

Manitoba Mennonites Prepare to Leave for "Promised Land"

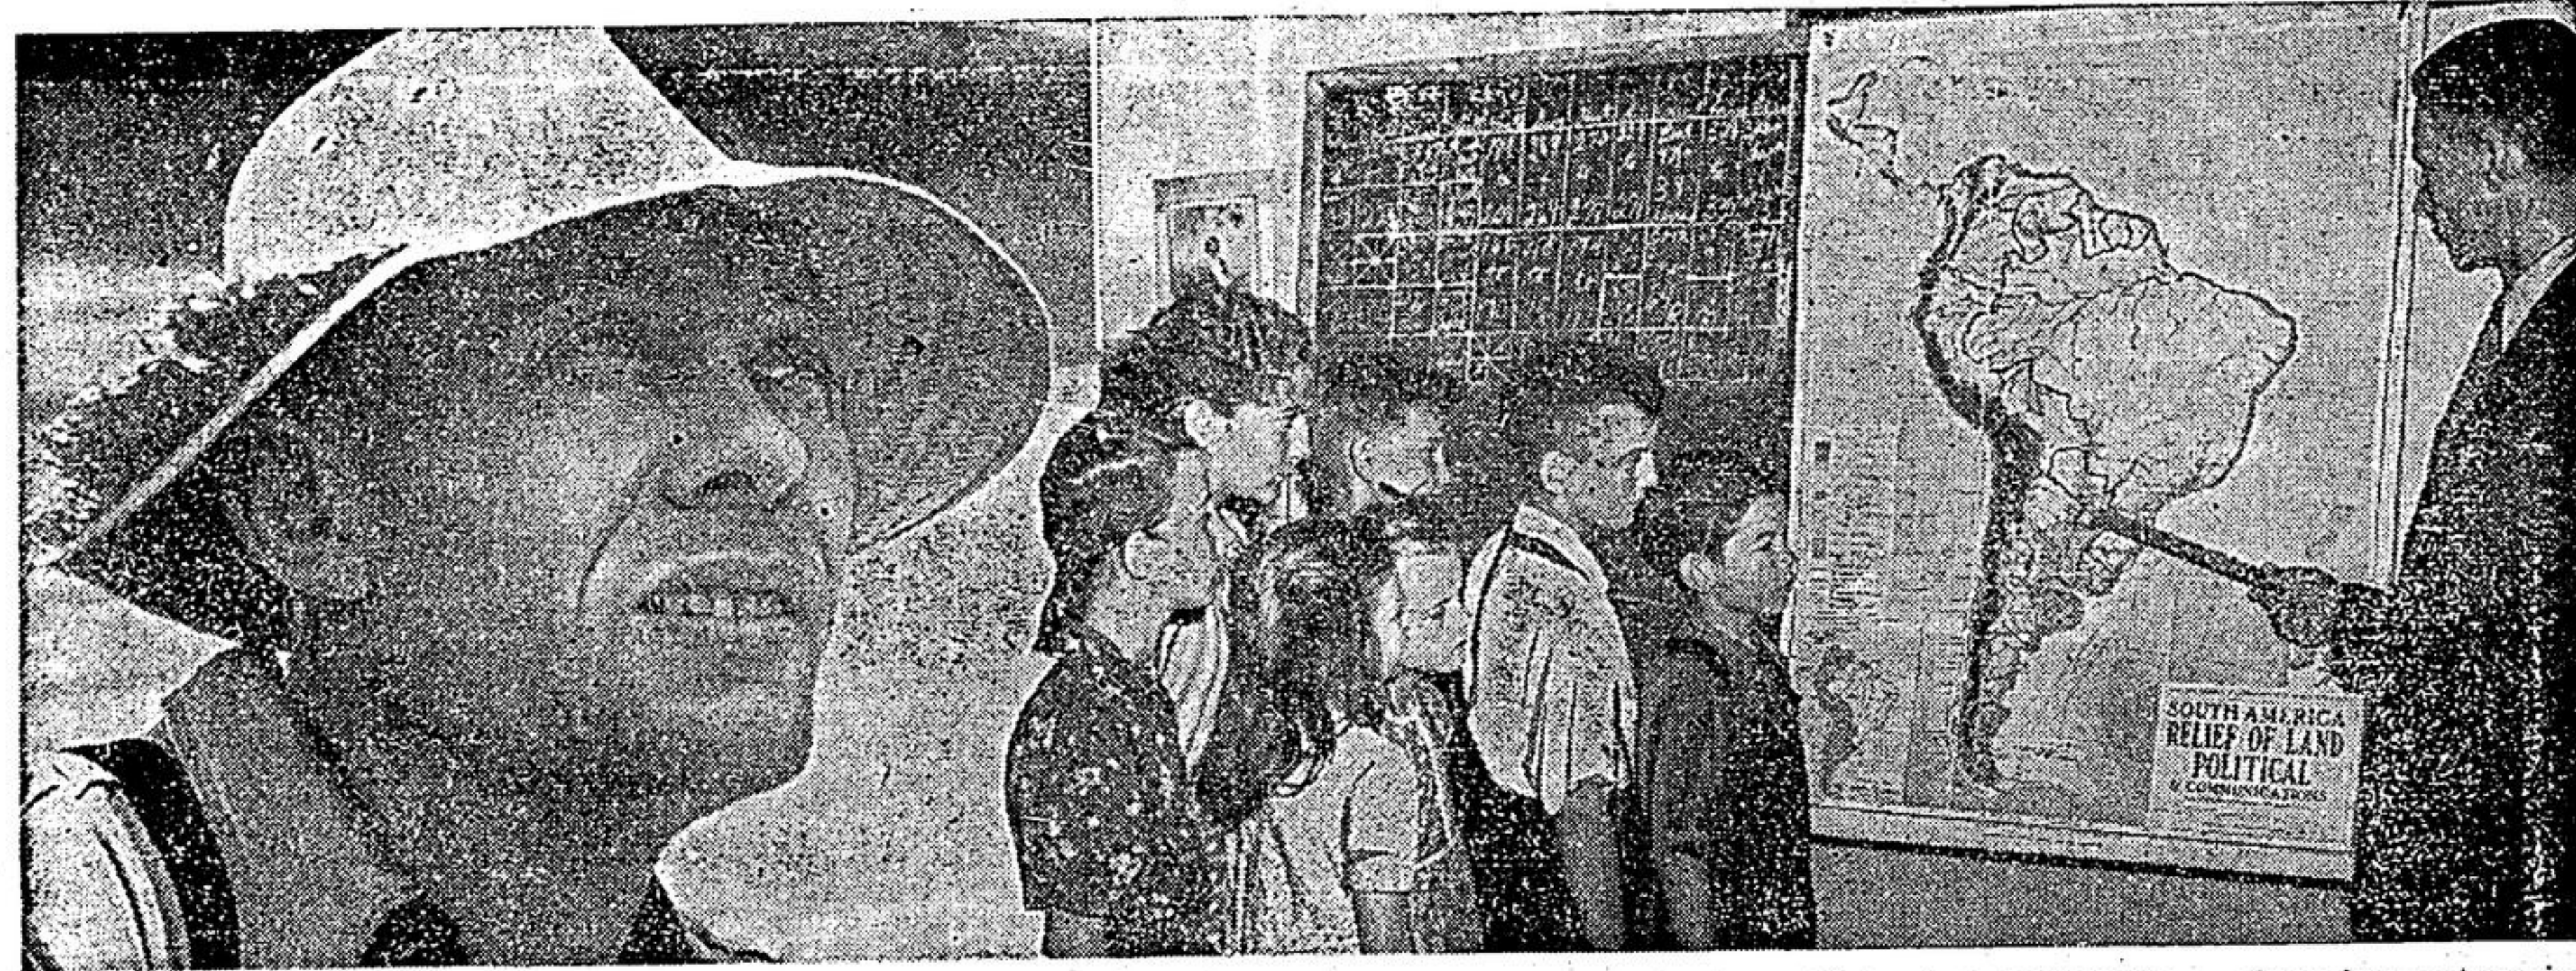

Little Girl Looks On wondering what it is all about as C. W. Friesen and his son, Bill, pack some of the farm equipment to take to their new home in Paraguay. Parents of most emigrants came from Russia 21 years ago when prairies were wasteland. They sought religious freedom and history repeats

MANY Children are among families leaving for new land, among them Helen Hiebert, Mennonites live simple, quiet, religious life.

Emigrants Are Mostly "old" or conservative Mennonites who no longer feel religiously secure from "wordly influence." W. Hildebrande is treasurer of group.

TO THE CHILDREN, Paraguay is just a name. Not one knew the location of their homeland-to-be until teacher Andrew Sobering of Bothwell school pointed it out. Mennonites sense

"growing antagonism" toward pacifist views which brought persecution to forebearers.

PARAGUAY is the Promised Land to 1,600 Manitoba Mennonites, as they prepare to leave their communities for a new land. The auctioneer's hammer is ringing out a tune of farewell in southern Manitoba as Mennonites tear up lifelong roots and prepare to sail for South America. Here, F. Giesbrecht nails up a sign for the auction of his farm belongings.
