Mrs. Jean Wonnacott who has been in the hospital for a few days has returned home much improved in health.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Puckrin on the arrival of a daughter. Also to Mr. and Mrs. John Puckrin upon the birth of a son.

Basil Churchyard is shingling his barn with steel after half of it was taken off in the early winter storm.

Some of our gravel roads have been in bad shape owing to the melting snow but the township machinery is at work and they will soon be passable.

The next meeting of the Community Club will be held at the home of William and Mrs. Brown on the fifth. The program committee have provided a speaker for the evening. A good attendance is requested with the usual lunch being provided. It will be held on Wednesday, April 5th.

If our farms could build more reservoirs to hold these flood waters that are racing to the lake, it might help our crops and livestock a great deal in the summer time. The California weather student pictures this part of the continent to have another dry spring.

All apple trees that are not producing good apples and all trees of certain unsaleable apples should be torn out as a conservation measure and a protection to our sprayed orchards. Too many old apple trees are cumbering the good earth.

Neighbors were generally kind to the late George Jackson whose body was found outside his bachelor cabin on the 40-acre pasture farm on the fifth, by a casual caller. He had always refused to accept more social quarters and preferred to dwell where to him was home. He was never married and as a young man was highly regarded by all. It looks as if it is not good for man to be alone.

110 Year Old Mill Doomed to Bad Luck

The grist mill at Kettleby in King township which was destroyed by fire last week had stood for over a hundred years. The timbers were so dry they burned up like match wood, and the structure was tumbling down within 20 minutes from the start of the fire. Kettleby is five miles west of Aurora.

The mill was a landmark and subject of many artists. A product of pioneering community spirit, it stood as a symbol of the thriving past to the 65 present residents of the village. Erected in 1840, it was built of heavy hand-hewn red pine.

Since 1896 trouble has seemed to dog the footsteps of each new owner. Then the mill was taken over by E. W. Love. A year later the mill dam was destroyed in a flood. Since then each new owner has lost heavily within a year of taking the mill over. The mill was purchased last April by its present owner, Roy H. Denne of Newmarket.

During the previous 20 years the mill was operated by J. Francis Curtis of Kettleby. In 1934 he switched the mill to electricity, when he lost a dam for the second time.

First to spot the fire was Bill Max, Kettleby, who had just gone to bed.

"I happened to glance out the window and noticed the whole top of the mill ringed with fire," he said. "I put in a call to the Aurora Fire Brigade, and went outside. The loss of the building and the machinery, much of which was replaced last spring, is estimated at close to $20,000. A large amount of wheat was in storage in the mill."
