SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Golden Text—Cause me to know the way wherein I should walk; for I lift up my soul unto thee. —Psa. 143:8

Approach to the Lesson
The Psalms abound in practical instruction as to every detail of our daily lives. They point out the folly of intemperance and other forms of wickedness and show the way to purity of heart and life and that consistent behavior which meets with the divine approval.

True happiness lies in the path of self-discipline, which is the basis of character. Man is prone to imagine that he will find greater joy and gladness by taking his own way, living in selfish indulgence, endeavoring to gratify every natural impulse, whether lawful or not. But experience proves what the Scriptures teach and what these Psalms emphasize, that obedience to God and restraint upon one's own natural tendencies bring lasting complacency and success in life.

It is an utterly false philosophical system that tells us the best of life is found in self-indulgence rather than in self-control. The world abounds in disappointed, worn-out, spiritless men and women who have in early days quaffed pleasure's cup to the full, given loose rein to their own impulses, and are now disillusioned and realize when too late that they have missed the true joys of life because of the determination to drain the cup of pleasure to the dregs in youth and early maturity instead of living "soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world" (Titus 2:12). The pleasures of sin are but for a season (Heb. 11:25). Pleasures forevermore are only found by those who set the Lord always before them, and endeavour to live as His Word commands (Psa. 18:11).

It cannot be emphasized too often that the first prerequisite is the new birth, by which one becomes a child of God and receives divine life. That life manifests itself by loving obedience to the Word of God.

The Historical Setting
All of these Psalms which we are to study today were written by David and express the principles which, save for his great failure, dominated his life and made him to be a man after God's heart. We have no way of determining the special circumstances connected with their composition, but they were all intended for use in the services of the sanctuary.

Verse by Verse
Psa. 15:1—"Who shall abide in thy tabernacle?" To abide in the sanctuary is to live in fellowship with God. He will be sanctified in those who come nigh to Him (Lev. 10:3).

Verse 2—"He that walketh uprightly, worketh righteousness, speaketh the truth in his heart." Our walk, that is, behavior, work, or service, and the testimony of the lips must all agree if we are to have the divine approval. What is here emphasized is not the faith that brings us into relationship with God, but the manifestation of that faith in the life after we know the Lord.

Verse 3—"He that backbiteth not." The verse deals entirely with our attitude toward our neighbor. We cannot be right with God and yet seek to injure others by false reports or even by an unkind construction on what may actually be true. We are responsible to guard another's reputation as carefully as we would have others guard ours.

Verse 4—"In whose eyes a vile person is condemned." The godly man will not endeavor to curry favor with the wicked, but will abhor his evil way even as he honors those who fear the Lord. The last sentence is most significant: "He that sweareth to his own hurt, and changeth not." No excuse can justify the breaking of a contract once agreed to, even though the result may be disadvantageous to the one who has given his word to abide by it.

Verse 5—"He that putteth not out his money to usury." The Law of Moses forbade exorbitant interest rate on money loaned out to those in need. Extortion is abhorrent to the God of all grace. We show our real character often by the way we handle our financial affairs. The taking of bribes to pervert justice was also sternly forbidden in the Law, and is abominable in the sight of God. He who is careful in regard to the

Ruinous Costs Burden Some Towns

The town of Madoc is duly alarmed at the prospects of having to pay outrageous costs for domestic water and sewers in that town of 1500 people. The ratepayers voted to spend $200,000 on sewers and water works, and now they find if the work is proceeded with that the cost would be outrageous. It's a wonder the ratepayers didn't realize that before they voted in favor of the big expenditure for so small a municipality.

One would think that one step at a time would be good going. For instance a water system could be built first, and would greatly improved the sanitary arrangements of the place as it would any town without domestic water. Sewers could come later. If Madoc proceeds with the idea of spending $200,000 as they voted to spend, then the costs will run something like this according to their engineer's figure. The annual payment of principal and interest would run around $17,000 per year and would be raised by the revenue from an estimated 150 water users at an average of $40 per house per year, and 150 sewer users at $30 per year. Then the general tax rate would bear 15 mills for these services to make up the annual sum required to pay principal and interest.

Thus the property owners in Madoc would have a tax of $70 each year plus 15 mills for water and sewer before any of the ordinary taxes of the village were met. In fact these special taxes would exceed the amount the villagers now pay for schools and general taxation.

Other towns have gotten themselves in much the same predicament as Madoc, by piling in sewers before the big end of water systems have been paid for. Few small towns can afford the burden of expense brought on by paying for both water and sewers at the one time. The Department of Municipal Affairs which is very sharp on some issues, certainly does not appear to take a stand against municipalities that burden the taxpayers in this way.

matters mentioned here builds on a solid foundation of practical righteousness.

Psa. 24:1—"The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof." God is creator and owner of all things. Therefore His will should be binding upon all men.

Verse 2—"He hath founded it upon the seas and established it upon the floods." In marvelous wisdom God has bounded all lands by the mighty waters, which are held in place by what seems of all created things the weakest, the sand of the seashore. All creation obeys His will. Man alone attempts to violate it.

Verse 3—"Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? or who shall stand in his holy place?" The question is similar to that noted already in Psalm 15:1. It has to do with man's ability to enter into the presence of God and enjoy His fellowship.

