A heavy snow storm and colder weather rather than a crimp in the holiday spirit of Good Friday. Roads were heavy every where, and most country thoroughfares were blocked. It was fortunate for the rural mail couriers that they had the day off. Of course, as matters stood, most of them would have had to take a holiday. We doubt if a single one of the four routes out to town were open to traffic.

"One by one the old boys of Uxbridge slip away," says the Times of that town, in reporting the death on March 17, of Ben. Vicars, prominent in the early days of baseball in Uxbridge. The death of Chas. Phillips which occurred at Ottawa last week removed a man in the prime of life who as a small boy spent many happy days at the home of his grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. George Silvester who conducted the general store there half a century ago. When Mrs. Larry Hardy of Toronto fell on the city street last week, she did not realize that she received a fracture just above the ankle, and when she jumped up quickly and attempted to run on, the pain was so great when she touched the injured foot to the ground, that she fell a second time, and received another break just below the knee on the same limb. A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alf. Pugh of this town, Mrs. Hardy was running across the road from her home to the store opposite, when she went down on the slippery pavement with such serious results.

It takes The Tribune five to six weeks to reach our longest distance subscriber, Mr. Earl Honsberger at Yelwa, Nigeria, Africa. Last week we received a letter from him remitting his subscription and the letter was five weeks enroute. Mr. Honsberger states in a brief note that the paper reaches them quite regularly, and that they do appreciate it. Yelwa is a good sized town situated on the Niger River. There is a good trade done by river transportation in the export of peanuts, butter, and some cotton. The population is cosmopolitan, with many Island people and Mohammedans. ### WHY HITLER CANNOT WIN

This war was lost for Hitler the moment he hurled his armies against Poland was the claim of Dr. Richard Maresch of Pickering College, when he addressed a gathering here on the subject, "Why Hitler Cannot win," and sponsored by the Senior Institute for their war-work.

Dr. Maresch, who has only been in this country about ten months is an Austrian protestant and has been in close touch with Nazi economic agents and knows of the true situation within the third Reich. He claimed that Hitler's vital problem of the moment was the obtaining of Rumanian oil, without which she cannot move.

As for German-Russian relations, the doctor said that as early as 1936 the possibility of such an alliance was considered a probability.

"Stalin gave away Russia's secret, when he made war on Finland and showed up the internal weaknesses of the country," said Dr. Maresch. The speaker who has spent fifteen years in the Soviet claimed that the country is militarily very weak, and that there is little chance of Russia engaging in another major war.

Concluding his address Dr. Maresch expressed the hope that when this war was won, the allies would make these European people free from the terrible Nazi yoke once and for all. The Germans are not blind to the corruptness of their leaders yet they are powerless to move. If the allies can go in the spirit of Christianity they can make the people understand & appreciate the freedom which we enjoy in this country. Freedom is the greatest thing in the world, but only in its loss do people learn to appreciate it.
