Figuring the normal time for eating three meals a day, a chap by the name of Carl Sorby of Rockford, Illinois, estimates a person has spent five years eating by the time he reaches the age of 70. Sorby furthermore contends that the average man reaches three score and ten has consumed 100 tons of food, or about 4,000 times his body's weight. These figures were given at a gas association meeting and they sound like it.

These are amazing times which we live. Householders are asked to save and save and save so that our government can have the money to buy weapons of war to destroy the enemy. At the same time we spend $40,000 in law courts to give a man three trials, and after he is condemned for the murder of his wife, we permit the courts to spend still more money to make sure there has been no mistake. There is surely something wrong, when we are so unbalanced. What do you think?

From a British Columbia Reader:
 "I would not care to miss the home paper as we always look forward to the news it contains," writes Mr. Charles E. Boothby from Mission, B.C., in sending along a renewal for the next two years. Mr. Boothby's boyhood and his parents will ever be remembered in connection with the history of this district half a century ago. We appreciate his kind words, and at the same time make the request that all western subscribers would confer a favor on this paper if when remitting their subscriptions, to be sure and enclose a little news about themselves and their neighborhood. It is greatly appreciated by our readers, and some of their friends whom they have not seen in many years.

Miss Evelyn Sanderson of Toronto, and Mr. Jack Duncan, of Newmarket, spent the weekend with Mrs. K. D. Woodburn.

Morley Symes and his men have been engaged for several days placing new sills under the local arena. Mild weather has given a set-back to hopes for early ice, but Mr. Baker has everything in readiness, and hopes can be still held for Christmas skating if we are given at least a week's cold snap before the holiday.

Fire momentarily threatened the Stouffville Groceries and home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Heise, proprietor on Wednesday night when a section of the wall behind the stove caught fire. Billows of smoke filled the store, and the source of the trouble was not at first discovered. The electrician was called to see if faulty wiring could be the cause. The local brigade was not summoned as the burning board was removed before it gained serious proportions.

It's a wonderful thing to have a useful hobby, and this is just what possesses Mr. Philip Forsyth of Markham village. For pastime he has been doing some work with the artist's brush, producing an astonishing likeness of Prime Minister Churchill on flat wood work. Another piece of work just completed is a white bull dog, which stands alongside Churchill, probably to further exemplify the determination and British instincts of the great leader.

Altona Auction Monday
 The house and lot and entire household furniture belonging to Mr. Obijah Jones at Altona will be sold by public auction next Monday, Dec. 15. The property adjoins the Madill general store, and includes some two acres of land, which should be readily saleable. The entire list of the sale appears in this issue. Turnips go to Florida
 The turnip market season has made a good start in Western Ontario. Shipments to the U.S.A. are greater than ever this year, says the Walkerton Herald. The demand from across the line is slightly more active this year, a trend that is noticeable to the trade around Stouffville. R. E. Brown, who has been in the turnip and vegetable business for 25 years, says that the bulk of local turnips are going to the Eastern States and Boston where freight rates are more acceptable from Stouffville. Mr. Brown has shipped some cars to Florida too. Unlike the Walkerton district where they have developed a big waxing plant, Mr. Brown is thumbs down on it. He finds a wide market irrespective of wax tipping the end.

A gentleman that lived at Mount Joy over 30 years ago dropped into the Tribune office last Thursday and subscribed for our paper for a year, telling us that he had seen one recently at the home of a friend, which pleased him so much he made up his mind there and then that he would have it regularly. "I spell my name Gie-bner," said Henry Gie-bner, "and my address is Port Perry, R.R.4." We soon found out that he is a brother to Mr. Dan Gie-bner who moved to King from this town a couple of years ago, and who is a regular reader of The Tribune. Henry is still interested in his native section and in spite of his long absence. The spelling of "Gie-bner," he explains was instilled into him by his father and the hyphen emphasizes the Swiss in the name.

This service will be part of a nationwide Christmas celebration when Canadian Girls in Training from Charlottetown to Victoria, with their parents and friends, will worship together as one community, reading the familiar Christmas story, and lighting candles as a symbol of the light that came into the world at Christmas. A modern Christmas story, "Blessed be the Towers," written specially for the Service by Frances E. Russell, will be told. It relates the experience of a war guest in Canada at Christmas time. The offering taken at the service will be contributed to the National Girls' Work Board of the Religious Education Council of Canada which sponsors the Canadian Girls in Training Movement.
