Mother of Six Goes to Jail For Selling Beer to Minors

Mother of six young children, Mrs. Jack Harndon, Uxbridge, was sentenced to one month in the county jail Thursday when she was convicted on a charge of supplying liquor to minors. The same charge against her husband was dismissed.

Two 16-year old youths, Allan Davis and Cecil Carlin, testified Mrs. Harndon had sold them a quantity of beer at three bottles for a dollar.

Prov. Constable Fred Johnston said he was attracted to Cecil as he was "running around in a circle, seemingly in a hilarious mood." The boys admitted they drank 10 or 11 bottles between them at the Harndon residence.

Sentencing the mother, Magistrate Frank S. Ebbs said: "Other peoples' children have to be protected from this sort of thing."

Defense Council Thomas Harris pointed out to the court that the boys looked over 16 years of age.

"I have observed their manner while giving evidence and it is obvious they are only young boys" the magistrate said.

OIL PAINTING OF FOUNDER OF WOMEN'S INSTITUTES TO BE PLACED IN CANADIAN ARCHIVES

A framed oil painting of Mrs. Adelaide Hoodless, founder of the Women's Institutes, will be placed in the Canadian Archives by the Ontario Women's Institutes. Announcement of decision to do this was made at the annual meeting of the Board last week.

The Women's Institute was organized by Mrs. Hoodless in the village of Stoney Creek, Ontario, in 1897. Today there are 1,366 branch institutes in the Province with membership of 43,000. Sixty-eight new branches have been organized during 1948. It is now a world wide movement with organized meetings held in 26 countries of the world.

SELDOM SEEN

There is something sad about auction sales, that is to me at least, despite the fact that we live in a neighborhood where such sales seem more plentiful every fall than in any part of Ontario. I scan the registers in The Tribune, and am amazed at the selling, hundreds of thousands every season, all over the auction block.

When I attend a sale I feel sort of blue. Perhaps the fall weather has something to do with it, heavy overcast sky, raw air and early darkness. But when I stand around the barn of a neighbor and see the accumulation of a lifetime going over the auction block, scattered to the four ends of the neighborhood, I have a queer feeling, much like you feel when you attend a funeral. A few weeks ago, Mrs. Josh insisted I go in the house with her and see how I would like to buy a picture hanging in a bedroom. It was a big heavy frame, contained the likeness of the late Queen Victoria. When I said I wouldn't have it, she said "but I got it for 30c." My only thought was there might be 15c worth of kindling in the frame, but I didn't dare suggest that. Mrs. Josh was for salvaging the frame and replacing Aunt Polly for the old Queen.

I turned the frame around, and found inscribed on the back, "given with 50 coupons for Comfort Soap." Still I didn't make any comment, but I will save that up for some day when I need a defence.

What did bother me was the farmer's daughter sitting there on the edge of the bed in that room. She looked forelorn. Her father had died months ago, and the mother was selling out and was bent on a visit to her people back in Minnesota. The daughter hadn't found a place, and her bed had not been sold so she insisted that where she went, the bed must go. I felt badly and she must have felt much worse.

Out at the barn the stock was knocked off, the hay, grain, even the hand implements, the clippers, and it seemed every thing in the stable but the cobwebs was up for auction. The webs were up all right, but not for sale.

Yes, it made me sad. My old neighbor toiled for years and I recall visiting in that barn when I felt right at home. Today it was different. I wanted to get away. It became 4.30, folks were pushing out the lane, and implements were being dragged off. The place had a sad aspect, and it took me a day or two to recover. Did you ever have that b-gone feeling at a farm auction that I have attempted to describe. If you never had it brother, then you haven't experienced the joys of real home life.

Oh, yes, I fetched home the old Queen. She's been washed up, and Mrs. Josh has given her a place in the spare bedroom, so I didn't get the kindling wood, yet if I don't miss my guess, somebody, will get the extra wood when the day comes to sell out Old Josh.

The Tribune makes a wonderful Christmas gift.

Over Half Million in New Buildings for Pickering Township

A total of $559,700 in new building permits is being issued in Pickering Township this year, according to the annual report of the township Building Inspector Frank Prouse, tabled at the regular meeting of council on Thursday.

One hundred and ninety-seven permits were issued in the year, 115 for permanent dwellings, 53 for summer cottages, 1 school addition, 1 factory, and 27 private garages.

Mr. Prouse received $730 as his fee for issuing the permits and inspecting the proposed building plans. He travelled 5,500 miles in the performance of his duties, for which he received 7c per mile.

Judging by the talk he stirred up maybe Alexander Graham Bell is the world's greatest man.

Says Farmers Cannot Dodge Tax on Income

Claim that farmers get favored treatment in the matter of income tax, made by Eric Hardy, president of the Citizens' Research Institute of Canada, were denied emphatically by R. A. Stewart of Almonte, president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture.

Farmers have little opportunity to dodge taxes, the OFA president said, since the Government gets reports from purchasers of farm products, he said.

