CHIN UP, NORMAN, THIS WON'T HURT

Not Stonewall Jackson but Norman Livingston, 22, of Brantford, ferry command mechanic home on leave is the man behind the beard. "Take it off, take it off," he tells barber Bill Bishop.

He might be a bank governor with the "Montague Norman," but for Norman he's still a long way from himself.

Himself again is Norman, just as he was when he left for Newfoundland months ago.

Former well known boy of this district, Fraser Smith who recently started farming at Bond Head, held an auction sale there last week, and will now locate on a chicken farm near Toronto. Fraser had a remarkable sale for a 100-acre place, with the threshing machine going at $1,700 for which he paid $1,400 two or three years ago. Ballantrae

Despite the terrible cold last weekend a couple or three of our more determined fishermen drove to Lake Simcoe and were rewarded with another wonderful catch of those toothsome herring that are such a treat at this season.

The lake road was opened last week so that the ice cutters could sell their cut, but just as things got well underway, the big weekly blowup last Sunday filled in the track again and early in the week the lake district was isolated once more. A hard winter is the right thing to say.

Gib. Wright brought the mail up from Stouffville last week, so we got our Tribunes on time instead of a week late as would have been the case had the papers gone the regular route through Cedar Valley.
