Mrs. Annie King Dies In Her 111th Year

Brantford's oldest citizen, and one of the oldest in Canada, Mrs. Annie King died in hospital there Saturday, June 11 at the age of 110. Mrs. King, who has always attributed her longevity to the active life she led, had been ill for five months. She was born at Salisbury, England, one of 13 children of Mr. and Mrs. John Penny. Her husband predeceased her in 1930 at the age of 70.

When they first came to Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Frank King settled at Simcoe. They moved to Brantford after the close of the First World War.

Her hobbies were needlework, cooking, laundering and marketing. Until a short time ago she still prepared the noon meal for her 66-year-old son, Francis King. She believed in the old adage 'early to bed and early to rise.'

Surviving besides her son is a sister, Mrs. Frank Topp, Garrick, Saskatchewan.

Doctors Save Man Who 'Died' Twice

Baltimore, June 16—How a man who "died", twice on the operating table and came back to life both times after a surgeon massaged his heart was told here today.

Physicians said the 49-year-old patient's heart and respiration stopped for 20 minutes at one time and nine at another.

The man, James W. Staneck, entered Maryland General Hospital for a hernia operation Wednesday. This is what followed as told by Dr. Joseph V. Castagna:

Staneck, a printer, was given the customary preoperative physical checkup and his heart and lungs were reported in normal condition. He was given a commonly-used anaesthetic and shortly afterwards his breathing stopped, as did his heartbeat.

Dr. Castagna made an incision in the chest and began gently massaging the heart.

"According to all the rules," the doctor said, "this man was dead." Twenty minutes after the heart stopped, it began to respond under the massage. Then, just as signs of life returned, they began to disappear again.

Nurses and doctors started filing out of the operating room, but the surgeon continued his work.

Again, the signs of life began returning. The heartbeat and respiration picked up.

Staneck was placed in an oxygen tent. He regained consciousness last week.

Dr. Castagna said Staneck has shown no signs of his experience will produce a lasting disability.

What Do We Do With Our Milk?

By R. J. Deachman.
I have been looking over the figures of total milk production and the things we do with it. All honor to the farmers. In a period when help was difficult to secure and sometimes woefully inefficient production was maintained at high levels right through the war, farm production of dairy products was actually increased. There were declines in some products but they were more than made up by increases in others.

In a free market we shift from the production of one product to another as price relationships change and cost factors involved in production are altered. I do not like to put down too many figures. They are boring to some people unless they appear on the credit side of a bank account but that is the only means by which we can compare production from one year to another.

Let us start with the year 1939, the year the war began. Production of milk in that year amounted to 15,781 million pounds, in 1948 it was 16,622 million pounds. If you feel that's not a big job just remember that it involved the milking of somewhere in the neighborhood of 3,750,000 cows.

The distribution is particularly interesting. Start with ice-cream. We produced over 8 million gallons in 1939 and, believe it or not, we raised our consumption to over 25 million gallons in 1948. Do you wonder now why the faces of the kids looked so "bloomin' 'appy"—we gave them over three times as much ice-cream in 1948 as we did in 1939.

What about butter? There was a slight increase in the production of creamery butter. It went up from 268 million pounds in 1939 to 284 million pounds in 1948, but factory cheese fell off—there was a decline from 125 million pounds to 89 million. What were the reasons? It would be rather difficult to figure them out, but a shift in relative prices may have been one factor, another was the increase in demand for fluid milk—we were drinking more of it. In 1939 the sales of fluid milk totalled 3,012 million pounds, but in 1948 it had risen to 4,009 million pounds, an increase of very close to a million pounds of increased consumption—put it another way, consumption increased over 30%.

What Farmers Know About Cost of Peas

A top county yield per acre of 2,464 pounds and a low county average of 1,215 pounds, is revealed in a compilation and analysis of costs in connection with peas grown for canning purposes during 1948, the Farm Economics Branch, Ontario Dept. of Agriculture, announces. The analysis was made from records kept by 145 growers located in the counties of Essex, Huron, Norfolk and Prince Edward and is of interest in Claremont district where peas for canning are being grown.

Net cash returns are widely varied. Net returns on the enterprise in Prince Edward county is revealed as $377.97, but in Essex county was only $75.71.

It is pointed out that 1948 was an excellent year for peas, hence the results might seem somewhat high to many average farmers. In each case results cover the entire county. Actual cost of seed, fertilizer, hired labor and land were available from records. Machinery and tractor upkeep were computed at rates which take into account depreciation and upkeep for the kind, size and type of equipment
