

The Sunday School Lesson for This Week

JESUS MEETS HUMAN NEEDS

Golden Text — They that are whole need not a physician; but they that are sick, I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.—Luke 5:31, 32

THE LESSON AS A WHOLE

One of the notable characteristics of Luke's Gospel is its emphasis on the prayer life of our Lord. At least ten occasions are noted when He prayed, quite a few of these being peculiar to Luke's Gospel.

1. At the time of His baptism (Luke 3:21).
2. Retirement for prayer in the midst of strenuous ministry (3:36).
3. A night of prayer before appointing the apostles (6:12).
4. It was in connection with a season of prayer that He asked the question which elicited Peter's great confession (9:8-20).
5. Prayer was the purpose of His going up the mountain where He was transfigured (vs. 28, 29).
6. The report of the Seventy stirred Him to prayer (10:17-22).
7. It was His prayer that moved the disciples to ask for a lesson in prayer (11:1).
8. He prayed for Peter in his spiritual peril (22:31, 32).
9. Gethsemane was a scene of prayer (vs. 41-45).
10. Prayer on the cross (23:34, 46).

In addition to these we have the two great lessons in prayer in chapters 11 and 18. Notice that two of the above occasions of prayer are in this week's lesson portion (5:15; 6:12). One incident in this week's reading section is peculiar to Luke — the miraculous draught of fishes (5:1-11). John relates a similar event, but one which took place after the Resurrection (John 21:6-9). We should not confuse the two.

While this lesson includes only a few incidents out of these two wonderful chapters, it is to be hoped that the others will not go unnoticed. There is some fine teaching, too, especially about the passing from the old economy to the new — (15:33-39).

Verse by Verse
 Luke 5:12—"Behold a man full of leprosy saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean." Note the phrase, "full of leprosy," showing Doctor Luke's interest in the stage of the disease. See also the measure of faith—full confidence in Christ's ability, but doubt about His willingness.

Verse 13—"And he touched him, saying, I will. And immediately the leprosy departed from him." Matthew and Luke both indicate the technique of the Great Physician. It is the technique of love. He "touched him." The cure was immediate. That phrase, "left him," suggests the alien nature of leprosy. It does not belong to man as part of him.

Verse 14—"... go, and shew thyself to the priest, according as Moses commanded." The charge to silence is one of the characteristics of Christ's ministry which has puzzled many. He was not a showman. For the ordinances regarding the cleansed leper see Leviticus 14. Jesus did not treat the Law of Moses lightly, although He ignored the many traditions that had grown up around it.

Verse 15—"... a fame abroad of him... to hear, and to be healed." For "fame" read "the word concerning him." It was no cheap rumor, but a true report that filled the countryside. Note the double purpose of the crowd's coming—"to hear, and to be healed."

Verse 27—"... a publican, named Levi, sitting at the receipt of custom... Follow me." Levi is later called Matthew, and he so refers to himself (Matt. 9:9). It may be that Matthew was his postconversion name, by which he preferred to be called. He was actually in his booth, probably collecting custom from the local fishermen, when Jesus called him.

Verse 28—"And he left all, rose up, and followed him." Note the unhesitating and complete response. One wonders how much previous contact he had with Jesus to prepare him for this crisis moment. Conversion may be instantaneous, but there is frequently long preparation.

Verse 29—"And Levi made him a great feast... a great company of publicans..." Doubtless the purpose of the feast was to have the men of his own social circle, who were not accepted in the best Jewish society, meet Jesus. Here is the first evangelistic supper on record.

Verse 30—"Why do ye eat and drink with publicans and sinners?" The complaint against the disciples was, of course, aimed at Jesus Himself. "Publicans (taxgatherers) and sinners" were of the same stripe in the eyes of the Pharisee. No doubt many of them were unscrupulous extortioners, and they were regarded as collaborators with the Romans.

Verse 31—"They that are whole need not a physician; but they that are sick," Jesus was present, not as a social personage, but as the Physician of souls. He was, therefore, in His proper "element" among the "sick."

Verse 32—"I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance." So long as men deem themselves righteous, the call to repentance has no meaning for them.

The Heart of the Lesson
 Effective treatment of leprosy is one of the greatest feats of medical science in our generation. Till recently this was one of the hopeless diseases condemning the victim to a living death until death itself ended his misery.

In Israel, leprosy was a triple scourge — physical, social, and religious. The leper could not live as a member of the community, but was "without the camp." In addition to this social isolation, he was barred from any part in the Temple worship. He could not come near the holy things. Even Uziah, the royal leper, had to dwell apart, deprived of the privileges of society and the Temple.

The leper who came to Jesus then, was conscious of a deep, desperate need. What he had seen and heard of Jesus convinced him that here was one able to deliver him. It might be too much to say that in Jesus he recognized the Son of God, but at least he saw in Him one with whom was the power of God, as it was with Elijah and Elisha of old. He had no claim on Jesus that this power should be exerted in his behalf, but this was his only hope.

VETERANS' MEMORIAL HALL STOUFFVILLE, ONTARIO

- Displays of Roman relics, idols, curios, etc.
- Missionaries — Rev. J. D. HARBARENKO — Missionary to Slavic peoples in Northwestern Canada — fiery evangelist — church and radio pastor — Bible School principal and teacher. Hear this consecrated man of God expound the Word of God, and challenge your hearts to the great need of evangelization right here in this neglected and ridiculed Next-Door Mission Field. Rev. J. KACZOWKA — A converted former Redemptorist monk. His testimony will thrill your hearts and help you to realize the importance of evangelizing the Roman Catholics, especially their clergy. Mrs. M. BAKER — A converted former nun. Her testimony will reveal and answer many of the questions often asked about nuns, and their secluded convent life.
- Films — sound films will be shown: (1) POPE PIUS XII — his life and his role as an idol and as he takes the place of God to thousands of deluded souls. (2) UKRAINIAN WINTER HOLIDAYS — A colored sound film shows the celebration of the Nativity of our Lord in a typical Ukrainian religious fashion. The superstitions connected are no less than any other pagan celebration. (3) NEW HOME IN THE WEST — The life and activities of the Ukrainians in Western Canada. See the colorful costumes, religious ceremonies and gaudy displays.
- Specials — in song and musicals — Colorful Ukrainian costumes.
