TORONTO-FLASHERS

The Goodwood Library needs your support. How about it? Mr. and Mrs. George Lee in Aurora one day recently. Miss Dora Todd was back home for the weekend. Mr. and Mrs. Dudley White and children, Altona, were guests of Mrs. Forsyth in Stouffville one day last week. Very sorry to hear that our friend Dan Baker, now living in Goodwood is not enjoying very good health. We hope for his early recovery. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Latcham visited Goodwood on a recent Sunday. Everybody likes to get back to the country. The Tribune till the end of the year 40c. Get in now and get the most for your money. Mrs. Heyward who has been visiting her brother Chas. Lee has returned to her home in Ardbeg. Mrs. Heyward is a Tribune reader. Our friend F. Haight enjoyed a visit from his daughter and children who live in Bowmanville. Mr. and Mrs. A. Brown motored to Audley for Thanksgiving and the scribe with his family were at Island Grove. Extensive alterations are being made to Chas. Feasby's residence, which when completed will be another big improvement in Goodwood.

A Toronto lady who does not visit the old home of Goodwood very often stated that the condition of the municipal hall was rather disappointing. A little improvement would certainly not hurt the pocketbook and would put things in the condition they should be for so important a structure.

Mrs. Roy Wagg is expected home this week with her wee baby son.

Sorry Mr. Feren is not feeling too well. Hope he will soon be O.K.

The five new library subscribers who are entitled to the gift from your Correspondent are, Joe Forsyth, Mr. Walters, Norman Wagg, Grace Wagg, Mrs. Charles Feasby.

Birthday greetings to the following who were born between October 8 and 11: Annie Baker, Gordon Todd, Mrs. R. White, Mr. Ralph White, Mrs. Russel Dowswell, Laura Hill, all of Goodwood, and Adam Stewart, Toronto, also Mrs. Dudley White, Altona.

One day recently the correspondent, with his family and brother motored to Goodwood, visited the cemetery, lunched at Siloam school grounds, and thoroughly enjoyed the wonderful autumn scenery. Oh yes, and we were served with gas at the new Rae Garage, where we received the pleasant smile of mine host Richard Rae.

Many of our readers will recall the Davis family who for many years lived on the farm just south of Uxbridge cemetery on the Stouffville road. Just now one of the sons, George Davis, is visiting friends in the neighborhood. It is fifty years since he was last seen in his native township, and of course, will find most of the folks entire strangers. However he is a cousin of Mrs. Fred Silversides of Stouffville and brother-in-law to the Uxbridge barber, Jack Beaver. His home is in Western Canada.

Big Event at Goodwood On Monday, Oct. 2 the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Lee was vibrant with laughter and merriment on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary. From early morning until late in the evening friends assembled, to extend their personal good wishes. We were present in the evening, and when John Reid handed us the register, there we read the names of so many many whom we had known for fifty years, back in childhood days. Toronto arrived at 8.30 and found the home filled, yes sir, roughly speaking, packed to the muzzle. There were all those people whom we knew when a small lad running the streets of the village, and what warm, pleasant feeling to mingle together again. Floral bouquets adorned the home and the gifts were beautiful. Luncheon was served by the daughters and younger descendants. There were Mrs. McNelly, Mrs. Gearing, Mrs. George Lee (Bobcaygeon), Mrs. Mitchell, Toronto, and others assisting.

During the evening the scribe called on Mr. John Widdfield to speak, also Messrs. John Reid Chas. Watson, John Ashenhurst Alex. Brown, C. Naylor, Mrs. A. Johnson, Mrs. Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Sheehy, Ed. Davis, Mrs. Geo. Lee and Mrs. Tweddle, the school teacher Mr. Wagg and others.

We were glad to greet Mrs. Robt. Hamilton of Stouffville also Mrs. L. Wagg, the latter officiating at the organ. Lack of space forbids publishing the names on the register, there were so many, not only from Goodwood, and Toronto, but other places in the province.

Rosedale Mr. Whalen's wagon broke down near Roseville when taking grain to the mill, so he just borrowed Mr. Walter James wagon to complete the trip. Big Corn Cutting day at Mr. Fred Johnston's.

If you wish good things to eat—Well call on Dorothy Johnston of Roseville district. Glad to hear Miss Millie Stinger came home on Wednesday.

Mr. George Stewart shipped pigs last week. He has 6 acres of potatoes so his neighbours helped him to pick them. Mrs. Annie Johnston, Miss Dorothy Johnston, Jim & Russell Johnston also Mr. Oke and Willis Whalen were assistants.

Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for October 15 THE TEMPTATION OF JESUS

Golden Text—For we have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin.—Heb. 4:15

THE LESSON AS A WHOLE

By H. A. Ironside, Litt.D. Pastor Moody Church, Chicago

As we consider the solemn and important subject of our Lord's temptation, we need to remember that he is both God and man in one person. While as truly man as if he had never been God, he is yet as truly God as if he had never become man, and therefore we must not think of him as merely man on probation, as Adam was in the garden of Eden.

The testing of Jesus in the wilderness was not to see whether he would sin, but to prove that he was absolutely the sinless one and therefore the fit substitute for those who were both sinners by nature and in practice.

