

News of the World in Pictures

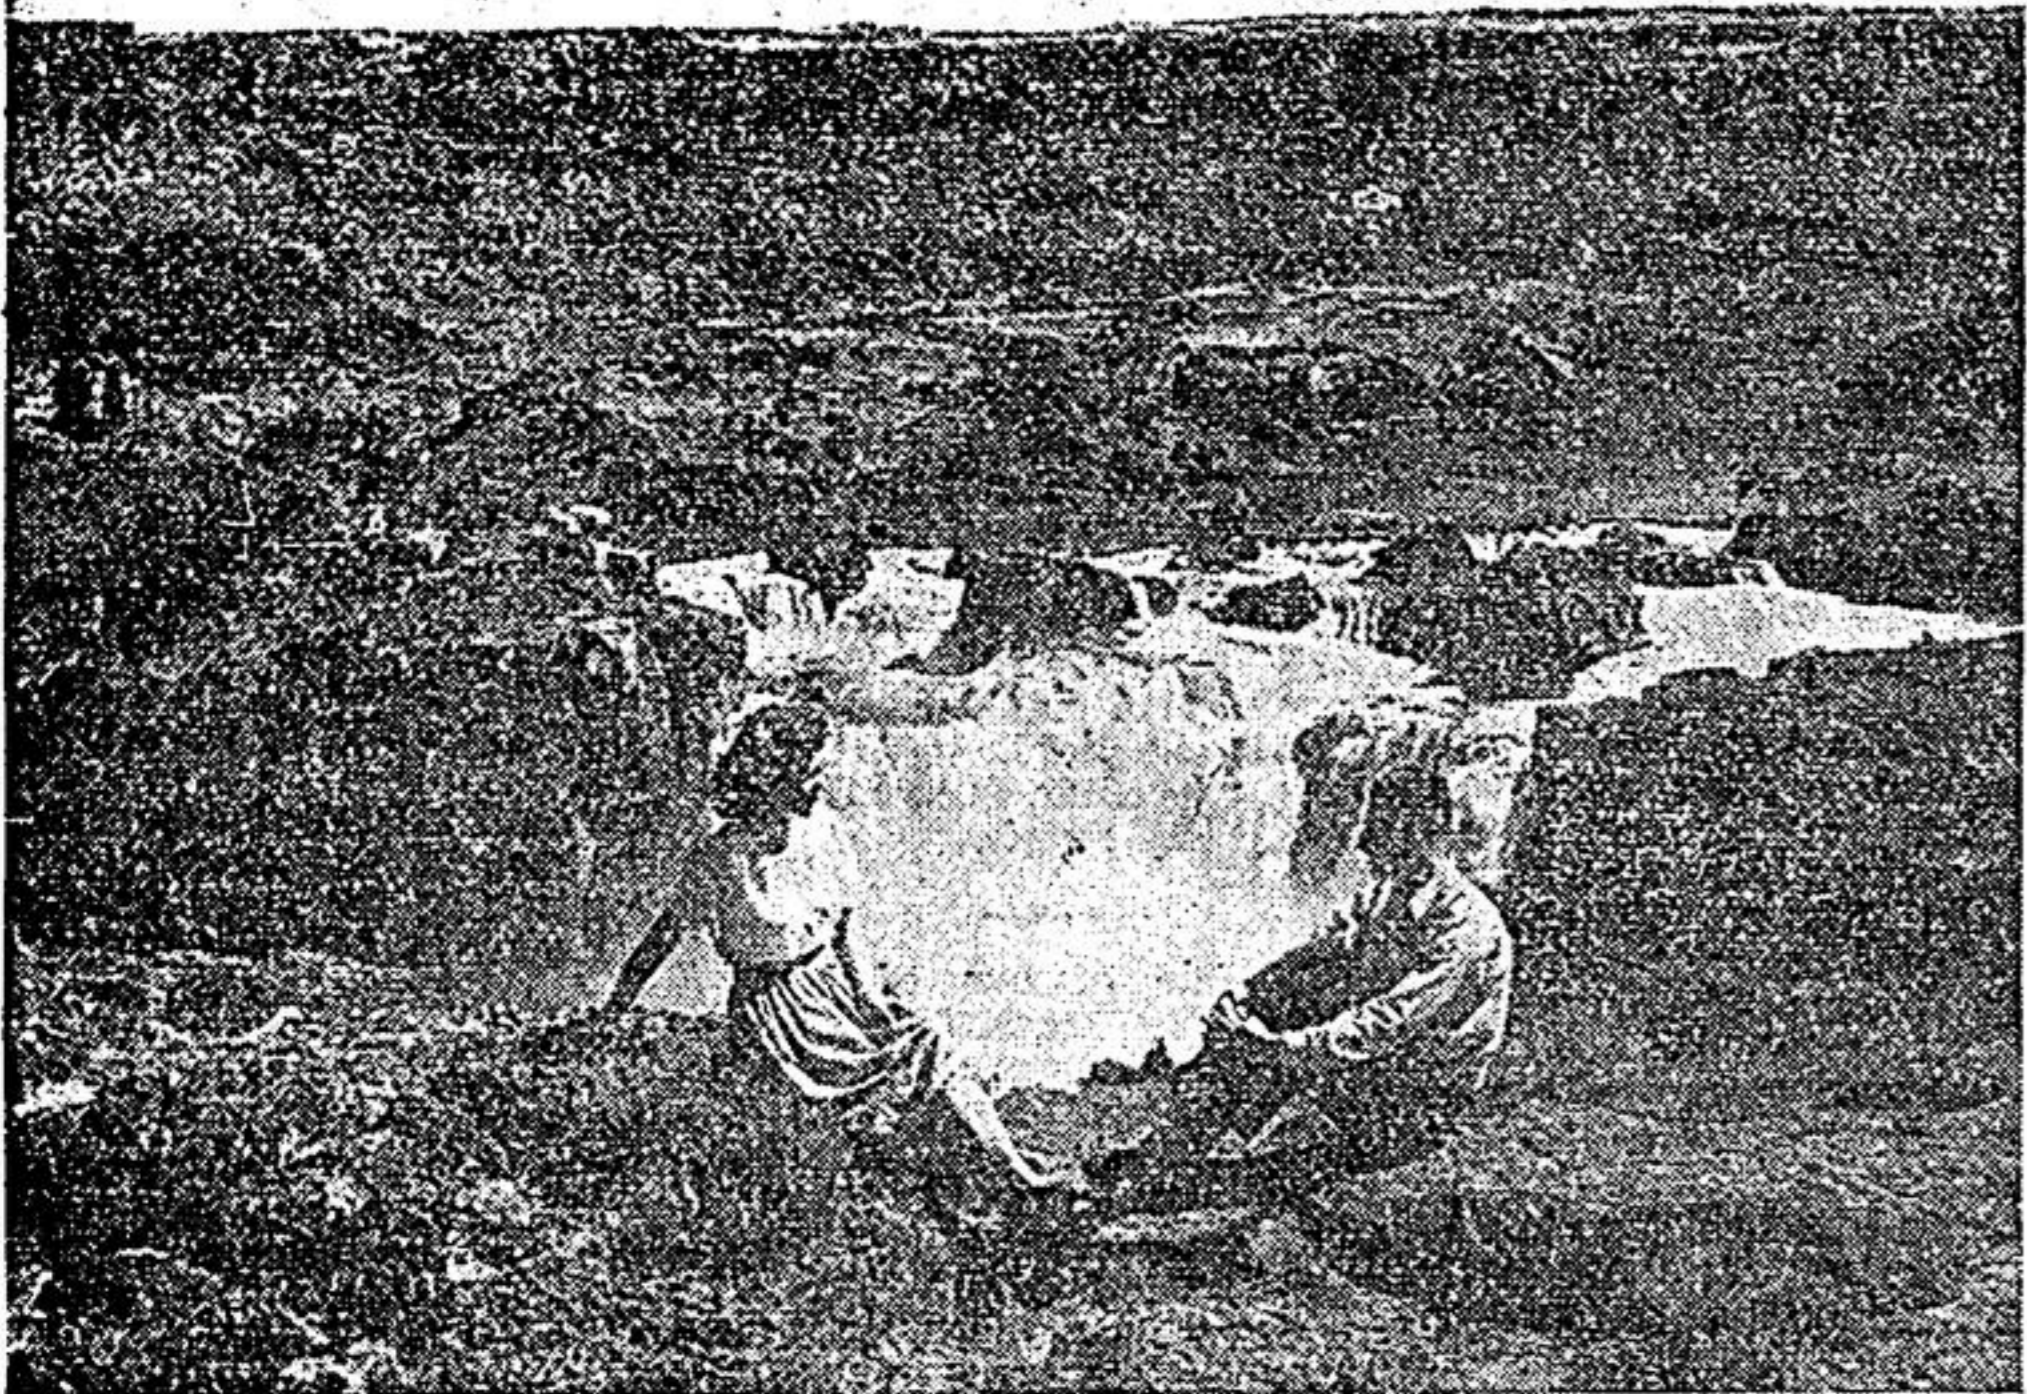

FOUR PERSONS who definitely didn't go for a joy ride were killed when this car smashed into a bus near Mahwah, N.J. Two other persons were seriously injured in the crash.

THIS EXCELLENT profile study of Queen Elizabeth was taken when she arrived at the Royal Opera House in London for a show in honor of Sweden's royal family.

