Redshaw, Claremont. Your correspondent has decided to stage another contest for good prizes. Hardly a week passed, but that we are asked who is who and where do they live in Goodwood. So, we will have another competition called the map contest. We have consulted Principal Wagg, and he says its O.K. Now then the school children are asked to draw a map of Goodwood showing the streets, properties marked giving name of tenant or owner. The map should be about 14-20 on white paper. Neatness and legibility will count in judging for the three prizes offered. Contest closes October 31, so get busy. Outside judges will be secured and the results will be announced in this column.