Verse 4—"He that hath clean hands and a pure heart." Practical righteousness must be characteristic of all with whom God deigns to hold communion. Righteousness is imputed to all who believe. But righteousness must be manifested in the lives of all who are born of God. He demands truth in the inward parts and calls for integrity of heart and life.

Verse 5—"He shall receive the blessing of the Lord, and righteousness from the God of his salvation." God answers in righteousness those who walk uprightly before Him. He delights to bless His obedient children.

Verse 6—"The generation of them that seek thy face, O Jacob." The name "Jacob" stands here for the congregation of Israel. Those who endeavored to honor God in lives of purity and uprightness would seek the fellowship of others who sought thus to honor the name of the Lord.

Psalm 143:8—"Cause me to hear thy loving kindness, to know the way wherein I should walk." The subject soul realizes its own frailty and so turns to God for instruction and guidance. He never fails those who thus confide in Him.

Verse 9—"I flee unto thee to hide me." Our safety in the midst of a world of evil is in keeping close to the Lord, hiding in Him, our refuge and defender.

Verse 10—"Teach me to do thy will." We need His help, not only that we may understand what He would have us do but that we may have the power to carry out in our daily lives that which we know is in accordance with His Word. The Heart of the Lesson

The highest privilege anyone can have while here on earth is that of entering into fellowship with the Lord, so that we enjoy communion with Him through prayer and meditation upon His Word. But He only reveals Himself to those who judge themselves in the light of His truth and seek to walk before Him in practical righteousness. It is a poor thing to prate of justification by faith, if faith has not made us just in our attitude toward God and our fellow men. We need to be continually before God in the place of confession and self-judgment, that He may be free to manifest His power on our behalf, keeping us from all evil and leading us on in paths of confidence and devotion.

MEMNONITES RECEIVE TRIBUTE FROM VIENNA

A reverent tribute to the non-denominational character of relief work by the Mennonite Central Committee in Europe has come from grateful Catholics in Vienna. They have presented the Canadian Mennonite churches with a wooden crucifix, hand-carved by a Viennese craftsman. This wood-carver felt a personal gratitude for succor given him by the Mennonite during an illness.

The cross received a special blessing from the bishop of Vienna. It has been brought to the Canadian office of the Central Mennonite Committee in Kitchener by director C. J. Rempel, who returned this week from a three-month tour of Mennonite relief stations in Europe.

The director said the inter-denominational work of the Mennonites is somewhat unique in Europe. Most of the other agencies operate on the basis of "if you don't believe as we do you can go some place else for help."

Mr. Rempel visited Germany, France, Holland, Switzerland and sections of Austria, returning via England.

He found Holland making the best recovery progress of any country visited. The Dutch still enforce a strict food rationing and their tight economy seems to be paying off.

Due to a hot summer, crops throughout Europe are being harvested about three weeks ahead of schedule.

The yields vary from fair to good. Mr. Rempel found rural districts showing best signs of recovery.

Children Need Help
"The same cannot be said for the cities," he said. "Mass feeding and emergency feeding work of the Mennonite committee is no longer necessary on a large scale, but great want for food and clothing is still evident among children, hospital discharges, the aged and university students. Unemployment is mounting.

The director said many German youths are not too hopeful or ambitious about the future. They can't get work, and with nothing else to do great numbers are seeking admittance to universities. Here they are faced with the difficult problem of finding sleeping accommodation and food.

Universities have reached a point where they will not accept a new student unless he has proof of a place to sleep. The Mennonite Committee is providing a supply of meat and flour twice a week. Throughout Europe Mr. Rempel found "uneasiness about the future and fear of another war."

Another thing that causes a pain in the neck is having to take it on the chin.

SHE CAN BAKE AN APPLE PIE

Would you like the recipe for a $100. Apple Pie? Here it is as given at the C.N.E. on Thursday by Mrs. C. Jeremy of Coldwater, Ont. And Mrs. Jeremy should know for she won first prize of $100. over 257 other contestants including her own daughter Evelyn.

This then is the recipe which won for Mrs. Jeremy the $100. and the statement from 17 male judges, all of them master bakers, that hers was the best pie they have ever tasted anywhere.

For two pies Mrs. Jeremy always uses —
3½ cups of flour, ½ lb. of lard and shortening mixed, ½ tspn. salt, about 1 tspn. white sugar—never any soda or baking powder. Dampens dough with milk and believes one of the secrets of making successful pastry is to chill the dough before it is put into the oven. She uses wealthy apples when possible on them about ¾ cup of white sugar.

CNR PRESIDENT PRAISES U.K. RAILWAYS

Toronto, Sept. 1—"The railroad world will admire the remarkable way in which the British railways have restored normal operations after the tremendous damage and dislocation of services suffered during the war," said R. C. Vaughan, C.M.G., chairman and president of Canadian National Railways, on his return here recently from a visit overseas.

"Wherever the Canadian National Railways has offices, I found them to be active and efficient in serving the interests of the company and of Canada," he said. On his overseas tour, Mr. Vaughan visited London, Southampton, Antwerp, Brussels, Rotterdam, Paris, Liverpool, Edinburgh and Glasgow.

The Christian Science Monitor says Americans need more landmarks of their past.
