WHAT IS MEANT BY STERLING SILVER

What is "Sterling Silver?" asked a reporter this week. That is a good question.

All through the ages we have had reference to gold and silver vessels. The Greek Homer refers to silver wine cups given as awards. Later in the glory that was Rome, Horace writes of "homes that gleamed with silver."

Then came the Goths and their destruction of civilization. Art was swept away and much of the world's artistic treasure of wrought gold and silver was destroyed. For almost a thousand years the Light of Civilization flickered, and then in the XIV Century, in Italy, there came the Renaissance, the rebirth of art and culture—which spread to France and thence to England. Silver tableware again graced the tables of cultured people and the art of silversmithing has flourished ever since, employing the finest artist-craftsmen in each generation.

The silver which we are speaking of is solid silver. Down through the ages it has always been Solid Silver. There was no such thing as an imitation until about 200 years ago, and there never has been anything "just as good." Throughout the history of silver the quality of the metal has been most important. Pure metallic silver is too soft for practical use—a spoon of unalloyed pure silver, for example, would bend and finally break in ordinary use. To overcome this ductility of the metal, a small portion of copper is added, or alloyed, to the pure silver before the craftsman begins to work it. But only 75 parts of copper need be added to every 925 parts of pure silver. Silver of this quality is known as Sterling.

The word "Sterling" is believed to be a contraction of the word "Easterlings," which was the name of a band of traders of the twelfth century, during the reign of Richard I. They came from the eastern part of Germany and in trading with the English offered "Tokens" (pieces of metal corresponding to coins) in exchange for goods. These tokens were made of a silver alloy which was noted for its purity and the uniform high standard of 25/100 fine, and were adopted by the English for use in commerce.

The Sterling standard has, for centuries, been recognized as the ideal quality for all purposes, and it is the standard used by reliable silversmiths today. Since 1907 the mark "Sterling" has the protection of United States law; all silver stamped "Sterling" must contain 925 parts of pure silver in every 1,000 parts of metal.

Acclamation is Expected in Uxbridge

The Uxbridge Township Council held its final meeting of the current year on Saturday, with all members present.

The clerk read a letter from Mr. Rapsey of R.R. 4, Uxbridge, congratulating the Council on the excellent condition of the roads in the Township when compared with the roads in adjoining municipalities. Such expressions of appreciation are so rare that the council instructed the clerk to reply and thank Mr. Rapsey for his kind words.

The Council passed a bylaw setting the date of the first meeting for the year 1946, which will be on Jan. 14th at eleven o'clock, and also a bylaw to provide for payment of the contingent expenses for the year.

Among the resolutions passed was one endorsing the agreement made by the Townline settlement committees of the Townships of Whitelock and Uxbridge, by which the boundary between the two Townships was divided for purposes of maintenance and minor construction work, and another resolution authorizing a grant to the Stouffville horse show.

Road account No. 11 amounting to $873.23 was passed for payment and general accounts to the amount of $1615.00.

At the conclusion of the business before the Council the deputy-reeve Mr. Ball presented a resolution passed by the Council, in which the members expressed to the Reeve John Rae their appreciation for the way in which he had presided over the meetings of the Council during the year. Mr. Rae replied thanking his fellow-members for their kind words and for their co-operation and expressing the hope that they would all be back in 1946. After which the Council adjourned.

While no pronouncement was made there is a strong feeling that an acclamation will be the outcome of nomination meeting, Dec. 31.
