Having disposed of our business to E. H. Neville and Sons of Stouffville, we wish to thank our many customers and friends for their patronage during the past seventeen years we have been in business here. Particularly we thank those of you who have faithfully patronized us during the full seventeen years we have been here, and it is with regret that we have found it advisable to discontinue. However, we are somewhat consoled by the fact that we have, to the best of our ability, endeavoured to render you good service at all times.

Our successors, Mr. Neville and his two sons, who will take over next month, are well known in Stouffville and district. You will find them well equipped, and no doubt in a position to render even better service than we could. Our service man, Mr. Sherman Arnold, will continue on with Mr. Neville, and at Mr. Neville's request, C. H. Bell will continue on for the time being as a salesman. You will be interested to know that Mr. Neville will be carrying on with the full Beatty Bros. line of barn equipment, laundry equipment, etc. He will also handle the DeLaval and Philco lines, and the Coleman products. Rabies
Rabies is a disease of dogs and other carnivorous animals such as cats, wolves, racoons and foxes, etc. It is known over the whole world with the exception of Australia. The disease attacks the nervous system and is always fatal.

The disease is passed on to man by the bite of a rabid animal. Pasteur developed an anti-rabies serum which, when taken in time, will counteract the disease in man.

When there is suspicion that animals in the area are infected with rabies, all dogs should be kept on the owners' property, or under the owners' immediate control on a lead.

All pets and mammals in an area where rabies is suspected should be inoculated with an anti-rabies vaccine. Before stray dogs which have been impounded are released, they should be vaccinated at the owner's expense. The vaccine for rabies is not perfect, but gives about 80% protection and has no ill effects on the animal.

A dog which is infected with rabies may be quite dull, uneasy and have a tendency to hide. As the disease progresses it will have increasing difficulty in swallowing and may have a stringy, frothy saliva clinging to the corners of its mouth. This is followed by convulsions and finally death within a week or ten days.

A biting animal must be quarantined alive in order to observe any change in his health which will indicate whether the bitten person was or was not exposed to rabies infection. Proof that an animal had rabies is obtained from laboratory examination of the brain after the animal dies. If the animal recovers it is safe to assume that it did not have rabies. A sick animal, suspected of rabies, should not be destroyed but should be quarantined.

When anyone has been bitten by a dog, the incident should be reported to either the local police or the local medical officer of health. The person who is bitten should consult his physician immediately to have the wound treated. After the dog's quarantine period has passed, and if the dog is still well, it may be released.

Early Seeding Means Better Oats — Dept.

Oats seeded early give bigger crops of better quality oats according to H. A. Riordon of the Experimental Farm, Canada Department of Agriculture, in Nappan, Nova Scotia.

In trials over the past three years the influence of date of planting was determined using early, medium and late maturing varieties. Three planting dates were studied. The first was as early as the land could be worked in the spring and the others followed at ten day intervals. The last date fell about the middle of June or just about the time a large proportion of the oats are sown in Nova Scotia.

Yields were reduced for each variety with each later date of seeding. As an average of all varieties the loss in yield between the first and second dates of seeding was only 4½%. However, between the first and third dates the loss in yield amounted to over 30 percent. While yields of all varieties were reduced, due to delayed seeding, the late variety suffered more than did the earlier maturing ones. The weight per bushel of the grain produced also showed the influence of delayed seeding. Grain from the first seeding was generally heavier than that from later seeding. The reason for this was apparent when hull percentage was considered. Grain from early seeding had a much lower hull percent than grain from later seeding. For the variety Victory this difference amounted to more than 12 percent.

Diseases, weeds and lodging all were more severe in the late seeded oats. Septoria, black stem, leaf rust and blast each increased on all varieties as seeding was delayed. Early seeded oats can be harvested before the usual fall storms cause lodging and consequent crop losses.

Thus it will be seen that for maximum yield of good quality oats, planting should be done as early as the weather permits and the ground can be prepared. Where delays in seeding cannot be avoided, early maturing varieties will give the best results.

WALLEN—JACK

St. Thomas, Ont., April 21, 1956 — A lovely spring ceremony took place this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in Alma Street Presbyterian Church, when Elizabeth May Jack became the bride of Morley Leonard Wallen.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jack, St. Thomas, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wallen, of Buttonville, Ont.

Rev. J. K. West officiated and Mrs. J. Pollock played the wedding music. Mrs. Robert Lacy sang "Through the Years" and "Because."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white Chantilly lace over duchess satin, featuring a scalloped neckline, long lily-point sleeves and a full gathered skirt falling into a chapel train. She wore a fingertip veil of French illusion held in place with a queen's crown of seed pearls and rhinestones. Her only jewellery was a single strand of cultured pearls, the gift of the groom. She carried a cascade of white hyacinths with ivy trails, tied with satin ribbon and a spray of heather sent to the bride by an aunt in Scotland.

Mrs. William Lang, St. Thomas, sister of the bride, was matron of honour, wearing a floor-length gown of shrimp antique crystalline fashioned with scalloped neckline, short sleeves and full gathered skirt. She wore a matching hat and gloves and carried a cascade of white shasta daisy chrysanthemums with ivy trails and narrow ribbon. Bridesmaid was Mrs. George Kelly Jr., of Newmarket, Ont. Both Mrs. Kelly and the flower girl, Miss Margaret May Fleming, niece of the bride, wore costumes similar to the matron of honour, and carried white daisy chrysanthemums and ivy trails.

Dr. George Kelly, of Newmarket, Ont., was groomsmen, while ushers were George Wallen, brother of the groom, and Arnold Fleming, brother-in-law of the bride.

Mrs. Jack received her guests wearing a gown of brown, tan and turquoise flowered silk with natural accessories, and a corsage of pink Delight roses.

A reception for approximately 75 guests was held in the church parlours. For a wedding trip to Washington, D.C., and the southern United States, the bride chose a tan flowered silk dress with neutral butcher linen duster, neutral accessories and a mauve orchid corsage. On their return the couple will live in Willowdale, Ont.

Out-of-town guests attended from Ottawa, Newmarket, Windsor, Sarnia, Bothwell, Bradford, Rodney, London, Ont., and Markham. The bride, who was much entertained prior to her marriage, is a graduate of the Memorial Hospital School of Nursing. The groom is a member of the North York Police force.

Change, said the sage, helps one get a better view of life—if you get enough of it and spend it wisely.