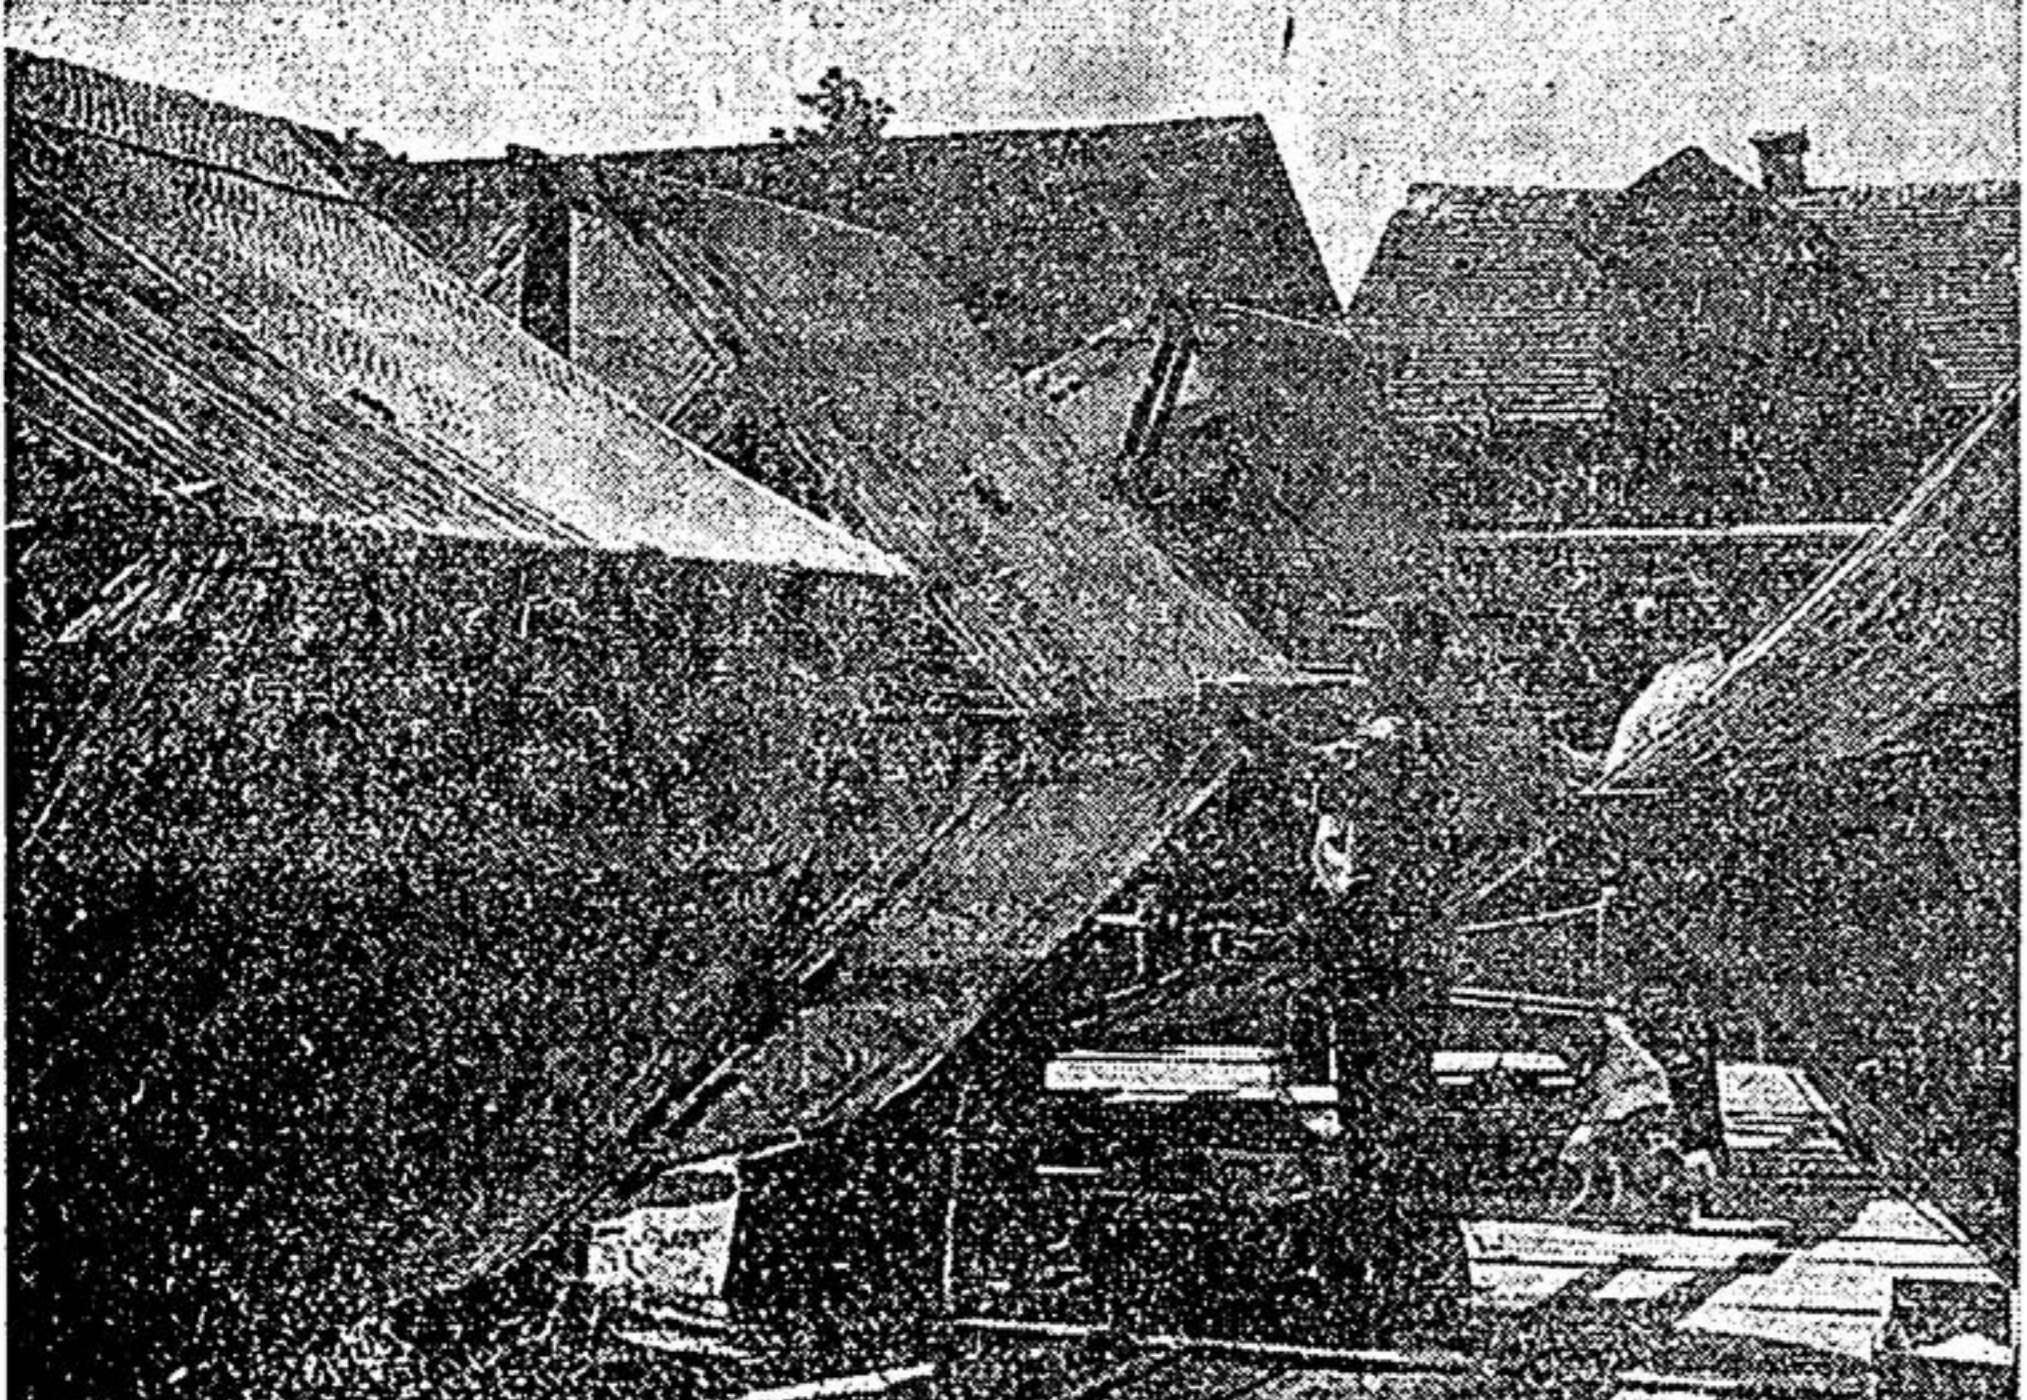

PHOTOGENIC CAMEL at the Tokyo zoo seems to be telling the cameraman that his right profile is his "best side" for picture-taking purposes. This camel acts just like a real ham.

