Record Fire Equipment In Whitchurch Township

While the Township of Whitchurch is well served by fire brigades of Aurora, Newmarket and Stouffville, last week it was discovered the municipality housed more fire extinguishers than perhaps any similar municipality in Ontario, while mystery surrounds the discovery of about 150 fire extinguishers on a side-road near Boggartown. They were lying in the ditch. The find was made by David Evans of Boggartown. Police are at a loss for a reason why anyone would dump them in a roadside ditch. Chief Constable Richard Mulholland said the extinguishers may have been stolen, and many of them made of glass were broken. The chief believed they were dumped from a car which was found abandoned about 50 feet away. The car was an old model.

Mr. and Mrs. George Allison left on Thursday on a trip to the United States. They will travel as far as Youngstown, Ohio, before returning home.

Miss Ruth Curtis, Toronto, is a patient in the Brierbush Hospital being admitted this week. Her many friends in town will wish for her an early recovery.

The annual harvest home service to be held in the Baker Hill Baptist Church next Sunday, Oct. 9, at 7.30 is being looked forward to with unusual interest. This has been a bountiful year, and the former worshippers in this church are expected to seize upon the occasion to attend service and give thanks to Him who provides all our needs.

The Saturday night crowd in town just about outdid anything this season, probably increased due to people calling in on their way home from Markham fair. From around 4.40 in the afternoon the grocery tills began clicking off at a double pace as the fair visitors took advantage of shopping in town enroute home.

Coffee Up by Wholesalers
A probable compensating factor in the householder's budget for the coffee price increase to wholesalers in Canada Grocer last week.

Both a wholesaler and a retail grocer foresee a drop in the price of tea, probably within a month's time. They think it won't be a large reduction, probably amounting to two cents.

The wholesaler says all the coffee he handles is up five or six cents a pound, depending upon the brand. Most of the more popular brands are up five cents to the wholesaler.

A leading article in the last issue of The Tribune on the assessment figure in Stouffville and entitled "The Ninety and Nine," evidently caught the eye of the big daily newspapers for on Friday extracts from our item found places on the front page of the Toronto Daily Star and the Evening Telegram, and later was copied in Kitchener and Oshawa. Of course The Tribune didn't receive credit for the article, as each newspaper treated it as a special despatch from Stouffville when actually it was copied from these columns.

The reporter met Mr. Morley Barker at Markham fair and learned from this former citizen of Stouffville that he is still making harness as he did in the days when he was in business here. Engaged by a large city firm Morley likes his work of keeping the leather suits looking fit and fine for 200 horses used by the firm where he is employed. Competent, all-round harness makers, are among the artisans that are becoming all too few.
