UNIONVILLE

Unionville - York Home and School Association met last Monday night. Since it was in February, 1957 that the Home and School Association was formed, it was fitting that the program part of our meeting began with Founder's Day Accoustic. This was given by Mrs. Phillips and Miss Bailey and expressed the aims of the association, spoke of some achievements, and suggested ideas for the future. Bill Warne added very much to our enjoyment of the program by singing "Count Your Blessings." Mrs. Howard Stiver, the program convener, introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Alison of Markham, a graduate of the Ontario College of Art in Toronto. As we watched, Mrs. Alison painted on canvas a portrait of a child holding a kitten. As the portrait took form, she told us some interesting things to observe in a painting — for example the skill with which an artist loses a line in shadow. Rembrandt was a master of that art. It is Mrs. Alison's opinion that all children should be taught sculpture rather than drawing, for through that means they can get a feeling for art. In the limited time at her disposal, Mrs. Alison could not of course complete the portrait, but we adjourned with the pleasant anticipation of possibly seeing the finished picture at the Home & School evening party on Feb. 25th.

The World Day of Prayer will be held in Central United Church on Friday, Feb. 25th at 2.30 p.m. All women of the village and district are asked to attend.

WEDDING

STECKLEY-KERR
Standards of pink and white snapdragons formed the setting on Saturday, February 19 at 2nd Markham Baptist Church when Marilyn Ruth Kerr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Kerr, Ringwood, became the bride of Lloyd Ray Steckley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Landon Steckley, Gormley, Rev. E. S. Kerr of Galt, uncle of the bride, officiated assisted by Bishop Winger, Gormley. Mrs. Gladys Ratcliff was the organist and Mrs. Alma Oldham sang "Nuptial Benediction" and "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father the bride chose an originally styled rubicon gown trimmed with alonca lace which formed the portrait neckline and long sleeves. The bouffant skirt fell into a cathedral train. Her illusion-fingertip veil was held by a crown of rubicon and alonca lace edged with seed pearls. She carried a cascade of pink roses and sweet peas and wore pearls, a gift of the groom. Miss Barbara Reeves, Toronto, maid of honour; Miss Barbara Hisey, Ringwood, and Miss Donna Kerr, Galt, bridesmaids wore similar originally styled gowns of red and peacock blue iridescent taffeta which formed a small train. They wore matching leaf designed headdresses of the same material and carried nosegays. Joan Wideman, niece of the groom, acted as flowergirl in a tiered matching ensemble with matching bonnet. Arnold Steckley, brother of the groom, was best man and John Kerr, nephew, acted as usher.

The bride and groom received presentations from Stouffville Youth for Christ, 2nd Markham Baptist Church and the bride's Young Ladies class. Showers were given them by Mrs. Skinner, Toronto, aunt of the bride; Miss Barbara Reeves, Toronto; Miss Barbara Hisey, Ringwood; Office staff of General Electric; Mrs. L. Hancock, Toronto; Baker Hill Church and Heise Hill Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Tarr of Stouffville will mark their 65th wedding anniversary on Feb. 26th this week. They will no doubt have fond recollections of that memorable cutter ride they took together on this date in 1890. On that occasion they drove by cutter from Clearmont to Uxbridge to begin their honeymoon. The nuptial knot had been tied by Rev. C. J. Dobson, Methodist minister. They have resided in Stouffville now for the past sixteen years following retirement from farming on the 9th con. of Markham.

Mr. Tarr was a one-time baker in Stouffville for nearly a dozen years, later taking up farming. Both were born in Pickering Township of parents who came over from England in the early days. Mr. Tarr will be ninety this coming May and Mrs. Tarr was 89 on St. Valentine's Day. The family consists of three daughters and two sons. They are: Mrs. Andy Green, Mrs. Doolittle, Mrs. C. A. Wright, Roy and Clifford.

In a recent issue of The Financial Post, an historical sketch was written on Mr. Robert L. Dales, a former resident of Stouffville and now a vice-president and director of the Bank of Nova Scotia. The account reads as follows:

One of the most widely travelled executives in a business that has few stay-at-homes, Robert L. Dales was recently named a vice-president and director of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Dales began his long, and largely mobile, banking career in 1909, when he was 15, at the branch of Metropolitan Bank in Stouffville, Ont. An outbreak of smallpox had forced the closing of the high school Dales was attending in nearby Markham. Besides, banking offered an opportunity to earn good money — $125 of it per annum.

Between 1915 and 1919, Dales' traveling was dictated by the Army rather than by the bank. Discharged after two and a half years overseas, he studied medicine briefly at the University of Toronto before returning to the bank.

Both before and after the war, Dales was active in amateur sport circles in southern Ontario. He pitched and played first base for his bank's team in the Toronto Financial League, and—for a pitcher—ran up a notable batting average. In the days of seven-man hockey teams, he played the now defunct position of rover.

Away from the rink, Dales became even more of a rover. He has served the Bank of Nova Scotia (successor to the Metropolitan Bank) throughout Canada, and last summer spent some 10 weeks in England on the bank's behalf.

Much of his career was spent in bank branches in the towns and cities of Alberta. As all Easterners — especially Torontonians — have been told at one time or another, everybody's your brother out west. Dales attributes this famed western hospitality to the fact that in an expanding area like the West just as in a growing town, people soon get to know each other and friendships ripen quickly.

