

Your correspondent has here reproduced a picture taken at about 1890, fifty years ago this summer. It was said to have been the first strawberry festival held at Goodwood Methodist Church, and was taken at the rear of the building. Many of these men have passed to the Great Beyond, but the younger set are not by any means dead. Of course you all recognize that it is Goodwood's Brass Band in the foreground. Yes sir, there sits Drummer Isaac Shaver, the Stouffer boys and the Lee brothers. The man with the beard is John Whittleton, next John Brown. Can you pick out Jos. Henderson, the Whittleton Bros., and the Wagg boys—John Todd, David Watson, Will Morganson, Mrs. Bert Crosby. The Stafford brothers

Sam Whittleton, Will Henderson, Mrs. George Lee and a score of others?

We recognize the Morganson family, the Todd family, Davies, Hackneys' Collins and Watsons, also the Fields.

The scribe is one of the small boys in the right of the front row, the centre of three wearing white blouses. He has the black tie on. In front of them see Joe Henderson and Isaac Wagg. Probably you can pick out still others. Back in those days Goodwood was supplied with hotels, and travellers found it a good stopping place. Despite the curse of the bar the church thrived as it does not seem to do today. Those strawberry festivals were outstanding occasions of the year, but in them in the good old way.
