JEWELLER and WATCH-REPAIR

Gordon Clayton, well known Markham resident, and returned from overseas only a few months, who was instantly killed last week when the milk truck he was driving was hurled through the wall of the C.P. R. flag station at Brown's Corners.

Mr. Wellington Lehman, familiar figure on Main street, has been missing for several days, since he is in the Brierbush hospital suffering from an attack of pneumonia.

New Years Baby

It is supposed to presage a busy year for a hospital should the institution be presented with a baby on New Years day. Such being the case the Brierbush is going to be busy in 1946 since a little daughter presented herself there on January 7th, a gift for Mr. and Mrs. Harold Barclay of Claremont. Incidentally to bear out the contention stated, two or three more youngsters have arrived and the year is very young.

LUCKY DAY FOR TOWNLINE NEIGHBORS

Last Thursday was without doubt a very lucky date for townline residents west of Stouffville. At the home of Mrs. Chas. Hoover, south of Ringwood, where a pyrex demonstration was in progress, Mrs. P. Bramwell won a pyrex pie plate in a drawing contest, and Mrs. Win Timbers carried off a baking dish in pyrex as another prize.

In the evening at the Stanley Theatre Kay Barry neighbor of Mrs. Timbers was called for the draw and won $105 in cash. Kay was present at the show and qualified for the nice gift.

Local and Personal Happenings

Weekend guests with Mr. and Mrs. E.R. Good were Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Hall and son James of Kitchener.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Peters of Toronto and Mrs. Wm. Payne of Markham visited Mrs. Geo. Brownsberger on Sunday.

Always blame it on the "weaker" sex. Elizabeth was 30 hours late, consequently over 1000 army men were late arriving home from overseas. Then too, it's not the first time a man was late arriving home because of "her."

When The Tribune was renewed by Mrs. Wm. Nesbitt last week, she remarked that this was the 40th consecutive year they had paid their subscription. That's a good record, but, of course, there are numbers of them. The paper is 57 years old, and some subscribers are still getting it who took out a subscription for the first volume.

Mr. Frank Riches sustained some nasty burns last week when he attempted to throw a lighted torch out of the store, which might have set the place on fire. The hardware man was successful in preventing a possible blaze, but at considerable cost to himself. However, he is getting about nicely, from the burn and shock.

Stop and Think

Once again it becomes necessary to warn those driving cars through town for wedding parties to have regard for the speed limit. There is a great tendency on such occasions to do a bit of "acting up" such as was done a few days ago when a decorated car whizzed back and forth at an unsafe speed. If those in charge of these cars would stop to consider what a terrible thing it would be to cause the death of someone while making merry in this way, and thereby bring sadness to the bride and groom and all the friends, a little more care would be observed.

Not Too Hopeful

Probably the oldest reader of this paper to renew their subscription for another year is Mr. James H. White of Rokeby, Sask., who will be 92 years of age this coming February 17th. Saskatchewan, where he lives is enjoying a fine winter with good car driving possible. Mr. White is an old resident of Stouffville and is remembered by our older citizens, who will wish him still more years of life. Why not make it the 100 Mr. White?

Town Officials Gather at Banquet

Some eighteen office holders, members of the municipal council, and other town officials including the Medical Officer of Health, solicitor, chairman of the Board of Education, the municipal clerk assessor, tax collector, constable, and the fire chief, gathered at the Mayfair on Thursday evening for the reeve's dinner, which preceded the inaugural meeting of the council for 1946. When those who are charged with the responsibility of conducting the public business of the village are gathered together in this way, they make up a rather imposing number. It is an opportunity to talk matters concerning the village in a special way that no other opportunity affords. The reeve in his message of greeting outlined some of the work the council hopes to get on with this year, and stressed need for a Board of Trade or some other civic body that would aid the councillors in what they are trying to do for Stouffville. Their leadership he said would be helpful, as well as their support in new undertakings. The reeve said that every week he is approached by business concerns who would like to locate here, but our business section needs expanding before new concerns can get established. Residential-homes in the business blocks, he said, retard development, and such places should be treated as business properties for assessment purposes. Dr. H.B. Freely, F. L. Button K.C., and Mr. A. G. Thompson, all agreed that such gatherings as the reeve had arranged were worth-while, and that serious consideration might well be given at this time to the future development of Stouffville.

Friends will be glad to know that he is able to sit up for a short time daily, and his power of speech has returned considerably. Mr. and Mrs. Brubacher occupy rooms in the Brown cottage on the school hill, Main street.

New names recently added to the Business Directory column in this paper, include that of Dr. N. C. Smith who has returned after his long Overseas service, then there will be noticed the names of Fred Pugh insurance agent, and V. Penneen, Fuller Brush man, who will keep their names and telephone numbers always readily available to those who wish to consult them.

