

STOUFFVILLE'S GROUND RULES VERY VAGUE

I wonder how many baseball fans really understand the ground rules that are supposedly in force in Stouffville's Memorial Park. It seems that practically every game played here is marred through lack of ground rule knowledge. Since the local park has not as yet obtained a home run fence certain rules must be made but in the majority of cases no one except maybe the plate umpire really knows what these rules are. If these ground rules weren't in force a batter could easily hit a single under Joe Doke's car parked below the single wire barricade and stretch it into a home run as the fleider tries frantically to retrieve the clusive ball. The only way to properly solve this ground rule problem is to erect a home run fence but until this is done a written set of rules should be presented to the two umpires and the two coaches prior to the contest. This should settle all arguments. Here is a list of the ground rules as obtained from the Red Sox' Manager Ted Cadieux: 1. Any ground ball that rolls through the fence or bounces over it goes for two bases. 2. Any fly ball over the fence is a home run. 2. Any ball that strikes a light standard is in play. 4. Any played ball that eludes the fielder and goes through the fence is good for a double plus an extra base. 5. A wild throw that bounces off the screen is in play. 6. A ball that enters the crowd allows the runner one base.

WANTED - AN ORGANIZED COMMUNITY LEAGUE

Interest in the formation of an organized Community Softball League here in Stouffville is increasing and next season it is hoped that a satisfactory group might be arranged. For the past few summers such a league has been attracting good crowds at Claremont and it is your reporter's opinion that an equally successful arrangement could be made here. Stouffville could combine with Claremont or could work separately throughout the season with the winners playing off for a trophy. Over at Claremont there are six clubs, Altona, Pine Grove, Mt. Zion, Fourth Line, Greenwood and Claremont. Surely four clubs could be formed here without too much trouble and if necessary the group could expand the following season. Stouffville could easily field a team while Peaches and Cedar Grove are also interested. The teams would comprise strictly local talent and no top-notch imports should be allowed to play. In order to test the strength of the Claremont League, Peaches have made arrangements to play Altona in an exhibition tilt in the near future. Altona is presently well up in the group standing. Now is the time to plan such'a group so we may have something to offer next Spring when the softball season rolls around again.

SHAMROCKS FOLD EARLY

Operating a softball team here in Stouffville appears to be a discouraging business. Manager Ted Edwards of the Shamrocks has tried about everything in the book in an effort to build up a competitive club but without too much success. Early in the season five imports from Brooklin were brought in to strengthen the infield and the squad scored as many victories in the first two weeks of the schedule as they have for the past two months. Manager Edwards was criticized by many local sports enthusiasts for not using more home brew talent so the Brooklinites were released from the lineup. Two or three Stouffville and district players were added to the team's roster but the power was gone and the Shamrocks quickly slipped from first place in the league to the cellar. What's the answer? It seems queer that small villages such as Unionville, Thornhill, Buttonville and Agincourt can produce good softball clubs and yet Stouffville with a population of more than 2,000 people cannot pick up a dozen top-notch stars. The Shamrocks have a number of fine ball players on the team but they haven't enough of them. Such stars as Jack Sumner, Clare Fockler, Johnny Lawrenson, Gord Forgie and Murray Wagg could probably hold down a position on any club in the Markham League but should one or two of these men find it impossible to attend a game then there's no one to fill the gap. Take Jack Sumner off the mound and the team practically falls apart at the seams. Perhaps the trouble lies in the fact that Stouffville has always been a baseball town and is a comparative newcomer to the softball picture. It takes time to build up a smooth-working club. Take Buttonville for instance, and looking into their history you will find that Manager Bill Hood has been directing that squad for around ten years. They have players in their lineup that hardly ever miss a contest and it would be on a rare occasion that a spectator would be pulled from the crowd to fill a position. This has been the case with Stouffville for too many games and it is not good both for the opposing team or the league. Recently Aurora was the visitor here and took the two points by default as the Shamrocks were forced to use too many unsigned players. Later the local club dropped out of the running altogether and failed to finish the schedule. It's quite a headache for the management and very discouraging to the few individuals that enjoy the game. If you know of any Irishmen around the district who can play softball tell them there's a position awaiting them with the Stouffville Shamrocks when next season rolls around.

Schell was also very rough on Dowtys to capture the Art the Sutton batsmen fanning Latcham trophy and $150 in nine, walking one and giving prize money in a big holiday up seven safeties. Holborne apparently found it difficult to pitch to the Red Sox Coach Bob Hassard as he hit the batter on three of the five times he appeared at the plate. Bud Lehman was the only Stouffville batter to get more than one hit. He had one in the fifth and another in 'the eighth. Allan Edgar, Bob Hassard, Ted Cadieux and Ken Schell connected for the other safe drives out of the infield. Keith Dunn was the only Sutton batter to connect for more than one hit off Schell. He had one in the and another in the fourth.

Loring Doolittle, Aurora's graduate from the U.S. pro umpire school handled the contest in fine fashion. Hardly a call was questioned throughout the entire game.
