Get $2000 in King Stickup
 Two armed men, dressed in overalls and wearing sun glasses, held up the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch at King, approximately 18 miles north of Toronto, before noon Wednesday last week, and escaped with at least $2,000.
 It was the third holdup at the bank in recent years.
 The bandits wore peaked caps and covered their faces with blue polka-dot handkerchiefs while carrying out the robbery. Police said, however, they did not believe them to be members of the polka-dot gang that has been active in Toronto and Western Ontario during the last few weeks.
 The bandits entered the King branch shortly after it opened and forced the staff of three to line up. Then one of the men entered the teller's cage and scooped up all available cash.
 The bank is open only three days a week. The three employees were Manager Hilliard Bryan, who also manages the nearby Maple branch of the bank, and Misses I. E. Palmer and M. A. Ramsay.
 Besides the bank staff, five women customers were forced at revolver point to stand face inward to the wall with their hands in the air. The gunmen left $1,000 in bonds on the counter.
 Mrs. Edward Patton, one of the customers, had her 2½-year-old daughter with her when the bandits entered. She cried out "Oh, my baby," and the gunman nearest her replied "Oh that's all right, we won't hurt her."
 The men escaped in an old-model, green automobile at high speed. Estimates of the amount of money stolen varied from $2,000 to $2,500.
 The bank previously was held up Sept. 23, 1938, when two armed men got $800, and one year prior to that when $700 was taken.

PLANNING for TOMORROW'S FARMING

The Ontario Poultry Outlook By Dr. W. R. Graham, Burlington, Ontario.
 (NOTE—This is the sixth in a series of comments by well-known authorities, written expressly for the Weekly Press of Ontario.)
 Very few of us have been able to fully realize the demand for food and particularly the need for meat. Canada has been an exporting country of foods in general and of meat and meat substitutes, in particular. We have not been able to understand easily that there could be a shortage. It is known to all that poultry, meat and eggs will be in demand at ceiling prices for the best quality. The problem will be to meet the requirements of the Board as to amounts.
 There is considerable temptation to increase the poultry flock when prices are attractive and the demand is good. Where hens are overcrowded as to space, etc., neither rate of growth, quality of the meat nor egg production are at their best; and in many cases there is an actual dollar loss in the undertaking. Therefore let us remember that there is a market for quality goods and that we must keep quality uppermost rather than volume, particularly if increased volume might result in slower growth, more disease and less profit. Time can be used to advantage today in so many ways that it is wise for us to plan carefully and work to the plan.
 A few weeks ago the writer, with some other Ontario poultry producers, took a trip through Eastern Penn State and the Delaware and Maryland country, where there is a very large endeavour to produce poultry meat in volume. Roughly 5,000 chicks are a minimum day's work. One is expected to raise these birds so they will weigh 3½ to 4 lbs. each in a matter of about 13 weeks. This looks like a real method of getting poultry meat in quantity, very quickly. The entire lot is sold at one time—good, bad and indifferent—then there is a clean-up period of about three weeks and another lot is put in, or three lots per year. This plan has been under way for some years, but just now it is increasing in a large way.
 One of the problems today is to get enough hatching eggs. Some are being sent from Ontario and some baby chicks are being shipped. One thing to remember is that all the chicks go on the farm in one day, not in one or two days apart. The rest period and clean-up between lots is a great help in the control of disease.
 Maybe as a general practice it would be wise if we received all our chicks at once and sold them at one time. The odd bird left over may be carrying disease trouble for the next group of chicks.

 The British market is taking our top grade eggs for 1945 and 1946, also some poultry. The United States Army wants our dressed poultry this year. There appears to be a market for these products and the problem of production is one of quality.
 Many people are planning on doing many jobs of improvement about the farm. You may want more range shelter or colony houses, perhaps a new henhouse and many other things. One can not very well do these repair and expansion jobs right now as lumber is very hard to get and it is needed for so many things, including houses for the families of the returned soldiers and others.
 It may be that, in a few years, one will be able to build better and more satisfactorily for cash. The opportunities for making money now are very good and the safe place to invest money is in Victory Bonds. Money is not safe in your pockets, with so many ways to spend it, but Bonds bought now will be on hand for many purposes in a few years.
 Spend your surplus energy in producing more food. "Make hay while the sun shines"—the demand is here today. Keep up the quality so that the consumer will enjoy the food.
 The feed situation, as well as the demand for eggs and poultry, is constantly changing. The poultry business of the future may be quite different from that of today. One can rest assured, however, there will always be a good demand for poultry products.

SEE NINE WOLVES FIGHTING OVER CARCASS NEAR APSLEY
 Joe Martin who lives near Apsley, says a report from Peterboro, claims he heard strange noises coming from the bushes bordering the Apsley Road as he was cycling along the road south of the village Monday night.
 With the flashlight he was carrying, he swept the edge of the road but could pick up nothing in its beam which seemed out of the ordinary. However, the growling, snarling noises still continued and as he stood there, a truck driver noticed his flashlight beam and brought his vehicle to a stop.
 Martin told the truck driver about the noises he was hearing which seemed to come from the bushes off the road. The driver heard the growls and rustlings and switched on a spot-light which was mounted on his truck. And here is what Joe says he saw, nine fighting, snarling timber wolves! As far as Mr. Martin could tell and he did not go any closer to investigate, the animals were tearing at a carcass, which might have been that of a deer. Neither of the men were in the mood to face the wolves at close quarters, so they left them fighting and snarling over their prize.

A Message TO FARMERS from a Farmer

H. H. Hannam is President and Managing Director of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture. In a message addressed to farmers, Mr. Hannam says:

"The farmer who is wise will look ahead and plan carefully.

"And in these years when prices and returns are more satisfactory than they have been, when labor is scarce, when farm machinery is restricted, when building materials are not readily available, a good course to follow would be that of putting a substantial share of the year's earnings into sound securities such as Victory Bonds. These reserves will not only provide a measure of insurance against difficulties in less favorable years, but at such time when supplies are favorable and costs will probably be lower, their purchasing power will be greater and return from them correspondingly increased.

"We believe this is good planning from the farmer's standpoint. At the same time, it is the very best of planning from the standpoint of the Nation."
