no goods were taken. The intruders broke the lock on the gas pump and then slashed several holes in the front door. Going north they attempted another break-in at Brignall's Barber Shop and Pool Room. The window and sash was smashed in the front window, and also a big glass show case. It is believed that the thieves were frightened away by the Brignall dog before further damage was done. Constable Miller is investigating.

The hydro is extending its lines east and north of here steadily. We learn this week that H. Walsh, Stouffville electrician, is starting on a contract to wire a house of Chas. Cooper's (not our Charlie) at Myrtle, also a large barn contract there on the Johnston

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon of Windsor are spending a few days here and at Brooklin. We are glad to see Marie back, as we all have missed her.

We feel we owe our teachers, Miss Fraser and Mr. Lloyd Wagg a vote of thanks for having taken our school children to see the King and Queen. It was no small job. On Monday last to the city went, a lot of folks on a mission bent; Some, all the way, drove their motor car, while others went safely on C.N.R. Then there were some went part each way, and believe it or not, they were forced to stay; till away way on, in the wee small hours. Mother and dad were anxious some, when, after midnight, he hadn't come. Now if you want to know more of the fact perhaps you'll have to inquire from Jack. Not meaning Jack Reid, oh no dear, no; but he's the guy that told us so. The motto, here now, we'll simply state, when you go again, try and not be late. For the C.N.R. comes on the tick. To miss it so far might make you sick. Signed, Rhymer

May 22, 1939, was not only an eventful day in the history of Toronto when their Majesties paid the city a visit, but it was also an important milestone in the life of Mr. John Latcham who celebrated his eightieth birthday. Mr. Latcham was born in Glasgow, Ontario, in 1859 has spent his entire eighty years in the Township of Uxbridge. On Sunday, his family which now constitutes three sons and three daughters tendered him a complimentary dinner the main feature of which was the traditional birthday cake.

The Wm. Knox farm a half mile north of Brougham has changed hands. The new owner is a German refugee driven from his land by Hitler during the persecution of the Jews. Many of these strangers have considerable means which they must have preserved by having it in safe places in foreign lands in anticipation of just what has happened. The Knox farm has a good house and a new barn. The reported sale price is $13,000, and the sale was made through the Purcell agency, Toronto.

About twenty of the neighbours practised the Golden Rule last Friday afternoon when they rallied together and helped Edwin Hoover with his spring work. Virtue is its own reward. The big day is over! The scholars from our school were transported to Riverdale Park in Frank Bruels big truck to view the Royal Procession. As they journeyed along the streets of Toronto, the crowds cheered, them so heartily that Mr. Bruels thought that they surely must have mistaken him for Papa Dionne bring his 'kids' to Toronto. Sunday was Temperance Sunday, and we all enjoyed an object lesson given by the pastor on "The effects of alcohol on the human body." Mr. Lehman demonstrated by placing a piece of bread in each of two glasses, one contained water the other alcohol. Immediately the bread in the water began to dissolve, but in the alcohol it stayed hard and indigestible. If alcohol has this effect on food in the glass—what about the stomach?