When the question is asked (Innocently enough, perhaps), "Could Jesus have sinned," we need to consider ere answering in the affirmative what would have happened if he had sinned. He was not two persons, but one. He was the Son of the Father with two natures, the human and the divine. These natures could never be separated after he became incarnate. One nature could not act in opposition to the other; therefore the thought of sin in connection with him is utterly abhorrent. He could say, "The prince of this world cometh, and hath nothing in me" (John 14:30). There was no traitor lurking within. From the moment of his birth he was "that holy thing" (Luke 1:35). The temptation proved him to be all that God the Father said he was: his beloved Son, in whom he had found all his delight (Matt. 3:17).

The Historical Setting According to accepted tradition, the temptation of Jesus took place in a very desolate part of the wilderness of Judea overlooking the city of Jericho, known for centuries since as Mount Quarantania. Scripture does not tell us definitely. The time was probably A. O. 27, early in the year, very soon after our Lord's baptism.

Verse by Verse Matt. 4:1—"Led up of the spirit." It was not merely our Lord's human spirit (though as man he had a true spirit and soul and body) but it was evidently the Holy Spirit (see Mark 1:12) who literally drove or impelled Jesus to go into the wilderness to meet and overcome the mighty foe of God and man, the Devil. He must cast out the strong man ere he would spoil his goods (Matt. 12:29).

Verse 2—"Fasted forty days and forty nights." There are mystical numbers in Scripture. Forty is the number of testing. Note its connection with Moses (Exod. 24:18; 34:28), with the spies and Israel (Num. 13:25; 14:34), with Elijah (1 KINGS 19:8), Ezekiel (Ezek. 4:6) and Jonah (Jonah 3:4), also the ministry on earth of the risen Lord (Acts 1:3).

Verse 3—"If thou be the Son of God." Satan did not deny his deity. He cast a doubt on it and offered a test. Bread from stones was not God's way of sustaining his Son. It was the Devil's attempt to appeal to the desire of the flesh.

Verse 4—"Man shall not live by bread alone." The Lord answers with Scripture, quoting from Deuteronomy 8:3. It is not so necessary to feed the body as to feed the soul on the Word of God.

Verse 5—"Setteth him on a pinnacle of the temple." Whether in vision or in reality we are not exactly told. But the lesson is the same in either case. It was the effort to arouse the pride of the natural heart: to astonish the multitude by leaping from the pinnacle and being upheld in midair by angelic though unseen hands. But nothing so spectacular was in God's plan for authenticating the claims of his Son.

Verse 6—"It is written." Here it is the adversary who dares to quote Scripture, and that to the one who is the object of all Scripture. But craftily he omits an essential part—"In all thy ways" (see Psa. 91:11, 12). It was not part of the ways of the holy Son of God to put the Father to a needless test.

Verse 7—"It is written again." Jesus does not argue with the Devil but meets the misquoted and garbled portion of Scripture with another plan, definite word from the Book of God.

Verse 8—"Sheweth him all the kingdoms." Again we are faced with the question of vision or reality. No mountain in Palestine—even lordly Mt. Hermon in the north—was of sufficient height to permit such a view. It seems best to consider it as a vision. But the lesson is obvious. It was the attempt to appeal to the lust of the eye.

Verse 9—"All these things will I give thee, if..." This sight of magnificence and glory might well have turned the head of any mere mortal, but it was presented in vain to Jesus. He should indeed obtain the Kingdom some day, but from Satan's. And the cross must come first. Satan offered the Kingdom without the cross. This our Lord could only refuse.

Verse 10—"Get thee hence, Satan." The enemy has done his worst to break down the loyalty of the Son to the Father. Now he must give up the unequal contest and retire, a defeated foe. God has strictly forbidden his people to worship any creature, no matter how highly exalted. Worship is for God alone. Satan has tested the Lord on every point whereby sin enters the heart of man, and the temptations have but served to bring out in crystal clearness the holiness of his nature and the righteousness of his life.

Verse 11—"The devil leaveth him. . . . angels came." How vivid the contrast! Satan retired, shamed and conquered, though to make one last effort in Gethsemane to assault the soul of Christ. But angels came to minister to their Creator, who had chosen in grace to become for a time a little lower than they, that he might die to redeem sinful men from Satan's power. His temptation had ended victoriously. It was thus the Son of God was vindicated and proved to be the one who alone could take up the cause of fallen man and make peace by the blood of his cross (Col. 1:20).

The Heart of the Lesson

The perfection of Christ's humanity was demonstrated by his temptations as it could not have been manifested in any other way. Adam, the first, was tested in a garden of beauty surrounded by every blessing, and he fell by yielding to the tempter's voice. Adam, the second, was tried in a wilderness among the wild beasts, with all nature apparently arrayed against him, yet he stood like a rock—invulnerable and impeccable—because he was God manifest in flesh. His temptation was like exposing the gold to the acid test—not to find out if it is a precious metal, but to prove that it is really gold and not base metal.

Yet the temptation was very real to Jesus. "He . . . suffered being tempted" (Heb. 2:18). To be brought into such close contact with sin was so revolting it caused him keenest suffering, because of the purity of his human nature, undefiled by Adamic corruption. We suffer as we resist temptation, and so cease from sin (1 Pet. 4:1). In this we may see the contrast between ourselves and him. But having thus been exposed to all that has wrought such havoc in our frail humanity, he, our ever faithful High Priest, is touched with the feeling of our infirmities and stands ready to render help in every hour of need. We are not left to fight our battles alone. He lives to be our victory.
