If you have some clothes the kiddies have outgrown, well, some of the refugee kiddies will be in need, so do your bit towards this War work. By doing so you can help win the war. Sunday last Rev. Mr. Lunau and the Correspondent had the pleasure of meeting two of Goodwood's soldier lads and was it a pleasure! I'll say so.

That tempestuous football game played in Stouffville on July 1st between Claremont and Toronto Cormacks which ended in a tie, is to be played off at Goodwood Sport Day, on August 5. There will be a whopper of a crowd to see this rubber played. The Big Sports day is only two weeks off and under direction of the press agent Fred Middleton, the big posters are now going up informing folks of the full program. Everybody has got to get behind and push this time, so that this big event may continue for years. Jack Rae reports the sporting program all lined up, and boys what racing there will be. Be sure and enter the parade in some form, for the prizes are wonderful, and there are going to be some happy people when the winners are announced. The evening program too, is a wonderful affair in the making. Loud speakers for orchestral music will be heard for any distance desired. HITCH-HIKED 500 MILES IN WAR ZONE

With two suitcases, some chocolate water, and lots of determination, Margaret McCullough, Winnipeg, went from Paris to Lisbon on foot. Aided by soldiers who violated orders to ignore refugees on the roads, and sleeping in fields at night, she got out of France just before the borders were closed when the armistice was signed.

Woodliffe and Warden J. Earl Bales for final approval.

Under the new set-up there will be one chief, two county sergeants, Sidney Barraclough and William Shadwick; one county detective, William Martindale; six first-class constables; two second-class constables, and two third-class constables.

The new appointments to the police force are Edgar Kidd, who has been a recruit on probation for six months, and Edward Major, a member of the Etobicoke police force for several years. William Shadwick was promoted from patrol sergeant to county sergeant while Sidney Barraclough was named county sergeant instead of detective-sergeant. William Martindale was promoted from the rank of acting detective to county detective.

Committee members were of the opinion that the county force was too small to have inspectors, detective-sergeants or staff sergeants or staff sergeants and decided to eliminate all these offices as far as the county department was concerned. In view of this there will be no further promotions beyond the rank of sergeant.

The committee also approved of a more equitable distribution of county officers throughout the 26 municipalities. Constable Hill will have, Constable MacCallum and Constable Major to assist him patrol the lakeshore municipalities of Lake Simcoe, while Constables Fleury, Watt and Wallace will take care of the Aurora, Newmarket and Richmond Hill areas under the charge of Sergt. Barraclough.

The reorganization was approved, following a round-table conference between the county warden and commissioners, and the County Police Committee. A by-law setting out the changes was drafted, which will be presented to the County Police commission of Judge Daniel O'Connell, Magistrate William

WEIGHING CONSEQUENCES
(A Principle of Temperate Living)

Golden Text—Godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life which now is, and of that which is to come.

We are all inclined to go to extremes. Temperance is self-control, and is the middle path between asceticism and license. It is the only right and safe road to take if we would get the most out of life and accomplish the most for God.

They who, in youth, sow wild oats will have a terrible crop to reap in older days (Prov. 22:8). No wonder the world has so many disillusioned and disappointed old men and aged women. They frittered away the golden hours of youth in careless living and selfish indulgence and as a result their wrecked constitutions and in some cases impaired minds make their later years most distressing and unhappy. It is quite otherwise with men and women who, in the days of their youth, lived in an orderly manner, walking before God in self-control, refusing to become the slaves of sensuality and voluptuousness. For them, the hoary head is indeed a crown of glory, because found in the way of righteousness (Prov. 16:31). Someone has well said, "The Devil has no happy old men." But how different it is with those who have known and loved the Lord through the long years! When they reach the eventide of life, theirs is a peace and a serenity which is found only in the service of God. Of them, indeed, it can be said, "At eventide it shall be light." No one ever lost by temperate behavior. Myriads have been ruined for time and eternity by recklessness.

