TOOK NOTE OF OUR PICTURE SERVICE

Writing from Calgary George McGuire, former handmaster at Uxbridge and a widely known citizen of the district to the north of us, congratulates The Tribune on its undertaking in the field of pictures. We wonder if many of our readers realize, for instance that every picture appearing in this issue of the paper, including the front page layout, was cast right on the premises of the paper in Stouffville. We have developed an equipment and skill of workmanship along this line that perhaps only a few of the smaller town papers have reached. We purchase the copyright pictures from a syndicated newspaper service, and spend several hundred dollars a year in this investment.

Do We Need a Maintenance Man Here?

Looking back over the years we recall several councillors in Stouffville who from time to time came out with the idea that the village should have a general maintenance man to look after the score of duties that have to be carried out through the council. There is snow shovelling in winter, watching the hydrants, cleaning the roads in summer, fixing water leaks, and other things that we might mention. For some years or since the time of Joel Nendick the duties have been more or less divided between persons available at the time there might be work to do. The result of this method was that some poor service has been rendered. When a hole needed digging or a repair job required fixing, no one knew where the tools were, and some of them disappeared from time to time never to be located. The result of all this means more or less hap-hazard service, and uncalled for work on councillors and reeve.

The remedy, these councillors claimed was to hire a general maintenance man, one who could be counted on to attend to all these duties. The idea was splendid, but the right man never turned up to assume all these duties, and the scheme was never made effective.

Right now Ira Rusnell has offered to do this work. He would police the town, (and everybody admits he is doing a good job), attend to the streets, repair water works and become general maintenance man at a salary of $80 monthly. The council is grappling with the issue and may settle it next week. This paper is strongly in support that his services should be tried out for this year at least.

We believe that the ratepayers will approve of such a step. The cost is much the same as it is with the work all divided up. At least it will not raise the taxes. One trained man is worth much more than inexperienced help, and this year it may be very hard to get even poor help.

Some members of the council are prepared to try out the scheme, indeed all of them are, but all are not agreed on the price. The ratepayers in general will be more concerned about getting a first class job done, than over whittling a dollar or two off the pay.

TOO LATE FOR FUNERAL PARKED TRUCK BLOCKED THE WAY

Truck drivers have from time to time been called "road hogs," and probably many of them are. They drive big heavy vehicles and have no fear of the smaller car passing them, while, others may be heavily loaded and do not find it easy to wheel off the crown of the road for every little car that rolls along.

Lately there have come to us complaints about many trucks being left parked right on the right of way while the owners walk the lanes to interview farmers. A particular case came to light a few days ago. A Gormley lady was driving from that hamlet to attend a funeral, became blocked on the way because of a truck left on the road, and before she could have the truck moved so that she might proceed on her way, much time was lost. Result, she arrived just in time to miss the funeral.

No one has any right to leave a truck or car parked on the highway, and are liable to be prosecuted for so doing. Probably a little check-up by the police would leave the situation more fair to all.

FEED THE PHEASANTS

Clerk Charles Hoover informed Markham councillors on Monday that means were being taken to feed the pheasants in the township, since the present very deep snow is making it hard for the birds to exist. The weed tops which they eat at this time are far under the snow. Many of the birds are living close to the barn yards it is said, and farmers have been throwing out feed for them.
