

News of the World in Pictures

A DUTCH TREAT—Dutch youngsters found an exciting sport in a heavy storm which lashed the North sea coast of the Netherlands. They're dodging spray from the sea.

'SNOW JOKE—This is Winter Haven, Fla., and this snow man seems out of place on the beach. Mary Lou Morris knows the secret, however. The snow is really styro-foam.

A GLIMPSE OF HIROHITO—Loyal Japanese line up to cross the twin bridges into the imperial grounds for their annual glimpse of Emperor Hirohito, who appeared nine times on a balcony to accept greetings from his people. More than 200,000 came.

A 'HOT HEAD'—This rubber head devised for use at a plutonium plant in Richland, Wash., tests the face masks that must protect workers from "hot" radio-active contamination. Human breathing is simulated by multiple pumps fitted to the device. A filter inside the "windpipe" collects radioactive particles that find their way in.

A FRIENDLY VISIT—Annette, one of the three quintuplets who returned home for a reconciliation with the family in Callander, Ont., holds Paulette, daughter of her brother, Daniel. The other girl is the daughter of her brother, Ernest. Earlier, "Papa" Dionne had scolded his quintuplet daughters for "drifting" away from the family.

A PHONY FELINE—Tita doesn't seem to feel flattered at her likeness carved in stone in a Hamburg, Germany, museum. The sculpture was made when she was younger.

SEEING SIGHTS—Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito (left) and his wife stop in front of a sphinx to talk with Premier Gamal Abdul Nasser during a visit to the Giza area near Cairo. Tito is on a good-will tour and has conferred with Nasser. King Features Syndicate

A DISPUTED SUBJECT—Two United Nations observers, Col. Rene Sug Soto (left), of Chile, and Lt. Col. Luis Ferrando (center) of Uruguay, discuss some points in Azad, Kashmir, disputed area between India and Pakistan. At right is a Pakistan soldier.

ANTARCTIC BIRD LIFE

AT HEARD ISLAND, 3,500 miles southwest of Melbourne, scientist bird-watchers have tagged several thousand Antarctic birds in a plan to trace the wild life migration from Antarctica. This is the first time the bird life of the southern continent has been closely examined. At Macquarie island, the scientists also are looking into the habits of the royal penguins, which are found nowhere else in the Antarctica regions. Penguins build their nests from grass roots near the coastline. Petrel chicks from the island station have been reported at Argentina, 9,000 miles away.

This is the Heard island station where scientists are now studying the lives of birds.

Royal penguins, with their brightly-colored crests, live only on Macquarie island.

Scientist holds out the 7-foot wingspan of a giant petrel, a native of the Antarctic.