GIRLS DRIFT TO CITY TACKLED BY FORUMS

A farmer wrote to National Selective Service during the war, according to the Rural Co-Operator, asking for a housekeeper that he could marry. This farmer's difficulty in securing a wife is probably shared by many young farmers these days as country girls continue to drift cityward in search of employment and the bright lights. Under the title "Boy Meets Girl," Farm Forum groups will discuss the problem of social life and opportunities for marriage of farm young people when National Farm Radio

Forum opens its ninth season on Nov. 1. How to get established on a farm, and satisfactory business arrangements between a farmer and his son (or daughter) will be considered by the forums on Nov. 8 and 15, under the broadcast topics "Let's Go Farming" and "Your Father's Farm."
In December, the influence of newspapers, radio and films on farm opinion will be the subject of three Farm Forum meetings. What kind of job are the daily, weekly and farm papers doing for farmers?
