Youth Drowns Near Here Despite Efforts Of His Friends

Within sight of a party of friends Robert Clow, 19, of 68 Melville ave., Toronto, drowned in Chalk Lake Sunday night. He was a non-swimmer. The lake is situated in the south-east corner of Uxbridge township just over the border in Reach Twp.

Among the party near the scene of the mishap was Jean Clow, the victim's sister. The group was just preparing to leave for home when it was decided to take "one last dip."

The party consisted of four girls, Clow, and Ronald Martin, of Cranbrook st., Toronto. Martin said he was close to Clow when the youth suddenly "disappeared." Several attempts by Martin to save his friend were in vain. The body was recovered late Sunday night.

DON'T SELL THE MOVIES SHORT!

Movies are your best and cleanest, yet most economical entertainment. Movie prices remain low... a modest sum brings priceless enjoyment, peace of mind and wholesome recreation 'mid pleasant and safe surroundings.

To those critics, heard currently through press and radio, who imply that movies are deteriorating, that they are only pallid imitations of what a motion picture should be, that they are to be blamed for the soaring divorce rate, crime, alcoholism, juvenile delinquency or what have you that smells, we have only one respectful answer: "The Green Grass of Wyoming!"

It is inconceivable of an industry that has given life to all the immortal story masterpieces of the past and today brings you all the grandeur, magnificence and cool, clean excitement that is Mary O'Hara's "The Green Grass of Wyoming" could be judged a menace to your way of life.

So we say to those critics, to you, ma'am, and to you, sir, see "The Green Grass of Wyoming" and judge for yourself, then say if you can that movies are not for you and yours and whether this wonderful medium of wholesome entertainment and relaxation shall be sold down the river as being guilty of ills that were present in this world long before movies were invented.

Published by the management of the Roxy Theatre, Markham, who announce with pride the presentation of Mary O'Hara's "The Green Grass of Wyoming" for 6 days starting Monday, July 19th.
