

Lions Will Present Comedy at Veterans' Memorial Hall

Local Talent to Make Up Cast of Lasting Epic, "Aunt Silly"

Stouffville's Lions will sponsor a musical comedy success entitled, "Aunt Silly," at the Veterans' Memorial Hall on Thursday and Friday nights, October 26-27, beginning at 8 o'clock. Proceeds of this opus will go toward the Lions Minor Hockey program.

This play is a riotous evening of gaiety and fun for everyone. Older people enjoy it thoroughly, married folks roar, young people swoon and children adore it. Bachelor ladies and men grin and hear it.

Miss Maria Stavar, professional dramatic coach directing and staging the play, predicts it will be a smash in Stouffville and warns who are against laughter not to see it. We guarantee not a dry eye in the audience and not from weeping either. You'll howl with laughter. You'll be in stitches at Aunt Silly's carryings on—we promise.

The cast, all local talent, is about to start rehearsals and casting.

Miss Stavar, whose home is in the States, comes from Pittsburgh,

Pa. She has been active in school as well as out in this type of work. Aunt Silly is the American version of the British play, "Charley's Aunt," and is just as funny. It is the story of a typical American town named Dillsford. The title role of Aunt Silly is not played by a lady at all, but rather by Sam Sellum, a good friend of the mayor of the town, who induces his friend, Sam to pose as the wealthy Aunt Silly who left town some years ago and whose money is needed by the town for a park and recreation centre for the young people. Sam reluctantly consents and the fun begins. The ridiculous situations in which he finds himself are too superb.

Besides the main play, which is funny enough there will be an impressive and soul stirring tribute to the flag, a tiny toyland revue; a beautiful lady dance and song revue.

This show is about two hours of riotous fun and hilarity in the good old American manner: beautiful music, gay comedy, songs, lovely girls and adorable children—all Stouffville's finest and best.
