Hon. Albert Matthews Once Lieutenant-Governor

Lieutenant-governor of Ontario from 1937 to 1946, Hon. Albert Edward Matthews, 76, died Saturday night at his Muskoka summer home after a long illness.

Financier and churchman, Mr. Matthews was the only member of the Toronto stock exchange ever to be made lieutenant-governor of the province. He was at one time president of the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec and was vice-president for Canada of the Baptist World Alliance. He held the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from McMaster university where he was chairman of the board of governors.

Active in political life before his vice-regal appointment, Mr. Matthews contested a Toronto seat for the Liberal party in 1925 but was defeated. He was a co-founder and past president of the National Liberal Association. His political activities were emphasized by the fact that he came from a staunchly Conservative family of five brothers, one of whom served in the Bennett cabinet of the early thirties.

Albert Matthews was born in Lindsay, the son of an English immigrant who established his own business and saw it grow under the guidance of his sons. The future lieutenant-governor attended Lindsay schools in an era when cricket skill was believed to go hand in hand with character development. He was a good athlete and never lost his love for the cricket field.

An active worker in the Baptist church throughout his lifetime, he was a former chairman of the Baptist Home Mission board and western world-treasurer of the Baptist World alliance. He was president of the Lord's Day Alliance of Canada.

He was honorary treasurer of the Grenfell Mission Hospital Fund.

School children of the Province of Ontario are presented with an invitation and ticket of admittance to the Canadian National Exhibition each year. More than six hundred thousand of the little folk are thus remembered. Attendance on Children's Day exceeds two hundred thousand, almost one-third of whom are children.

CLAIMS BRAINS NEEDED NOW TO RUN FARMS

Farms throughout the world need brains more than money or mechanization.

This is the conclusion of Norris E. Dodd, director-general of the United Nations food and agricultural organization, who has just returned to the United States from a global survey.

Can Produce Enough? He says that the world can produce enough food to feed itself if it applies its present learning to existing farms.

"More than half the people of the world go to bed hungry," Dodd said. "One of the main reasons is backward agricultural methods. In some parts of India, for instance, where the rice ration is only nine ounces a day, people wait for the July and August floods to plant rice."

"They harvest it by hand in January. And then some of the richest land in the world is allowed to lie unused until the next July and August, when the land is flooded again. In some parts of the Near East many farmers still irrigate by hand with buckets, though others have the advantages of big dams."

Pump Would Aid

"In both places a little pump, which could be installed for not more than $150 could make it possible to produce an extra crop of food. Several thousand pumps would make a tremendous difference. In other places they take everything from the land and put nothing back, so the land grows poorer and produces poorer crops. The answer there is fertilizer and crop rotation. In other places the answer is a threshing machine or a vaccine to fight animal disease."

"During the war the United States increased its food production 30 per cent. If we could bring about this increase in a country which uses up-to-date agricultural methods, imagine what the increase could be in areas where they are still plowing with a crooked stick."

Along with farm development, Dodd sees development of world fisheries as an important source of food.

England Mary's Crown One hundred years ago England had only 60,000 Catholics. Today England has close to 3,000,000 Catholics. Over 2,000 non-Catholic ministers have become Catholic. Never in the history of the church has there been such a flood of converts. The blood of martyrs is the seed of conversion. "Thou art Peter (mean rock) and upon this rock I will build my church." If the Catholic Church is evil root it out, destroy it. If true then it is the answer to where is my church.
