Visitors to town on Saturday night will not be molested, according to the new ruling, the only ones to be affected being citizens who have been using the town's streets for car storage.

ANOTHER TOWNSHIP BUYS BIG MAINTAINER

A power maintainer was purchased at a cost of $6,925, by East Gwillimbury Township Council last week, equipped with 65 horsepower Diesel motor and hydraulic controls. After the department of highways had decided the amount of the grant they would give toward the maintainer, the council deemed it advisable to purchase the machine, as the roads could be maintained and the snow ploughed over a period of years much cheaper than it is now being done.

Last week's item about 32 kids in the north-east section around Montreal and Stouffville streets, was wadded over the air to hundreds of thousands of listeners last Sunday morning by Andy Clark in his weekly radio news, and now we have to revise the figures. A few days ago Mr. Bill Salmon added to the eastend nine more people, seven children, himself and Mrs. Salmon. They came from over on Yonge street near Richmond Hill. Mr. Salmon is the new rose grower at the Stouffville Floral plant. The Salmon family have settled in the old hotel property in the very heart of what was "Brimstone Point" to the gang of 30 years ago. Aside from an appreciated boost to our village population the Salmon group come highly recommended, by their friends at the Hill.

We notice in the "Uxbridge 40 years ago" news that the fine music hall in the neighboring town cost the taxpayers only $4,000. It looks like an $8,000 building today. In any event Uxbridge did a wise thing to build a music hall that had done untold good as encouragement to developing stage talent that never would have come to light.

Having purchased a building lot on Duchess street immediately north of the United church, a new house will shortly be erected there for Mr. Charles Nolan. Mr. Garnet Williamson of Markham is the contractor, while the cement work is in charge of Mr. Norman Bunker. On Friday Telf. Rennie with his two big trucks had a gang of men at work digging out the cellar, for an early start on the structure. This week L. E. O'Neill announces another mattress sale of the famous Marshall make, wherein a very limited number will be sold at $15.95, that regularly sell for $19.50. Aside from this the furniture store is giving everybody a guess that will cost you nothing and you may win absolutely free one of these Marshall mattresses. All you have to do is to call at the furniture store, make a guess on the number that is sealed in one of the mattresses. In ten days seal will be broken and if you have the right number, then you win the prize. There is nothing to buy, the only condition being that you call at the store and file your guess personally. This is purely an advertising stunt, and the more callers the better the firm will be pleased. Remember, first time you are down town.

Edward Walls commenced last week to spray fruit trees with his approved formula that is calculated to destroy scab, worms, and other enemies of the fruit trees. We understand there is besides the half dozen or more sprays now in use, one to keep the apples from falling off the trees prematurely. The solution is one containing a minute amount of naphthalene acetchormone, the same which has been found of some practical value in stimulating root growth of plant cuttings for propagation. The action of the hormone is to make the fruit stem take a fresh grip on the tree, so that instead of losing hold and falling, the apples wait for the pickers, becoming rosier and of better quality.

CANADA'S OIL BUSINESS

Oil is a necessity in the modern world, and a paramount necessity in war-time. Without it the combat forces of land, sea, and air would be crippled, the service of supply would be helpless, and industrial support would fail.

To each warring country oil poses a different problem. For Germany the problem is to avert oil starvation; she needs more oil than her wells and synthetic plants and her imports from Russia and Rumania can supply. For Great Britain the problem is transportation; she has access to abundant supplies in both hemispheres so long as she controls the seas and is served by an adequate fleet of tankers. For Canada the problem is American exchange—a most important matter.

Oil is almost as vital to Canada as though the battle front lay within her boundaries. Her role as a great training ground and a great arsenal demands oil, oil and more oil. The calls of Army, Navy, Air Force, air schools and industry are imperative.

It follows that the Oil Controller, one of whose important functions is to conserve exchange, cannot materially restrict the importation of oil and oil products without contravening his other important function, that of assuring an adequate supply for the war effort. How, then, can he reduce the huge amount that Canada pays the United States for petroleum, asphalt, and their derivatives, totalling in 1939 $47,546,800?

Two methods, concurrent and non-conflicting, are open to him. One is importation of a larger proportion of crude oil and a smaller proportion of finished products. A barrel of crude oil costs less than the products made from it; importation in the crude rather than the refined form therefore saves exchange.

The second method is to encourage Canada to produce more of her own crude oil requirements. This is no small order. Canada is consuming oil and oil products at a rate of more than 70 million barrels a year. Her oil production is less than 9 million a year. Consumption is growing rapidly as the war effort gets into full swing.
