SELDOM SEEN

Congratulations to Cliff Walwork farm and be the leader among men in his vocation. How many would throw up a sand farm and say, "it won't grow anything," and just quit there. Actually it will grow stuff that heavy clay will not produce as well, and this Mr. Walwork has shown us.

However, we want to write about another matter, and we intended to start out by asking how do you carry your problem? What problem, you say? Well, your problem. You have one, everybody has one in life. They are real burdens, too. To many it may be financial problem, a love affair, a family affair, wandering boy or girl, or a hundred and one things. Perhaps one of health. We say how do you carry yours?

In our district there is a woman who had a very difficult life. Her father was a shiftless type, and she was born ambitious. As a child she didn't see the same as others. She was working and reading and borrowing from neighbours. Her high school life was a constant round of study and work at home. She seemed to grow smaller and thinner.....but there was always a pride about her. Perhaps it was determination and stubbornness. Eventually she went to college and came through with flying colors. Her career looked brighter now. She just got to making real wages. Her mother then took sick and she had to come home because the father was unable to pay for nursing or housekeeping for his sick wife. The daughter took charge and even roused her father to go to work, but it didn't last long when he slouched down at home again. Then the girl went out herself a couple of days a week among neighbours, and at the same time attended her mother.

The girl married a local boy of fair means. The years had been too hard on her I suppose to face a career. Maybe it was just the security that marriage could afford. Within four years of the time they married he was sent away to a sanitarium. By this time she had a child, a boy. Talk about the determination to win. She converted the farm into a poultry farm, worked from dawn until dusk herself and managed to make a paying proposition out of it.

In spite of all this hardship she remained the same. There was a quiet determination about her. She was going to win, no matter what the odds might be. I have never heard a single person say that they ever heard her complain.

Then last summer her boy was drowned while swimming back at Muskoka. It was her last hope and yet she carried on. At the same time I remember very well seeing her the day after it happened. Her head was erect but carved deep into that magnificent face were the scars of a lifetime of suffering and hardship that seemed suddenly to have come overnight.