Verse 17—"The fear of the Lord." It is filial fear and reverence that is here referred to. No one is really wise who does not have this regard for God. It is only "fools" who "despise wisdom and instruction," because in stupid pride they do not recognize the divine authority, but prefer their own vain, empty thoughts.

Verse 18—"The instruction of thy father . . . the law of thy mother." As the precepts of wise and kindly parents, so are the teachings God has preserved in his Word. They are not hard and stern legal enactments, but have all the warmth and consideration of parental advice, aiming at our blessing, and therefore not to be despised or set at naught.

Verse 19—"An ornament of grace." How foolish to depend on "outward adorning" (1 Pet. 3:3, 4) for attractiveness, rather than that beauty of character which makes for true loveliness.

Verse 20—"If sinners entice thee, consent thou not." There is no valid excuse for following others into sin. Where the will is yielded to God, strength will be given to resist temptation (2 Pet. 2:9).

Isa 5:11—"That they may follow strong drink . . . till wine inflame them!" The inebriate makes the gratification of appetite the one outstanding motive of his life. Casting good advice to the winds, he gives free reign to self-indulgence until habit becomes so strong he has no power, or inclination, to resist it.

Verse 12—"They regard not the work of the Lord." Attracted by the false merriment of godless companions, his senses deadened by raucous music, the flowing bowl and gluttonous feasts, the intemperate man casts away all fear of God and plunges recklessly on to his doom.

Verse 15—"Draw iniquity with cards of vanity, and sin . . . with a cart rope." It is not a question of falling into temptation, but of deliberately harnessing themselves to their sins. Those who, defying every law of God and man, follow after drink and seek to gratify fleshly lust are here pictured as hauling sin after them as beasts drawing the carts to which they are attached.

Verse 19—"Let the counsel of the Holy One of Israel draw nigh." These God-deniers ridicule the idea of divine judgment for sin and dare the Lord to destroy them. Because he does not immediately visit their transgressions upon them, they become the more hardened in their ways (Eccles 8:11).

Verse 20—"Them that call evil good, and good evil." They lose all sense of values, counting as delightful what is really abominable and detesting what they ought to love, for "the unjust knoweth no shame" (Zeph. 3:5).

Verse 21—"Wise in their own eyes." Sated with pride and conceit, they see no good in anything that does not minister to their depraved tastes. Scorning counsel, they persist in self-indulgences which they consider the only proper way of life. Such is the effect of unrestrained appetite.

Verse 22—"Mighty to drink wine." The drunkard regards abstinence as a sign of weakness. According to his false standards, manliness is evidenced by debauchery and strength of character by one's ability to indulge fearlessly in vicious habits.

Verse 23—"Justify the wicked." They declare the lawless and profane to be righteous, and look with contempt upon goodness and regard for the conventions of respectable society.

Gal. 6:7—"Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." The law of God will be vindicated at last—Sin and intemperance bring fearful fearful retribution. As we sow, so we must reap.

Verse 8—"Soeth to his flesh . . . reap corruption . . . soweth to the Spirit . . . reap life everlasting." A visit to the wards for incurables in our great hospitals is the best commentary on the first half of this verse. The serenity of thousands of aged Christians illustrates last half.

Verse 9—"We shall reap, if we faint not." Pursue the path of righteousness and the promised results are sure to follow.

STAY ON THE JOB

"If you are working, remain at what you are doing until after national registration is complete throughout Canada," advises Arthur J. Hills, chairman of the national labor supply council. He said that this would avert any possible chance of congestion in industry through Steel Corsets For Troops?

Steel-corseted shock troops like knights of the middle ages may fight the battle of Britain in armour capable of stopping rifle and machine-gun bullets. United States Armor Corp. of New York has announced that the British war office is considering its proposal to have British soldiers wear khaki-covered corselettes of steel and rubber like this one, to protect their chests and abdomens.