Mrs. Dales is the former Helen Corson of Markham. Dales belongs to several clubs, including the Toronto Golf Club. Handicap: 16.

Don't blame the publisher — frequently he is taken to task by some long-standing friend because his or her paper has stopped when it was not renewed promptly. This is unfair to him since it must be realized that it is impossible for one person to keep track of more than three thousand names; consequently this is delegated to others. Best thing to do when your expiry date approaches is to drop the $2.50 in the mail and have the matter attended to promptly.

Stouffville Public School Board is advertising in this week's issue for a secretary following the resignation of Mr. Garfield Brown at last week's Board meeting. Mr. Brown who has held the position for the past two years, is also clerk of the municipality and secretary of the Planning Board and feels that he has full-time duties in these latter two offices which will not permit him to continue with additional work.

Different Views
Local councils were recently asked to endorse a resolution of the Township Council of Crowland which petitioned the Dominion Government to double the Unemployment Insurance benefits to workers. Whitechurch Township Council heartily endorsed the resolution as the township clerk reported a steady stream of applications for relief, practically all of which have been refused as no grant will be paid for relief given employable persons. Stouffville Council took the opposite view and the comment of the local council was to the effect that to increase the insurance benefits would only breed indolence among those out of work and they would be more inclined than ever to sit home and do nothing. Both councils have their points despite a wide variance.

Mr. Lake who is a former weekly newspaper publisher in the northland headed the local delegation. All are members of the Unionville Curling Club.

Tea at 50¢ a Pot Cokes for 25¢

Dear Friends,
Well, here we are in France. Can't help thinking that when the Lord made the world out of whole cloth He ran a bit short and made France out of all the odd pieces — France is such a queer mixture of everything. We are in Cannes just now. They asked how old my typewriter was and I said, 20 years — no more questions asked.

Our hotel is clean and fairly comfortable, 3200 francs a day. The first couple of days we thought we were going to starve but we are getting onto their diet now though we don't care for two buns, a bit of butter, jam and tea for breakfast. Tea at the London Restaurant is 50¢ a pot and coca-cola 25¢. The houses here are good, large and every one different. Canadians are more popular here than Yanks, but they are amazed that we don't speak French.

We are learning the geography and climate of France. We enjoy talking to the people and they seem to like talking to us. I like to tell jokes to the English-speaking ones and then watch them translate it to their friends in French. Last Friday we went for a long walk and got lost, not an English speaker could we find.

Cannes is built on a lot of valleys and ridges. However, the sea is the base, so when you're lost follow any of the ridges and it will take you back to the base.

You see the same old signs painted on the walls and sidewalks as in England, "Yanks Go Home," and "Don't Re-Arm Germany." The French and British are not too happy with U.S. soldiers' families coming over and taking the limited and precious housing accommodation away from the native born citizens. The French say they had all the occupation they wanted from the Germans.

Eggs are sold here at 22 francs each, the French can't afford to buy a dozen. My $14 boots represent a day's pay in Canada — nearly a week's in France. The French soldier gets 5 1/2 cents a day, a sergeant 17 cents a day. Considering the wages and then the prices in the stores, I wonder how the Italian and French contrive to make a living. Some of the prices in the stores, of course, are for the tourists' purses.

but 6¢ for an egg is 6¢. Cauliflower is a separate dish. Bread is unwrapped and can be found lying any old place.

Taxis seem to have a tariff of 25¢ a mile. We see lemons and just a few oranges on the trees. The oranges are much sweeter than in Florida. The strawberries are beginning to flower. I plan to pick up a car in England and visit the cemeteries of World War I. I'd like to get something interesting to those friends who lost brothers or husbands forty years ago.

A fellow sees funny things travelling around. Up at Roches I saw a man cutting firewood with a bucksaw but he had no saw-horse. He held the bucksaw between his legs with the teeth in front of him and pushed the wood up and down. Yesterday we hired a taxi and went to Grassi where they make perfume, using a ton of roses at a time. We say that gasoline and alcohol won't mix but they use both of them in making perfume.

We went up into the Alps mountains, the road turns and winds like a snake. Sometimes I was a bit scared with the precipices alongside us, ahead a mountain covered with snow and less than five-miles ahead an orange grove. Some places they have tunnelled through the rocks and other places the rocks hang over the roads. The mountains are very steep and the gorges very deep. Although it was Sunday, workmen were cutting statues of human heads out of the solid rock. The edges of the road are mostly protected by stone walls. The roadway isn't wide enough for 2 lanes. Once we had to back-up a long way to make way for a bus. In these lonely gullies there are houses and rows of orange trees and olives.

We saw the grubby part of Cannes today, dirty and miserable with the washing hanging outside the front windows, Spanish style. We are packing up to go on to Paris. A pretty country this, but I want to get away; I want to hear the English language. I have an awful cold, oh for a thermometer as pretty as Daytona. I'll write from Paree next.

The proportion of women among all persons at work in the United States increased from 17 percent in 1880 to 24 percent in 1940 and was close to 30 per cent in 1952.

Working is always good exercise if it doesn't develop a grouch.
