His message was inspiring and he and Mrs. Traub are leaving shortly for Lagos, Nigeria, where he will be on the editorial staff of the African Challenge and will be closely allied with Mr. Ray Hawkins, formerly of Gormley.

The continued catch weather is impeding the progress of the farmers in the spring seeding.

REPORT FROM OTTAWA

By Michael Starr
M.P. for Ontario Riding

Although various committees of the House of Commons are still sitting, and the members are considering the policies of the particular Departments as well as their estimates, the main theme in the House is the Trans-Canada pipeline debate. This debate, at the time of writing this column, is half-way through and will be in the hands of the Senate for their consideration before the end of next week. Another late sitting was experienced on Tuesday, May 22, and the House did not rise until Wednesday in the small hours of the morning.

There were two amendments to the main motion to be considered. The first, submitted by the Conservative Party, was to the effect that Bill No. 298, which is the bill dealing with this subject, be not now read a second time but that the subject matter thereof be referred to the standing Committee on Railways, Canals and Telegraph Lines. This amendment to the main motion was submitted by John Diefenbaker, M.P. for Prince Albert, after he had made a two-hour speech in which he reviewed the various aspects of the Trans-Canada Pipelines since their incorporation in 1951. The purpose of the amendment was to refer it to the Committee on Railways, Canals and Telegraph Lines so that this committee would be able to call in witnesses to give evidence and submissions, and also to accept any propositions by Canadian private investors to construct this line.

He was followed in the debate by M. J. Coldwell, the leader of the C.C.F. Party, who stated that he was in accord with the Conservative amendment, but at the end of his speech he moved an amendment to the amendment "that the amendment be amended by changing the period at the end thereof to a comma, and by adding thereafter the following words: "So that consideration might be given to the advisability of recommending the constructing and operating of a Trans-Canada natural gas pipe line under public ownership."

This amendment to the amendment eliminated any other consideration by the committee, and the result was that the Conservative members of the House, including myself, were unable to support the amendment to the amendment. It has been the position of the Conservative Party on this matter that every consideration should be given to have this line built by Canadian private enterprise with their own financing first; failing that, the Conservatives in the House were prepared to recommend a government-built line.

After the vote was taken, Stanley Knowles, C.C.F. member rose and challenged the right of Carl Nickle, Conservative Member of Parliament for Calgary South, to vote on this matter. Mr. Nickle explained his position, stating that he had disposed of all interests in oil companies that had anything to do with Trans-Canada Pipelines, thereby making his position free in the House of Commons to participate in the debate and in the votes. Amid cries of "Shame" by the Liberal Members of the House, this motion of Mr. Knowles was disallowed. Although Mr. Nickle has consistently voted against the Conservatives on this matter, Mr. Drew rose to his defence and pointed out it was the privilege of any Member in the House of Commons to express his views and vote as his conscience dictated. The Prime Minister for the first time also participated in this debate, and came to the defence of the government's policy and stand on the Trans-Canada Pipeline.

It is unfortunate that this whole matter has been delayed to a point where time is limited, and that it was necessary for the government to provide closure on the debate on the various stages of this bill.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics' report, dated Friday, May 18, 1956, showed that estimated labour income was 9.5% greater in February this year than last year. This increase was spread through all industry groups. Average hourly earnings of wage earners in manufacturing reached a new peak of 148.5 cents as of March 1 this year. Creamery butter production during April was only slightly larger than a year ago, but stocks of creamery butter at May 1 were some 7,000,000 pounds greater. The total stock on hand was 63,665,000 pounds.

BALLANTRAE

A good time was had by all who attended the "family night" at Melville last Thursday. Several families were represented from this community. There was a very entertaining program, followed by refreshments, and a grand display of fireworks.

The Merry Mixers are having a bowling party at Musselman's Lake on Friday evening, June 1. Cars will leave the four corners at 7.30. Plan to join in the fun. It was a privilege to have two Boy Scouts from Etobicoke visit the United Church Sunday School on Sunday morning. These boys, like many others at various times, were camping in this area and on route to visit Dr. Secord's dam, which is part of their, camping-out assignment.

A great many families were represented at the rural school music demonstration held in the Uxbridge Music Hall last Wednesday evening. Children from Altona, Garibaldi, Fifth Line, Pine Grove, Webb and Goodwood schools, under the direction of their music supervisor, Mrs. Colby and the various teachers, presented a fine program of songs, marches, dances and a rhythm band. This program was a fine example of what can be accomplished through co-operation. Everyone taking part is to be congratulated.

Best wishes to Charles and Murray Hill, who had their tonsils removed at Port Perry hospital on Tuesday.

It's a lot more pleasant to go where you please if you always please where you go.
