Citizens in Mount Albert are taught to obey the dog bylaw in that village, and when three of them persisted in allowing their canines to roam at large, they were hauled into Newmarket court last week which cost each of them $1.50. Locally the bylaw in this town regarding dogs roaming at large is very well observed, for we have heard of no complaints.

Motoring from Toronto Sunday Lorne Gillion got caught in the furry of the big storm which circled most of the province, and at Adam's corner his car was entangled in a hydro wire that had partly blown down. The illustrated lecture by lantern views given by Mr. Fred Goforth in the Presbyterian Church on Monday evening was greatly appreciated by the number who attended. A son of the great missionary to China, Rev. J. Goforth, he is following in the path of his father in his love and devotion to the Chinese people. Having spent half his life in the Orient Mr. Goforth was able to tell an inside story of life there that was interesting, instructive, and educational. It was a pity that school students had not been out in force to hear the lecturer.

Friday of this week is Victoria Day and a public holiday for all the stores and as many of the working people that can take it. On the death of William IV in the year 1837 Victoria was called to the throne of England and ruled until her death in 1901. She is one of the monarchs whose birthday has been singled out for perpetual commemoration each year. Of course we could not begin to commemorate them all in this fashion for we believe that since 1066 when William I ascended the throne there has been more than 40 rulers. Victoria was the only queen since the day of Queen Ann who ascended the throne at the beginning of the 17th century.