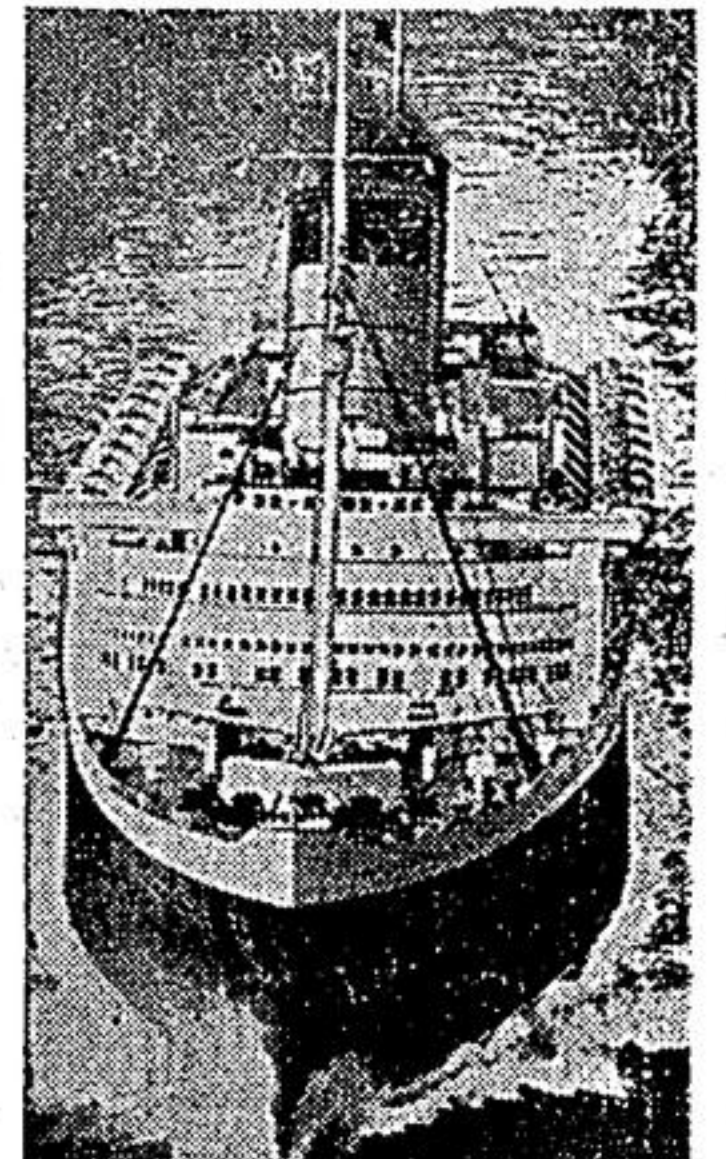

Sometimes farmers are not good bookkeepers and make the mistake of underestimating their costs, so that they pay more taxes than necessary, he went on.

One other factor entered into the farm tax picture, Mr. Stewart said: Farmers have more children, and therefore more exemptions than the urban average.

Mr. Hardy had said that farmers make up 29 per cent. of the country's population, but paid only 1.5 per cent. of the nation's income tax. To this, Mr. Stewart declared that farmers would be happy if net taxable income were divided evenly among occupation groups.

"There is no logical basis for arguing that 29 per cent. of the population should provide 29 per cent. of the personal income tax," he said. "The Institute would make itself more useful by looking into the tragic lack of net income on Ontario farms."

Figures provided by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics to provide a year-to-year comparison of farm income are not suitable for use in estimating farm income, Mr. Stewart said. The figures Mr. Hardy used, for instance, were adjusted to take care of increases in value of livestock or grain held on the farm; most farmers make their tax returns on the basis of cash income, he said.

The longshoremen's strike which has crippled shipping in U.S. east coast ports, caused a diversion boom in Halifax and a passengers' strike aboard the Queen Elizabeth (shown above) in Southampton, has appeared settled. Cyrus Ching, Canadian-born head of the U.S. mediation and conciliation service, announced an agreement which came on the 16th day of the strike. The agreement, subject to approval by union members, gives some 65,000 striking dock workers a 13-cent hourly wage increase, retroactive to Aug. 21, when previous contracts expired. As a result of the agreement some 1,400 passengers who began a sit-in strike on the luxurious liner Queen Elizabeth were told they would sail for New York Sunday. Some 300 crewmen had walked off the liner Queen Elizabeth an hour before she was to sail.

How many things made of aluminum can you see on a street corner?

UNLESS you look at the pictures on the right, you'll hardly believe there can be so many.

Yet this is only a few of them. For aluminum has so many advantages that you may see hundreds of other things made of it — on the streets, in store windows, almost anywhere you look.

This is because aluminum is so very light, and strong, does not rust and has lots of other special features. Today more than 1000 Canadian companies are making aluminum into so many kinds of useful and beautiful articles that no one can keep track of them all.

Why is this so? Because so many people all over the world want things made of aluminum we have been able to make more and more.

Because we have been able to make more, we have been able, over the last ten years, to reduce the price of aluminum ingot by 25%.
