Ron Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Smith, Church St. has returned to his Air Force base at Greenwood, Nova Scotia, after spending three weeks leave at his home here.

On Saturday afternoon two men worked together at Musseiman's Lake in a hair-raising piece of rescue work that could have meant instant death to one of the parties. The Graves Construction Company of Newmarket was working on the east side of the Lake widening the shoulder of the road. Suddenly a tractor used in the work hurtled with its driver went down fifteen foot embankment into the water. The machine luckily remained upright and it was necessary to drive the tractor some thirty feet through the mud at the edge of the lake before rescue operations could begin. A large power shovel was hooked to the front of the tractor and the machine was literally lifted up the vertical bank. During all this time, the driver of the tractor remained at the wheel of the machine. If the chain had snapped the driver would have been killed instantly.

A large number of friends gathered at the home of Mrs. Lorne Schell on Thursday evening to tender a miscellaneous shower to Miss Helen Snowball, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robt Snowball who is being married on August 1st.

Mrs. Fred Reynolds, Church St., Stouffville, is proudly displaying one of the most beautiful Gloxinia plants that one will ever see. The plant with its very large leaves has no less than thirty blooms and boasted the same number last year. The bell-like flowers are a deep velvety purple. The plant was grown from a bulb, Mrs. Reynolds tells us she has successfully started several more from the leaves of this four-year-old parent.

Fate is diabolical. When a person struggles and skimps and saves a little money ahead it slaps down with an emergency.

Few readers of the Tribune realize the trouble and turmoil which often accompanies the issuing of the newspaper, and so few knew that last week's issue almost "ran aground" just an hour before Wednesday's afternoon deadline of 3 o'clock. The local press suffered a severe linotype break on one of the two machines turning out final copy. It so happened however, that the machine which sustained the breakage was the one which is capable of setting up large heading type and advertising. To offset the delay which kept the paper more than an hour late in starting the final run, staff members returned in the evening despite the heat and few readers realized any delay in delivery. A repair man was rushed by car from Toronto through the late afternoon's heaviest traffic and made the necessary repairs.
