$100,000,000 CROP LOSS SEEN NO SIGN OF RAIN

Strawberry, raspberry, tomato, honey and hay crops have already suffered severely from the unprecedented 12-day spring drought, and unless rains come quickly the harvest in central Ontario may be one of the lowest in years, agricultural representatives warned today. The weather bureau reports it sees no sign of rain in the immediate future. Chas. Hooper, president of the York branch of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture estimates crop loss will soon reach $100,000,000.

Niagara peninsula strawberry growers report yield has been cut in half. As a result the price of strawberries, they predict, is likely to be highest in several years. In Prince Edward county, where the tomato acreage had been reduced a third, farmers are plowing under fields of burned and withered plants, and re-seeding in grain. One Elgin county tomato gardener reported 5,000 of 18,000 plants he set out are already lost. Beekeepers attending the York Beekeepers' association convention at Islington said the drought has already considerably reduced the honey crop, and unless rains come there will be no honey this year.