Spring in January

For the information of our friends or subscribers of this paper who are spending the winter in the southern climate of the United States, we report that Stouffville enjoyed a spring-like weekend, and this Monday following is even more like a spring day. All the ice and snow is gone and it is hard to realize that we are only in the early stages of January. However, no one is being fooled into hanging up the snow shovel, although we have no sympathy with the pessimist who says, "we'll pay for this." Our own prediction is that this will be one of the mildest winters in many years, and that while we may have bitter zero weather with lots of snow to shovel, the spells of such weather will be short.

Slow to Admit Gulping Down Money

Little Bruce Smith isn't so very fond of money that he would actually eat it, but he did have a bit of change pass into his digestive system nevertheless. It happened when Bruce needed a hair cut and set out for the barber shop with a good coin of the realm, a 25c. piece. Like so many lads, he considered a safe place to carry the price of his hair cut would be in his mouth, but somehow the silver piece slipped from control and went the way of all things that get into a boy's mouth that he likes. Bruce continued his journey to the clipper shop as though nothing had happened, and perhaps it hadn't at that stage. However, after the shearing operation was over and the lad was dismounting from the chair, he still was loath to admit the loss of the quarter, and quietly informed the barber that his mother would call and settle the bill. Even at this stage the boy must have been hoping that the indigestible coin would bounce out the way it got in. Its failure to do so, plus pressure on the part of his parents to explain the whereabouts of the missing silver, led to a complete confession. Bruce was hustled over to York County hospital at Newmarket where the x-ray machine revealed the missing money lying on the floor of the lad's stomach, or somewhere in the lunch container of the youth, which perhaps hasn't got a floor. It was soon recovered by the use of a pump. Now Bruce resolves never again to use his mouth as a purse, and while he is none the worse for his experience with money, other lads who learn of the affair, can profit by the experience.

AUSTRALIA MUST BOW TO STOUFFVILLE WHEN IT COMES TO SMALLEST HORSE

Recently in the Toronto press there appeared a news item admitting that the smallest horse known was born in Australia, and even the smallest pony in Toronto could not compare with the diminutiveness of the Australian animal, which weighed only 35 pounds at birth. Evidently the Toronto press has forgotten about "Little Happy," born on the Wm. Morris farm at Stouffville and which at birth weighed only 26 pounds. Little Happy is still going strong, and was in the prize ring at Lindsay fair last fall, now five years old.
"That Australian horse is a small animal," said its owner Mrs. Enid Baker of Sydney—the smallest pony I have ever had—a Shetland and when full grown should be only 36 inches tall. There may be smaller ones around though—commented Mr. R. E. Whitewood proprietor of the largest riding school in Toronto, but Toronto has not got one he admitted.
Mr. Thompson said that a little fellow called Sandy was their smallest, but could not compete with the weeniness of the Australian Shetland which is one of 20 miniature ponies owned by Mrs. Baker. She said the legs of young horses and ponies never alter in length after they are born. They straighten out and thicken, but the length of the leg bones remains the same.
Now that the matter has been dragged into the open and Toronto admits it cannot compete with the Australian pony for smallness, it would seem that Stouffville should become famous as the home of the smallest horse born on at least two continents. Little Happy, Mr. Morris who boarded the animal for its Toronto owner, tells us, is a very proud stallion today with all the style and spirit of the race of hackneys to which it belongs.

If Eric Ross Anderson will call at The Tribune office he can receive the wallet he lost in Claremont.

Motor licenses are now available at Unionville from Mrs. G. A. M. Davison in the old stand.

There'll be a big carnival in the local arena on Wednesday evening, Jan. 30th when the Stouffville Lions Club hold their annual winter event.

Didsbury, Alta., is having a great deal of snow, with nice weather, but very cold, reports Mr. I. Burkholder in a letter to this paper renewing his subscription. "We enjoy getting the paper, which is like a letter from home," he concludes.

Mr. Simeon Hoover, Dickson Hill, when renewing his Tribune this week, was questioned about how long he had been taking The Tribune and said that it first was subscribed for in 1891 the year he was married. He was 77 years of age last June, and looks quite well although he has not regained the use of his left hand, and requires the use of a cane to steady him a bit walking about. His many friends are glad however, to know that he is able to be about after his severe illness.

Opening Date About Feb'y. 18

Fluorescent lighting will be used, and the company hope to be in operation about the 18th of February. Judging by the way the electors voted at Altona, they much prefer goose to swan. The lady contestant in the election on Monday in Pickering was handed a "goose egg" at this well known hamlet. There wasn't a single vote registered in favor of Miss Swan, candidate.

Richard Burton is making quite an improvement to his property on Stouffer street where a storey-and-a-half addition is being made to the place occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Jess Brown, who have been getting along in rather cramped quarters.
