THANKFUL FATHER, Diego Pabon, bends over to kiss his son, Diego, in the emergency room of a New York hospital. The boy fell three stories from a fire escape into a yard. Luckily, he suffered only a scalp laceration and was released from the hospital later.

A YEAR-ROUND VACATION

MANY PERSONS travel to Honolulu for a vacation, but Joe Durocher and Joe Richards seem to be on a permanent vacation. The boys own a houseboat called the Dragon Lady and it is berthed in the Ala Wai canal. The beaches, within walking distance, furnish an unending source of entertainment for them—sunning, swimming, fishing. In the evening, the boys usually have a houseboat full of friends. Oh, yes, we forgot to mention that the boys are still on duty with the Air Force. They're never at a loss for things to do on their off-duty hours. Anyone feel like enlisting and asking for same kind of duty?

When it gets dark, the boys don't flip any switches. They just light up their ship lamps.

After a day on the beach, friends relax in cabin. Table is suspended from overhead.

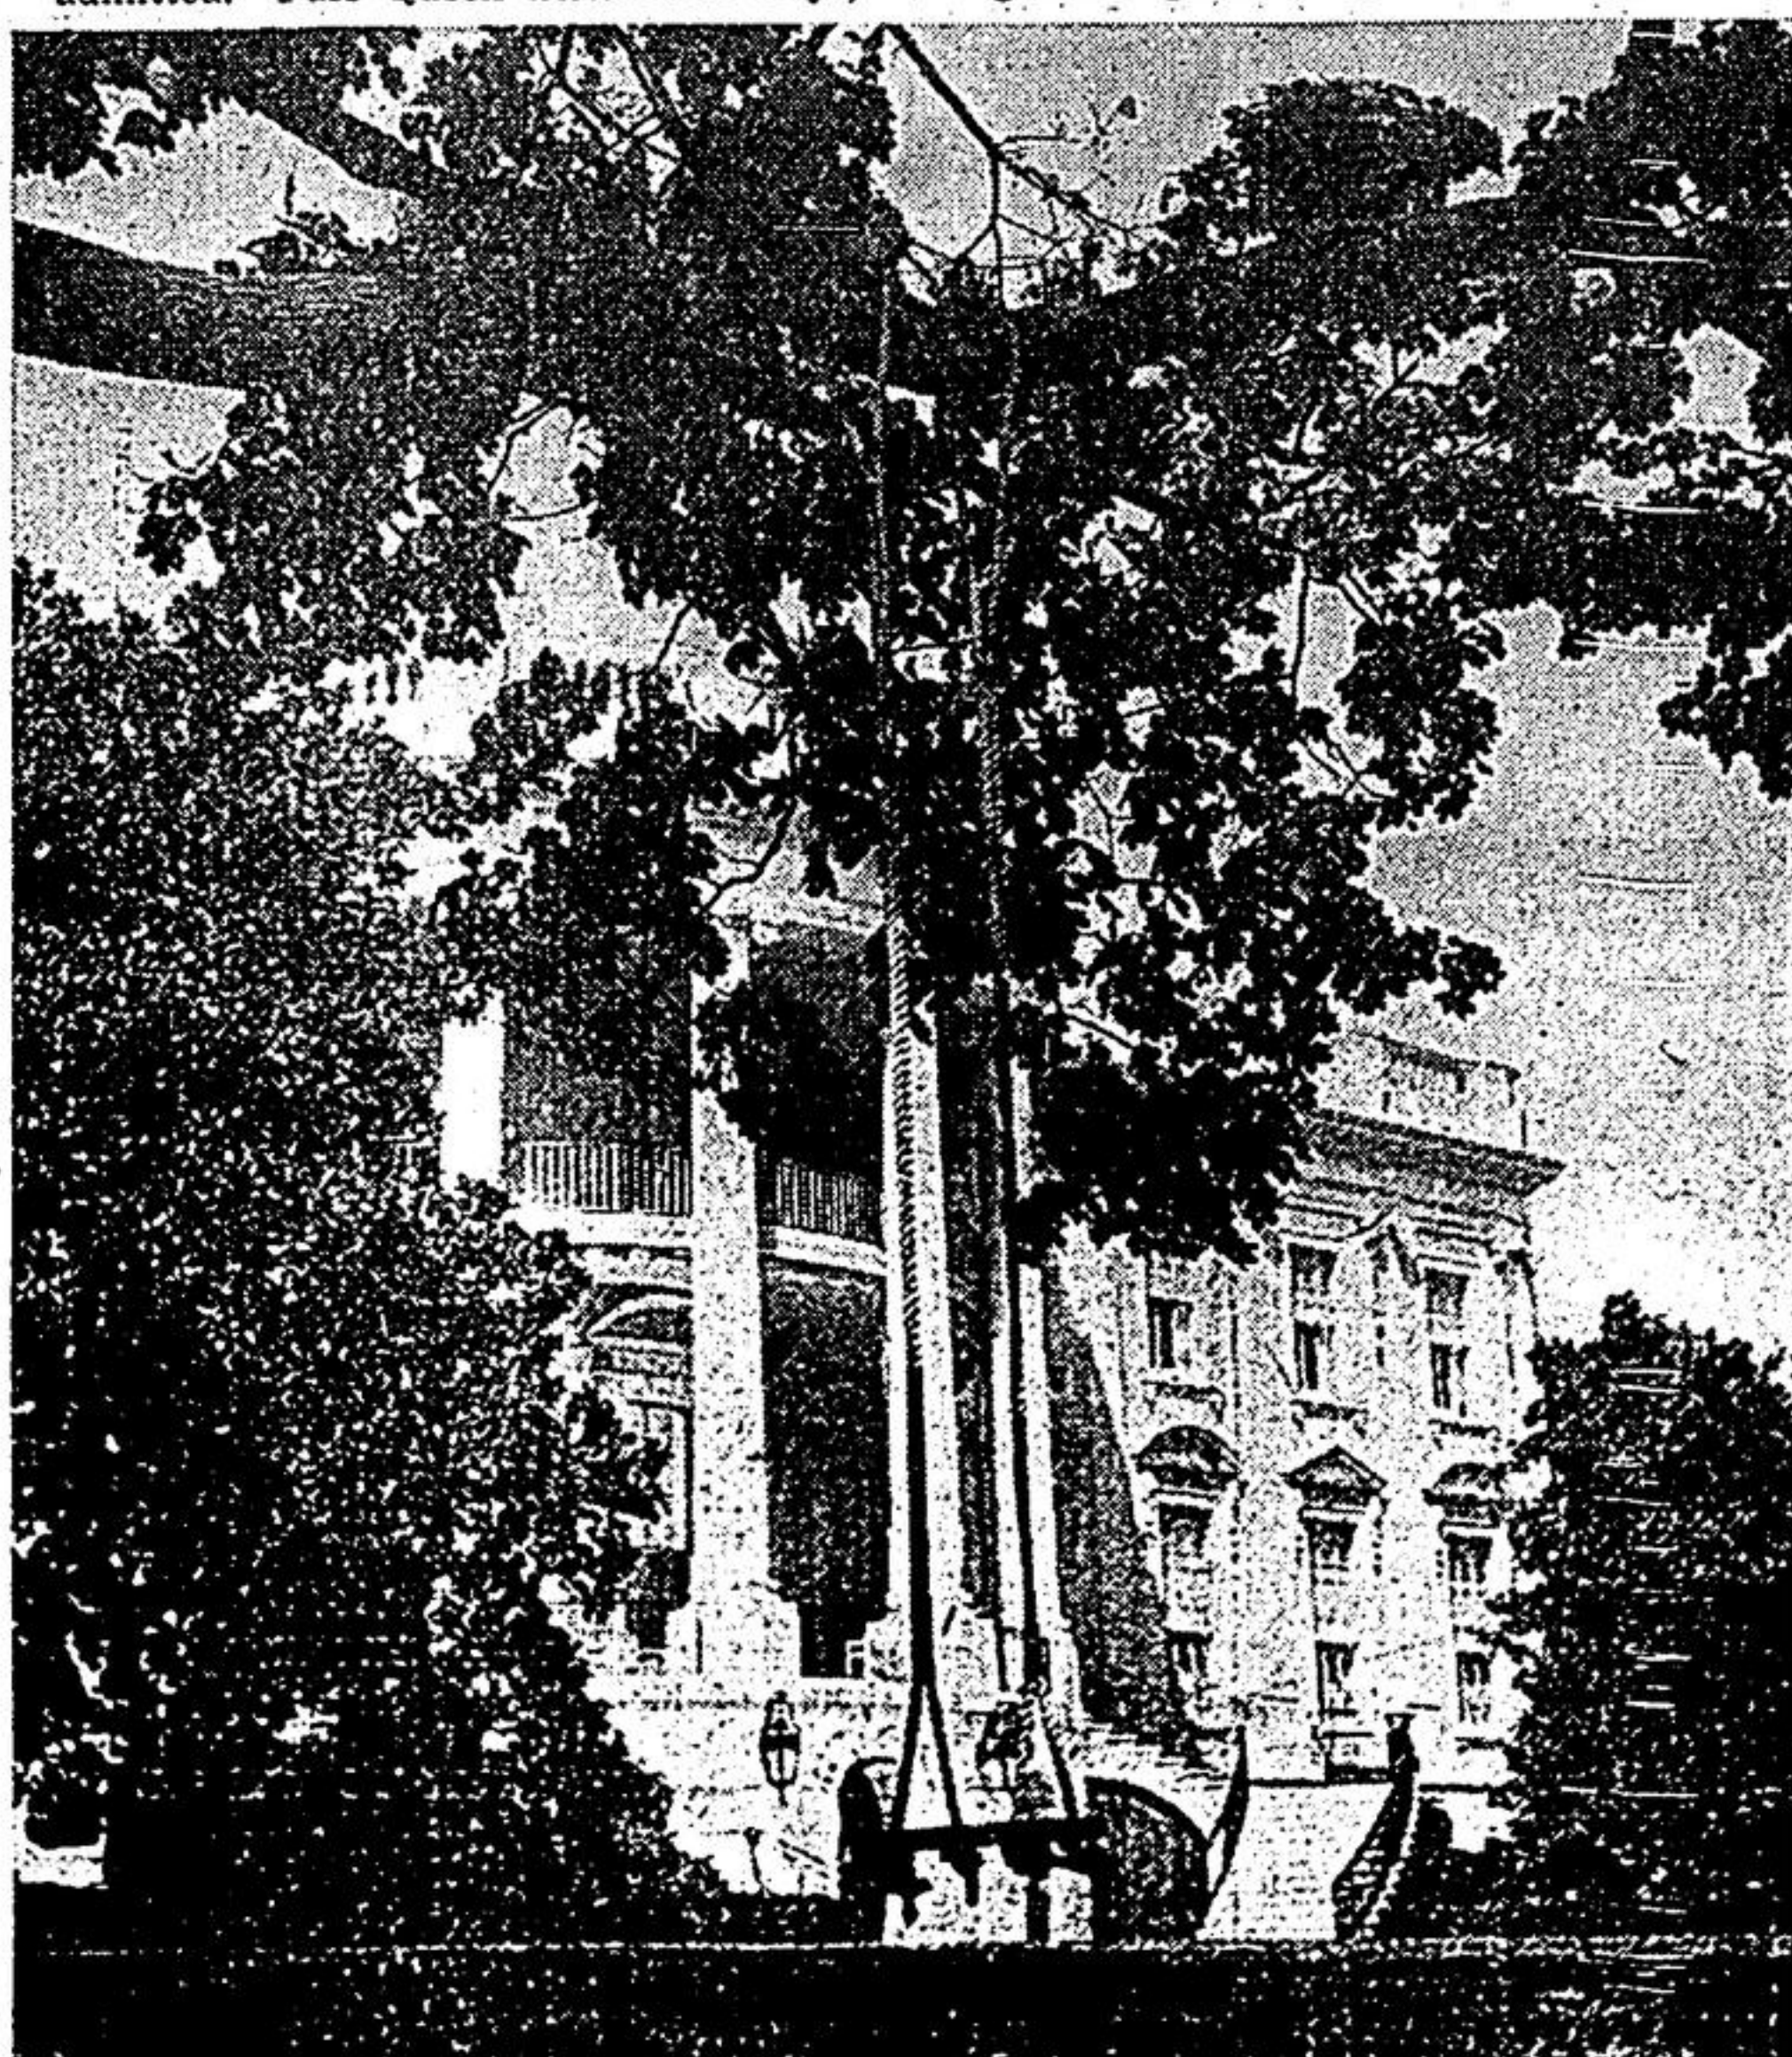

After a dinner of fried fish and fresh pineapple, the boys must scrub dishes in the galley.

WAVING GOODBY to friends, lovely actress Lisa Ferraday gets ready to leave New York's Idlewild airport for Europe.

ROYAL MARINES carry out the ancient Ceremony of the Keys on Rock of Gibraltar. The ceremony dates back to 1779. The governor hands over the keys to an escort who is then challenged by guard. Escort tells guard that "Queen Elizabeth's Keys" desire to be admitted. "Pass Queen Elizabeth's Keys," the guard replies. Sergeant has Keys here.

SOMETHING NEW has been added to the grounds of the White House. An old-fashioned rope swing for the Eisenhower grandchildren hangs from branch of tree near rose garden.
