Campaign Opened For Park Floodlights

Softball under the lights, and possibly football is the aim of the Claremont Business Association, and to that end a campaign for funds is opening this week. Read the large display announcement on the opposite page.

Getting the campaign off to a flying start, Chas. Cooper, General Motors dealer, is contributing $300. Donations will be acknowledged each week in these columns. Claremont has been noted for years for their smart softball teams, and have many local championship awards to prove it. Likewise in the field of soccer which is regaining some of its former popularity, the local village has excelled in the past. To be able to play these games in the evening when many more will be free to go to the park and enjoy the pastime will be a real municipal improvement, and one which warrants the support of every sport-loving citizen, and others who want to see Claremont a better place to live and do business.