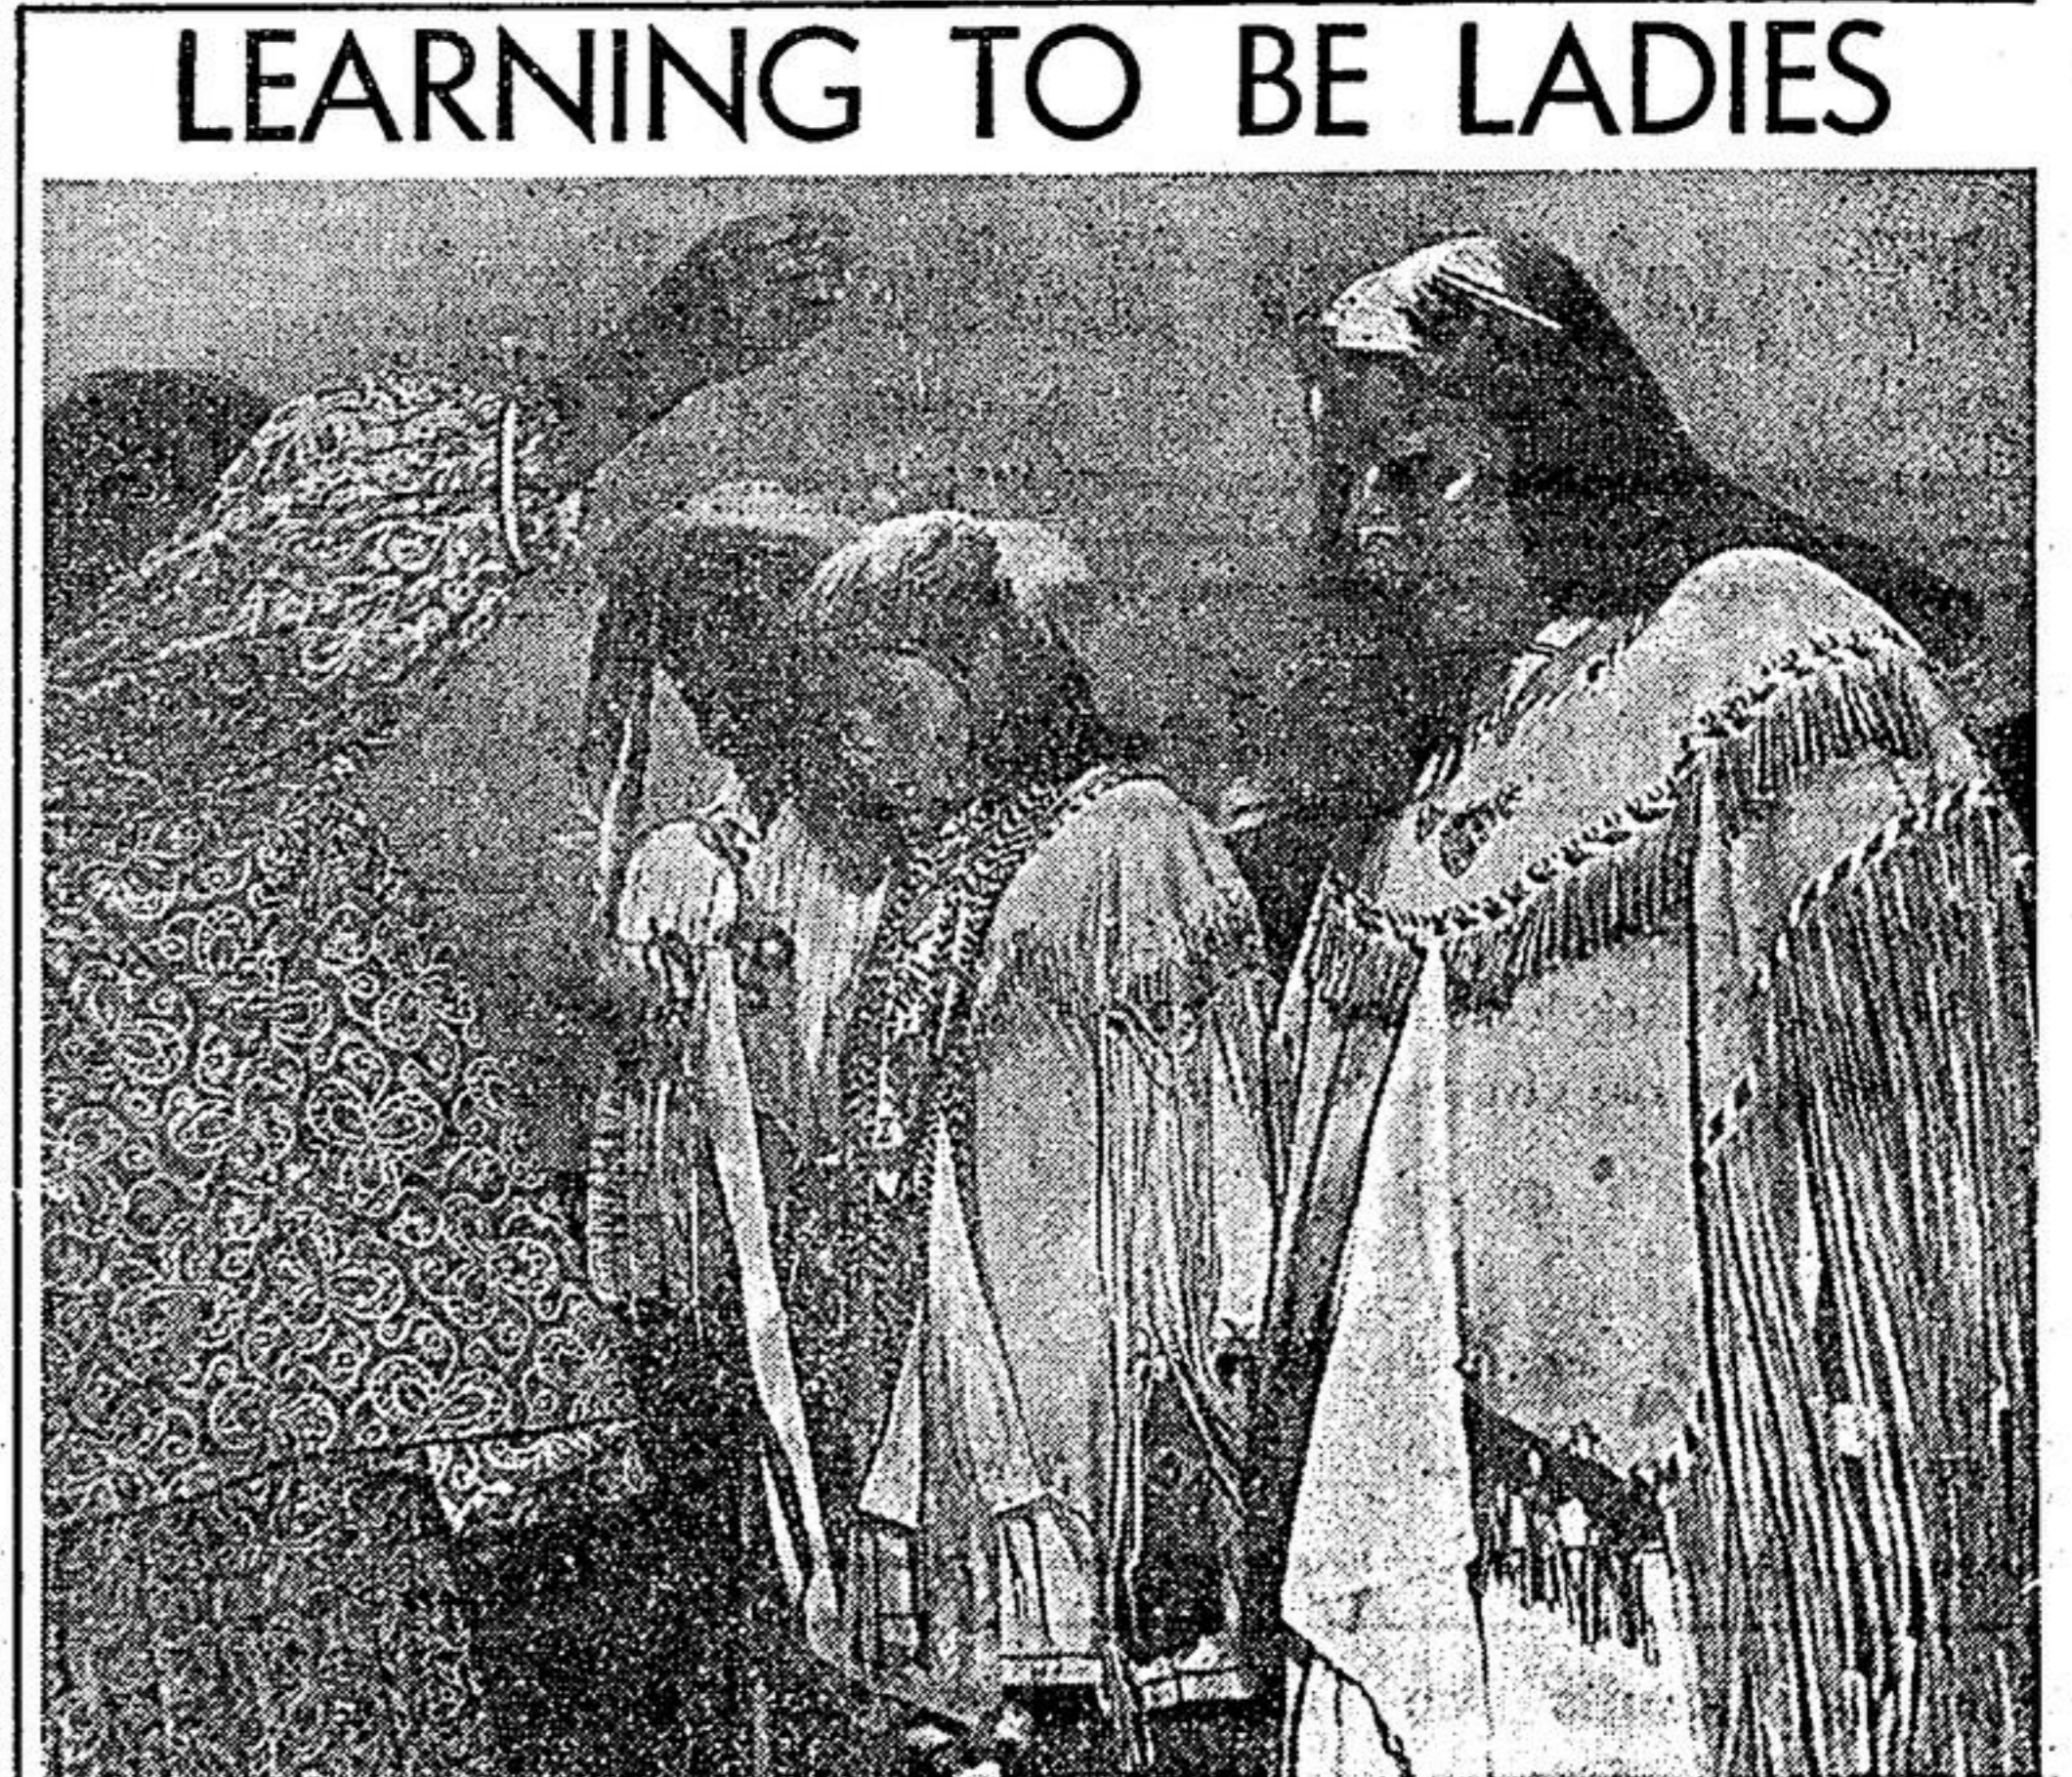

SHOSHONE FALLS of the Snake river canyon is called the "Niagara Falls of the West." What better reason could there be for honeymooners Diane and Tom Cooke to stop there?

FISHING'S FINE, as anyone can see, up Oregon way. He's hauling in a big salmon at mouth of the Columbia River.

AT FISHING VILLAGE of Leland on West Michigan's Leelanau peninsula, fishermen hang their nets out to dry. The peninsula provides many subjects for artists and photographers.

Grandmother blesses this young Apache girl with sacred corn pollen during the ceremony. THERE'S A DIFFERENCE between the kinds of finishing schools attended by white girls and Apache maidens in Arizona. The sub-debs at the Kennerly Finishing school near Tucson learn pointers on posture, grooming, swimming, riding and running a household. However, an Apache girl on the White River reservation near Globe goes through an elaborate ceremony to which her family and friends are invited. She is blessed with sacred corn pollen and then dances for three days and nights until the ceremony is over.

WOUNDED DEFENDERS of Dienbienphu pay an unexpected visit to New York City when their hospital plane was grounded because of fog. They were on an airlift from Indochina to North Africa via America. Nurse Clare Cooney makes them feel at home with coffee.

IN FRANKFURT, this pretty German girl gets ready for hot weather by setting up portable shower in her backyard.

Mrs. Georgia Kennerly (left) watches her granddaughter dance during the ceremony.

King Features Syndicate