DOGS WITHIN OUR TOWNS AND CITIES

Down in Los Angeles a mother and grandfather fought vainly for the life of a little girl, suddenly seized by the neck by the family bull dog. A young Ontario lad is still in a Toronto hospital, though well on the way to recovery, the result of an attack by two large dogs. Had it not been for the intervention of two ladies, he would have been killed. As it was, he was terribly injured, has undergone great physical and mental suffering, and will, in all probability, feel the results for the rest of his life. These are two recent and more glaring cases of attacks by dogs. All of which leads to the question in the minds of even keen dog lovers as to whether it is worth the risk to allow dogs to be kept in towns and cities.

In all probability, the bull dog was a real pet; perhaps it had growled at the child before, but nothing really serious. The two dogs that attacked the boy were likely not really savage. At least it is unlikely they had ever really damaged anybody before. But, apparently all through their lives they were a menace to life, perhaps even in what they thought was play. So is any of the larger breeds of dogs, despite their owners ridiculing any such idea. Dog lovers are quick to come to the defense of their favorite breed. But the life of one child, even if she lived hundreds of miles away, presents a pretty weighty counter-argument against their claims.

Dogs are and have been one of man's greatest friends. They can be a great companion, for a boy or girl. But it is most inconsiderate of any person to keep within a city or town a dog which shows signs of viciousness. Against those who are keen for dogs, are any number of people who frankly declare them to be pests, to say the least, unless kept well under control.

YOU MUST RE-REGISTER YOUR PISTOL OR REVOLVER

Commissioner S. T. Wood of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police said in a statement last week that he wished to remind residents of Canada that they must re-register their pistols and revolvers for the 1945-50 period, but not shot guns or rifles.

The re-registration must be completed between March 1 and July 1. Owners of firearms can obtain registration cards by applying to any police station.

The statement added: "Owners should surrender for cancellation the present registration certificate, which automatically expires on July 1st of this year. All details on the registration certificate should be checked against the fire arm to determine that the correct serial number, calibre and make, have been quoted, and attention is also drawn to the necessity of exercising extreme care to see that such firearms are kept in a place of security, especially out of reach of juveniles and young children."

"All persons who acquire such firearms as gifts, or any person who brings into Canada such weapons from overseas duty, must comply with the law by having them registered with the nearest police department without delay."

"Owners are again reminded to report immediately to their local chief constable, any case where a registered firearm has been stolen, lost, or found. Any person desiring to dispose of a firearm can arrange for this through the medium of his local police department."

MISS MACPHAIL OBJECTS DREW 'WRAPPED UP' IN UNION JACK

Some comic relief was provided in the Legislature Friday when Miss Agnes Macphail, C.C.F. member for East York, exchanged edged pleasantries with Premier George A. Drew during a discussion on family allowances.

After referring to the Premier as a "perfectionist who can do no wrong," Miss Macphail said: "The Premier gets so wrapped-up in the flag that one can hardly see him."

"Don't you like the Union Jack?" inquired Provincial Secretary George Dunbar.

"Not with the Prime Minister in it," retorted Miss Macphail, and the Premier joined in the general laughter.

"I assure the honorable member that she will never have me in or out of it," remarked Mr. Drew, and the House rocked once more.

"That's a great personal relief," rejoined Miss Macphail.

A little later G. H. Mitchell, C.C.F., North York, referred to the tendency of members to "indulge in an orgy of wisecracking." He deplored this tendency which, he said, had become more pronounced in recent days.

Hector Mills, a 50-year-old mill mechanic, of Littleborough, Rochdale, worked in a back room in his spare time and invented a new type of screw which held together 500 vital sections of prefabricated harbor in Operation Mulberry on D-Day. Mills' screw helped to produce a rock anchor for securing piers to the sea bed. This was secretly tested off the coast of France and was put into production by the War Office as a "hush-hush" job. Over 300 Mills anchors were used successfully on D-Day.

Receives Production Certificate

At the annual meeting of the Holstein-Friesian Association in Toronto, Mrs. E. L. Brown Stouffville received a certificate of Superior Production honoring the yearly record of 31,935 lbs. of milk containing 1,108 lbs. butterfat recently completed by Doncrest Peg Burke at the Brown farm on the 5th. concession of Whitechurch at Bethesda. The world champion animal on twice a day milking has been sold, and is now in its new home in Western Canada.

Another similarly honored at the banquet was John Fuller of Eaton Hall Farm with a certificate of long life production by Susie Korndyke.

Above is the best photo taken of Doncrest Peg, Top Burk of Bethesda with the herdsman Sam Adams.

New Competition in Forestry

Announcement is made by J.A. Carroll, Director of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, of a new school forestry competition in which the Ontario Horticultural Association is working in co-operation with the Ontario Conservation and Reforestation Association, the Department of Lands and Forests, the school authorities and Mr. J. E. Carter of Guelph. In this competition, the schools entering must plant and care for a forest plantation, under the following rules:

1. Entries must reach the zone forester on or before April 1, 1945.
2. The school plantation must include an area of not less than half an acre, planted in 1945 in accordance with recommendations of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests.
3. To qualify for a donation toward prizes, there must be a minimum of five schools entered in the zone.
4. The plantation should be preferably near the school, on a travelled road and may be the property of the school section or under lease or by other agreement on private property.
5. The plantation must be protected from live stock.
6. Actual planting must be by pupils, but assistance may be given by others on heavy work such as fencing and land preparation.
7. Judging will be done as soon as possible after October 1, 1945.
8. Awards will be based on the following scores: School plantation, 60 points; Collection of leaves, 15 points; Forestry quiz, team of five pupils, 25 points; Total 100 points. Three $25 cash prizes and $15 and $10 prizes will be given.
